VISCIOUS PRANKS PLAYED BY BOYS

Boys, big enough to know better, celebrated Halloween not by the innocent fun that the night is set aside for, but by stupid destruction and defacement of property. A gang of them went along Florence avenue turning over out buildings and committing other similar offenses, and a resident of the street, angered by the wanton destruction, emptied a revolver in the general direction of the boys, fortunately not killing or injuring any of them.

All of the city windows were marked up with pictures and words, some of them of unprintable significance. In some cases automobiles were tampered with. Many out buildings were thrown over. Most of the worst offenders are known. It is suggested that those guilty of the serious depredations go to their victims, admit their guilt and then tell their own parents so that the damage may be made good. Many of the city's windows were peace officers were doing during the evening. The names of the offenders will be handed in to the police.

MEXICAN SOCIALIST'S DEATH IS DESCRIBED

(By Associated Press.) EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 1.—Men claiming to have been present give interesting details of the death of Jose Ynez Salazar, a revolutionary general, chief of staff to Francisco Villa and Mexican Socialist, who was shot and killed at a ranch near the American-Mexican colonies of Chihuahua state.

Salazar was credited with having given orders for many Mexicans to be executed before the first convenient adobe walls. He was the leader blamed for the enforced exile of the Mormons from Mexico.

After pursuing a political and military army to the position of the commander of a rag-tag army of eighty pleading for amnesty, Salazar arrived at Acencion, Chihuahua, to make his appeal for amnesty in order to return to his ranch and live out his life as a small farmer. It was while awaiting at Acencion for his amnesty decree that Salazar met his death.

Three of his followers had ridden to a nearby ranch house the day previous to his death. When they failed to return Salazar followed to investigate. After entering the corral or barnyard of the ranch house someone within the house opened fire upon him, according to men who claimed to have seen the killing. "Quien tiro?" (who fired) Salazar asked, pulling his own pistol. Just as he did this someone fired from behind an embankment, Salazar was shot through the body. Another shot at close range caused his death. He was buried where he fell.

CLASSES IN PEKINGESE.

(By Associated Press.) SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 1.—The University of Washington, located in this city, is to organize evening classes to teach Kuan Hua, the official Pekingese language, to merchants and others having commercial relations with the Orient.

Pinyin English is said to be doomed. According to Dr. Macy M. Skinner, who will have charge of the classes, business men who desire to establish permanent trade relations with China will find it to their advantage to return to college and familiarize themselves with real Chinese.

Kuan Hua, say students of the language, is no more difficult to master than some modern European tongues.

JUNE CAPRICE AT THE BUTLER.

June Caprice, known to filmland as the Sunshine Maid, is the star of the feature to be shown at the Butler this evening. The name of which is "Every Girl's Dream." The story of "Every Girl's Dream" is told in Holland. June Caprice, as Gretchen, a foster child, loves Carl, a woodchopper. Hulda is jealous and tries to steal him from Gretchen. Myrher de Haas, the town capitalist, a withered old man, wants to marry Gretchen, but she put him off despite the urging of her foster mother, on whose house Myrher holds a mortgage. One day Carl is kidnapped. The next day royal messengers appear in town and order all the foster damsels to search their belongings for a certain locket. The owner is a lost princess. Hulda seeks in vain, but finds the jewel in Gretchen's trunk and steals it. She is placed on a throne to meet her prince. An old man comes from the coach. Thinking he's the prince, Hulda flees and confesses she stole the gem from Gretchen. Gretchen is then enthroned and the old man announces the prince. He is Carl. While the people celebrate Gretchen's fortune a courier arrives with news of the king's death, making Carl King. It is a charming play of childhood, love and adventure and sets a new mark in June's career of making clean, delightful dramas.

Tomorrow, the big double bill, a circus drama, "The Sawdust Ring," with Bessie Love in the leading role—and the second number of "The Fighting Trail." Read the story each week, and see the picture here every Friday. You will say it is absolutely the best photo serial you ever saw.
