

NOVEL PLAN TO BRING WAR NEWS TO THOSE TO GO "OVER THERE"

(By Associated Press) LAMAR LEWIS, Tacoma, Wash., April 13.—"What's happening over there?" is the most common question asked by the soldiers at Camp Lewis of a civilian, and the biggest topic of conversation when a crowd of men get together during the evening or between drills.

The men haven't time to read all the news dispatches from France in the newspapers. Their days are taken up with drill and their evenings with study or amusements. But they want to know what is going on overseas.

This was one of the things the Y. M. C. A. discovered at the beginning of their work here. Men didn't want to learn grammar, geometry, history and Latin, the secretaries learned. They wanted to study French, learn the geography of the country where they may be expected to do their share and they wanted to learn all about the war from day to day, the meaning of various phases of battle and the strategy of movement of the allies and the Germans.

J. B. Coan, educational secretary of building No. 6, is the man who solved this problem for the Y. M. C. A. here and for the association work in all the camps of the United States. Coan does all the reading on war subjects for the men. He has drawn a large map which adorns the wall of the association building and a battle line designated by pins and various bits of colored cardboard is changed from day to day as troop movements are announced and the offensive is carried back and forth.

Coan also reads every magazine article he can find bearing on the war and the strategy of the French front and whenever there is a group of men gathered around the war map he may be found in its center, pointing out places of interest in the day's news. He describes the nature of the country in which the battles are being fought, explains the strength of the forces engaged as nearly as is made known in the dispatches and points out the places where an attack may be expected and the consequences which would follow any big movement in either direction from this part of the present battle line.

Virtually every Y. M. C. A. in the army camps now has adopted this sort of work in its educational department as the result of the success achieved here. Mr. Coan frequently talks to 1500 men during the day and whenever the interest justifies he prepares lantern slide maps and pictures on the war for larger groups of soldiers.

Next to French and a study of the war in classes at night, the most popular class work of the educational department has to do with technical subjects having to do with different branches of the army service.

NOTES ON SPORTING EVENTS

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 13.—The coming week will witness the opening of another major league baseball season with the playing of the initial games in the American and National league schedules of 1918. Although enlistments and the draft have caused many of the players to change their diamond uniforms for those of either the army or the navy, the prospects point to the carrying on of the game this summer with the same keen rivalry that has marked the sport in past years.

Considered broadly there appears to be about the usual distribution of playing talent and strength as in former pennant races for where one club has improved its combination another has lost one or more of its formidable players thus, in a general way, evening up the situation.

In the National League the Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago teams on paper, at least, appear to be stronger than was the case twelve months ago. The New York club, winner of the 1917 pennant, does not strike the close student of the game as being quite as impressive as last season, while both Brooklyn and Philadelphia are scarcely as strong as a year ago.

The Chicago White Sox stand out as the ranking favorite in the American league for the combination will begin the season fully as powerful as when the team closed the 1917 campaign with the double laurels of pennant winners and world champions. Among the other clubs the New York Yankees are undoubtedly stronger in every department, with the exception of pitchers, than was the case last year. The Boston Red Sox are more or less of an uncertain quantity yet many of their followers expect them to be the surprise of the league. Cleveland, Detroit and Washington are about up to the standard of last season if not a trifle stronger while the Philadelphia Athletics with a number of youngsters in the line-up cannot be figured upon in advance.

(By Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Calculations of the critics were considerably upset at the end of the first week of play in the Pacific Coast baseball league when the Oakland and Vernon clubs both finished up in the first division—respectively first and third. These two teams generally had been mentioned as the poorest aggregations of the league by those who had kept in touch with the preliminary training season.

It is interesting to note that San Francisco which led the league at the end of the first week last season, occupied the cellar position this year while Los Angeles which was tied last season for first honors with a percentage of 571 had the identical percentage in second place this year.

Good, bad and indifferent baseball marked the first week of play, the lack of effective team play being the most conspicuous fault. Farce comedy was provided by the Oakland club in the opening game when, with the bases full, a double play by San Francisco retired the side when the three Oakland basemen tried to occupy third base at one and the same time.

While no records were shattered in the matter of the attendance during the week, the gate receipts on the whole were satisfactory to the club owners. Among the spectators were many of the players of last season in naval and military uniforms watching their former teammates play.

