FILES SUIT FOR 37,000 SHARES HE CLAIMS HE LOST BY FRAUD

A case was filed here last evening by M. B. Aston, through his attorney, H. R. Cooke, against A. H. Howe, Charles R. Evans and W. S. Norris and the Wall Street Copper company which undoubtedly will be bitterly contested on both sides. Aston alleges that in the spring of 1916 he was the owner of the Wall Street and Turk lode claims, near Luning, and that being financially unable to develop same he took in Howe, Evans and Norris and, together, they organized the Wall Street Copper company, with 100,000 shares, Aston retaining 37,500 shares and Howe, Evans and Norris taking the remainder. The lode claims appear to have soon been demonstrated to be very valuable in copper. Anyhow, Aston alleges in substance, that the defendants, Howe, Evans and Norris, as soon as they knew the claims were valuable, fraudulently conspired to cheat him out of his 37,000 shares and that Norris, who was in charge as manager, falsely represented property to Aston as being worthless and that operations would have to close down or a heavy assessment be levied. Aston also alleges that Evans and Howe were continually disparaging the property and expressing regret to plaintiff that they ever having gotten into it, that they were anxious to sell out even at a loss and wanted to make the loss as small as possible, and that Norris, Howe and Evans all agreed with Aston to sell together with him. Aston alleges in his suit that, during all this time, there was a man trying to buy his 37,500 shares for various figures around from $5,000 to $10,000; that the man claimed to represent an undisclosed principal and that Aston told Howe, Norris and Evans about this man and then they all agreed with Aston that, if he would sell, they would sell at the same time and to the same party and for the same terms. Aston further alleges that, about June 2, 1916, Evans persuaded him to visit the mine and that Evans deliberately arranged trip so as to land Aston there, too late to properly inspect the property; that Norris had been advised of his coming and had caused all the rich ore showings in the two claims to be covered over with waste, which waste was shoveled off after he left; that in one place where the rich ore showed and it could not be covered over, Norris had the miners shoot out of time so Aston could not get in on account of the smoke. Aston further alleges that he believed what he heard and saw, and supposing his associates would sell on the same terms to the same party, that he sold his stock for $15,000, but learned about a year later, in June, 1917, that, instead of a third party buying the stock, it was his own partners, Howe, Evans and Norris, who were the secret and undisclosed principals in the transaction of the year before and who had bought his stock. He also alleges that he did not learn until about August 20 of this year about the alleged fraudulent concealment of the rich ore showings at the mine. It seems immediately on discovery of the fact that he had been bought out by his own partners, instead of as he supposed, by a third party to whom all were to sell, that Aston threatened to make trouble and that Howe, Evans and Norris made some settlement whereby Aston waived any further claim for damages against them for the alleged fraud regarding the undisclosed principal feature, but Aston claims he was not then aware of the alleged fraudulent concealment of the rich ore bodies at the mine, or he would not have made any settlement at all except to have the entire transaction set aside and himself reinstated. He further alleges that the mining claims were known by defendants to be immensely valuable and that, in fact, they have produced during the past year about $625,000 from shipments of rich copper ore and that there is a large quantity of shipping ore exposed. Aston sues for the return of the 37,500 shares, valued by him at $112,500, and for 37 1/2 per cent of the $625,000 produced, less actual operating expenses, and for costs. A writ of attachment was issued and has been delivered to the sheriff of Esmeralda county to be levied upon the property of the defendants. The complaint is quite lengthy and contains numerous allegations detailing the alleged fraud complained of.

LOCAL COAL YARDS ENTIRELY EMPTY

Tonopah is out of coal. There isn't a lump of the precious cold weather defier in the hands of local dealers. They are hoping that several carloads, already overdue, will arrive here next week some time. These will in a measure relieve the situation—if the weather stays pleasant.

William De Courcy of the National Ice company said: "We are ten cars short. Our shortage was aggravated a week ago when the railroad confiscated a carload consigned to us. We have two cars en route and hope to have them next week."

E. D. Mills of the Wilkes Warehouse company makes similar report, having also lost a car at Callente through confiscation by the railroad. The Wittenberg company expects a carload next week, and is also a number of cars behind.

The big coal companies of Utah, in a letter to F. T. Miller, said that no definite word as to when the shortage would be relieved could be given at this time.

The young couple will make their home here. The simple ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Summerfield and Mrs. Pollock.

ITALY WILL

lack of food as they made their way across the country to the Tagliamento, with their rear guards everywhere shelling the enemy. But General Cadorna declares that, with the morals of the men still splendid, the success of the invaders soon will be made valueless.

On the eastern side of the Tagliamento the Teutonic allies have captured all along the waterway from Pizano to Latisana valuable bridgehead positions from which to operate against the Italians on the other side of the stream. No mention has yet been made of any attempts by the enemy to bridge the stream, now at full freshet, with pontoons, but doubtless strong efforts in this direction will be made as soon as sufficient artillery has been mobilized to give effect to this operation.

Should General Cadorna decide to give battle along the Tagliamento doubtless the plains of Grilui soon will resound with the hoofbeats of cavalry and the clash of the sabre and witness the greatest scene of open warfare that has taken place during the present hostilities. Already the Italian cavalry has been in action to the east of the Tagliamento and did notable work in harassing the Teutonic allies' advance.

AMUSEMENTS

DOUBLE BILL AT THE BUTLER.

There will be a double bill—two distinct features—at the Butler today. Besse Love will make her first appearance on the screen as a bareback rider in her latest play, "The Sawdust Ring," which is a delightful story of the circus, and Besse is said to make the hit of her career as the little girl, threatened with the poorhouse who runs away and becomes a member of the huge family that live under the "big top". The settings are realistic, for Besse and her company traveled with a circus touring through California in order to film the principal scenes. Every detail from the wardrobe tent to the main tent, with its three rings, is shown. Now this is just one part of today's program.

The other part is the second number of "The Fighting Trail," most wonderful picture of the great outdoors ever screened. Every foot is filled with thrills, action and keen interest; every foot is taken out in the open; no trick studio photography to deceive you; it is just as you see it, and every kind of thrill and danger—of the air, the land and water—is met with as the story unfolds. Hard-fighting, quick-shooting, fighting men, afraid of nothing on earth, meet in battle, time after time, and struggle for supremacy. These are the pictures that hold you in your seats. You saw the first number a week ago. Read the story and see this one today. William Duncan and Carol Holloway are the stars. You will learn to love them and admire them—you will feel as if you know them, and you will look forward with pleasure to the coming of this wonderful story and picture every week. Come early and spend a pleasant evening.

Tomorrow, another big show—Charlie Chaplin, in "Easy Street," one of his very best productions, and William Desmond, in "Paddy O'Hara," which is also "some picture."

Hiram Blyeu, who has conducted the Tonopah Taxi company for several years, has sold the same to William Ideo and Elmer Goetz of the Rex Auto company, who in the future will conduct the Tonopah Taxi company.
