FOOD ADMINISTRATOR ADDRESSES STUDENTS

HENRY M. HOYT SPEAKER ON CONSERVATION AT ASSEMBLY THIS MORNING.

On invitation by Superintendent Dilworth, Henry M. Hoyt, food administrator for the state of Nevada, addressed general assembly at the high school this morning. Although he had no stated theme, his address was along the lines of the necessity for food conservation in the present crisis, which is rendered all the more serious by the general impression that the war will last two years longer.

Administrator Hoyt described the plan of the German government, which in forty years built up an almost unassailable world power, in the course of which, in order to gain its ends, it violated every principle of honor, trod upon treaties, made each citizen subjective to an iconoclast and subverted culture to kultur.

"This brought a condition," he said, "that must be corrected if civilization is to continue to exist." He gave as the reason for the scarcity of food the fact that 40,000,000 people in the nations enrolled have left the occupation of providing sustenance for mankind and are either engaged in war or in the arts that supply the men at the front.

He also called attention to the fact that the world's greatest storehouses of food, outside of the United States—Australia and India—are so far removed from the scenes of battle that it requires four times as many ships to send supplies from them as from the Atlantic seaboard. He said that the pressing need at present, in view of the ship losses due to ruthless submarine warfare, is to forward to the nations associated with the United States in this war, foods that possess the greatest amount of nutrition in proportion to bulk, such as grain, meat and dairy products.

The speaker urged conservation upon his auditors, telling how much could be saved if each person were to conserve one cubic inch of meat per day.

AT THE BUTLER.

Splendidly staged and magnificently acted and as sweet and wholesome a story as has ever been filmed. Vivian Martin has her own inimitable style and makes the character of Susie Nolan a marvel of art. The photography is unusually beautiful and there are some wonderful scenes. The plot is well developed and characters are well chosen and do their work efficiently. Detail handled well, fine points will prove interesting to the best. "A Kiss for Susie" is the title of the production that the above is stated about and from commence read by the management it is said to be one of the best photodramas of its kind and will prove of interest to everyone, both young and old. With this five-reel drama will be seen a Bray cartoon, and it is a good one—something new and different.

Tomorrow, the star supreme, Ethel Barrymore, in "Life's Whirlpool," a five-act wonderplay of vital emotions. Thursday, Mary Pickford, in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." This Pickford production is considered by critics as being the best that Miss Pickford has produced in every respect and detail a wonder. Mary is just the ideal girl for the audience is held from the beginning to the end of the picture and many beautiful remembrances will still remain in the mind for weeks after. It is woven with comedy that makes you smile, as well as think.