On Tuesday Salt Lake City will formally open the season when the home team lines up against the Los Angeles club for a week of play. The Salt Lakers opened the season with the same team at Los Angeles when they lost the series by three to four games.

MOUNT MCKINLEY NATIONAL PARK TO BE THROWN OPEN TO TOURISTS

(By Associated Press) SEATTLE, Wash., April 13.—"Mount McKinley National Park" will read a sign to be painted in the not very distant future on a station to be built on the railroad the United States government is building in Alaska. Once railroad communication is established with this newest and probably wildest national playground, hundreds of tourists will visit the place, it is expected.

The hand of man has done very little in the Mount McKinley park. There are no hotels, very few trails and only two or three ways of reaching it. At present it can be reached overland from Fairbanks or by steamboat on the rapid Susitna river.

The highest peak on the continent, Mount McKinley, 29,309 feet, shoulders its way skyward in the center of the park. Glaciers of enormous bulk cover the south side of the mountain while the north slope is dotted with lakes and forests and inhabited by great herds of bighorn sheep, moose, caribou and deer. The huge Alaska bear is also native to the park. The annual snowfall at some places on the south side of the park is sixty feet.

Mount McKinley Park lies in the heart of the almost impassable Alaska mountain range which rises between the interior and the southwestern coast. The park was established by congress February 26, 1917, and covers an area of 2290 square miles. It is the second largest of the national parks.

The report of the director of national parks says the park was established as a refuge and breeding ground for the conservation of Alaska big game against the inroads which may be expected upon the completion of the new Alaska railroad.

COAL MINES CLOSE; BIG CAR SHORTAGE

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 13.—Coal mines in many sections are beginning to close down because of car shortage and both reduced production and unemployment have reached such a serious stage that fuel administration officials are frankly alarmed. The situation has been placed before the railroad administration with an urgent request for drastic steps to keep the mines supplied with cars.

In the Fairmont-Clarksburg bituminous fields in West Virginia the labor problem is giving officials the most concern. Some 1500 miners are reported in danger of starvation as the result of mines shutting down in a telegram sent the fuel administration by the local of the United States Mine Workers of America for District No. 17, Taylor county, comprising a large number of mines of the Fairmont district.

An average of approximately 6500 men have been idle per day in the Fairmont-Clarksburg fields, according to figures in the possession of the National Coal association. In Iowa, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania and practically every other bituminous coal producing state, a similar condition is declared to exist. Miners are becoming dissatisfied and a serious loss of mine labor is threatened by idle miners going to other work unless immediate relief is obtained.

BONE BREAKING STUNTS

(By Associated Press) FORT BLISS, Tex., April 13.—Boxing, wrestling and bone breaking holds are being taught officers of the local infantry regiments stationed here by instructors in bayonet practice who have just returned from Fort Sill, Okla., where they learned the new Americanized-British method of bayonet attack. Wooden rifles are used instead of the regulation piece and all phases of trench warfare are taught. Night attacks in real trenches are carried out in every detail and raiding parties are sent out and opposed in a close simulation to actual warfare. The officers are devoting eight hours each day to this work.

ELECT WHEELER

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, April 12.—Harry A. Wheeler, federal food administrator of Illinois, was unanimously elected president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at a session of the board of directors at the closing session of the three-day meeting late yesterday.

LOAN MOUNTS HIGHER

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 13.—Subscriptions to the Liberty loan filed with the federal reserve bank of the New York district in the first five days of the campaign amounted to $206,560,100. It was announced last night. This total compares with $31,312,100 for the first five days of the second loan.

TALK ON EDUCATION

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 13.—Educational aspects of the war were discussed at yesterday's session of the national conference of American lecturers. Philander P. Claxton, federal commissioner of education, and George A. Strayer, of the Teachers' College, New York, spoke on war time problems of the country's educators, and Talcott Williams, dean of the Columbia School of Journalism, told the conference that the press had educated America to the duty of entering the war.

ENDLESS DEBATE

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 13.—Prospects of indefinite senate debate over the Overman bill, with its broad grant of authority to the president to reorganize government departments, caused administration leaders yesterday to decide upon laying aside the measure today, probably for several days, in order to pass the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and other urgent legislation.
