SEDITIOUS SUFFRAGETTES.

THANK GOD the western women cannot be accused of being a party to the traitorous exhibition at the gates of the White House yesterday when banners emblazoned with arrant falsehoods were thrust in the faces of the nation's guests. This is not the time for an unwomanly display of personal spite or vindictiveness for the country is at war and every man and every woman who claims to have a drop of American blood in their veins should stand behind the president in whatever he does as the representative of 100,000,000 people wearing the message of the starry banner and the paens of liberty to the enslaved masses of Europe. The suffragettes did it. They are not the suffragists of the nation but the women who never knew what it was to have a vote or to exercise the franchise of true citizenship. The west disowns them and the hope is fervently expressed that the president will not suffer his clemency to shield the wretches from the penalty they so richly deserve. They should not be permitted to claim leniency or immunity because they are women. They are the emasculated remnant of the small band of troublemakers whose "silent protest" is but a feeble imitation of the war inaugurated by the English sisters in a more virile form. The impression of the country has been that this silly demonstration before the White House had been abandoned since the declaration of war with a foreign country and the first knowledge that most of us had of its continuance was this announcement of the hornet's nest gathered at the gates of the president's official home for the purpose of insulting him in the presence of a group of guests just freshly arrived from a storm rent country where the people have battled for centuries against despotism. To hurl defiance at the president, whose indulgence is responsible for the perpetuation of this unfeminine nuisance, these harpies lied to convey the impression that this was a country of oppression and that the chief victims of this particular oppression were those whose skirts belied the sex of the wearers. The suffrage vote elected Mr. Wilson. There cannot be any repudiation of this assertion for reference to the returns of the election demonstrate that almost every suffrage state cast its ballot for the man who now is assailed in the vilest and most insidious form by a little band of conscienceless creatures whose forked tongues spit venom and vitriol on their standard bearer in the past election.

The Bonanza was opposed to the extension of suffrage for the reason that this paper did not believe the time was ripe for its introduction in Nevada politics but, after the majority voted that suffrage was right, the Bonanza was one of the first to bow to the decree and accept the decision in the same spirit that it accepted the declaration of war by the president of these United States, but, if there was any possible avenue for a reconsideration of the fiat of the voters in adopting equal suffrage, the Bonanza would insist on the amendment being submitted again. The same sentiment is expressed throughout the east and the west has to bear the shame and contumely of contributing to a cause dominated by a few short-haired women who misrepresent their sex. Less than a week ago Emma Goldman was arrested charged with circulating seditious literature. That anarchistic vixen did not pretend to be an American citizen. She calls herself "the woman without a country," engaged in preaching the gospel of anarchy and revolution. While disseminating the precepts of her special cult she invited the attention of the officers of the law and was promptly placed in durance where her voice could no longer be raised in vituperation of the man at the White House, whose chief agony is in trying to arouse the masses of American citizens to the real danger that confronts this country through destruction and dethronement of the principles for which our fathers and forefathers bled and died. This is not the time for heckling and harassing the chief executive of the United States. This is the time for every citizen, regardless of party or political principles, to come forward and tender him the support which he so richly deserves.

The suffragettes in Washington patterned after their sisters in London in so far as disturbing the public peace, but their silly minds could not grasp the noble qualities lurking behind the warlike exteriors of their English sisters or they would never have acted as they did yesterday. The Englishwomen were battling for a principle. They strove for recognition and, while few could approve their plan of campaign, they will take off their hats to the followers of Emmeline Pankhurst in the policy they adopted the moment war was declared against the central powers. They withdrew from their stations in public and tendered their services to their king and country. While they felt justified in contending for a principle at home they felt that it was their duty to silence further demonstrations and rally to the support of their flag as loyal British subjects. The talents of these women were diverted to the good of their country and they went forth boldly and proclaimed themselves eager to do their duty and show their patriotism where danger was thickest. At the very moment the Washington satellites of sedition were circulating a mendacious report that American women were serfs, the British leader of suffrage was in Petrograd appealing to the Russian people to remain steadfast in their pledges to the allies and not allow themselves to be cajoled by German sycophants into withdrawing from the battle for democratization of the world.

Mrs. Pankhurst was not covering her king with vile invective but she was there on the ground of the seething political volcano using her eloquence and magnetism to convince the regenerated Russians that in the fight for liberty and freedom of conscience and free speech there could not be any division of sentiment. She was fighting for her king, her God and her country, while her poor silly American sisters, like a lot of geese, covered themselves with shame and ineffable infamy. Emma Goldman, as the offspring of unrest, knows no better, but the silent protestants at the White House are supposed to be the brains of our country's leading seminaries who, in abusing the mouthpiece of the American people, simply foul their own nests. There should not be any compassion for these bias-visioned females who should be placed where they can do no more harm. The women of the United States should repudiate them and the women of Nevada should be among the first to disown the malecontents who began this heckling business while claiming to come from this state. Nevada has no use for the system and Nevada should advise the world that it has no patience with this class of philandering spiffires.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

SAN FRANCISCO is entitled to full credit for retrieving the day at the eleventh hour. Her citizens, rich and poor, bankers, merchants, artisans and laborers, worked like Trojans to sustain their reputation for liberal giving. Men and women vied in the effort. Children also applied their savings and, when the full count was closed San Francisco was credited with a large percentage over and above her quota. This is as it should be. San Francisco was sleeping. The citizens, like the citizens of New York and Boston, were lulled into a false sense of security by the equivocal statements of the secretary of the treasury which were understood to convey the fact that the entire amount had been oversubscribed the first few days after the Liberty Loan was offered but, when the alarm sounded and the fact was recognized, the people of these places responded with alacrity and many doubloons that proved their hearts were in the right place. Like other places San Francisco believed the loan was oversubscribed and did not see any necessity for bestirring itself. It was pardonable to believe that everybody was doing his duty to the full extent of his or her ability and therefore there were no reasons to excite misgivings or cause anxiety. Three days before the close of the subscriptions, when the approximate amount of each city was given out for publication and it was learned for the first time that the metropolis of the Pacific coast was on the wrong side there was an awakening that brought the money that would have been forthcoming earlier if the truth had been stated explicitly at the beginning. If Los Angeles and the southern end of California had redeemed their promises as promptly as San Francisco, the credit of the state would not be tarnished by any shortage of the general quota. As it is the money was forthcoming with a grace that deserves acknowledgement for it was done with such promptness that there was no getting away from the fact that it was merely an oversight that almost left the state without its proper credit for public spiritedness. The next time the government calls for assistance San Francisco will not take any chances but the people will take off their coats and be among the first to report the full quota safely disposed of.

STRAY MINES EXPLODE ON GOTHLAND COAST

(By Associated Press.) STOCKHOLM, June 21.—Four hundred mines have exploded or been fished up on the coast of Gothland since the war began. Seventy-five of them came ashore on a 15-mile stretch of coast. Nobody has been hurt by the explosions, with the exception that some lives were lost just off the coast by the blowing up of the steamer Rumina. On peasant on the southern extremity of the eastern coast, whose house is at the water's edge, has experienced four explosions under his very eaves but neither he nor any one of his family has been hurt.

U-BOAT LOSSES SHOW INCREASE

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, June 21.—The figures of British shipping losses as the result of Germany's submarine warfare show a larger number of vessels sunk than in any of the six preceding weeks. Not since the seven day period ending April 28 has a greater number of ships been destroyed. During that week 51 vessels, 38 over and 13 under 1600 tons, were sunk. The heaviest totals since the Teutonic submarine campaign was opened in February last, were registered in the week ending April 21, when 40 steamers of more than 1600 tons and 15 vessels of the smaller tonnage were sent to the bottom.

WAR RATIONS HIT PEOPLE OF LISBON

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.) LISBON, Portugal, May 20.—The war has reached Portugal in earnest and drastic measures are being put into effect by the government to ensure bread for the people. Confectionery and cake no longer can be sold. All persons possessing supplies of flour are required to inform the authorities of the amount they own.

Corn bread is being made to eke out the scanty supply of wheat flour and acorn flour and other substitutes are being utilized.

The Lisbon streets, like those of London, now are in darkness after nightfall, as the gas factories have ceased operations. Electric street cars now are operated only up to 11 p. m. The difficulty of obtaining public conveyances after that hour is causing great losses to theaters and night clubs.

Imported coal has become an unknown quantity and the national brown coal, lignite, is being used for domestic purposes. Warning has been given that unless it becomes possible to import coal, the use of electricity as motive power must be discontinued.

Tabulations at headquarters show contributions to date of $19,500,000 from New York City and $24,000,000 from the remainder of the United States. Many cities had sent no reports. Outside of New York City first place in the race was held by the north central state, comprising Illi-
