POLITICS AND WAR

WE are all backing up congress and standing behind the president, ready at all times to paste an obstructionist or swat a contemnor. This is the proper spirit and it must abide and grow ever stronger for the duration of the war.

The idea is that we must continue the elective system, even if the war continues for a decade and organizations must be kept active or they will cease to exist and a chaotic condition would ensue.

This fall a number of United States senators and representatives will be elected and in two years a president will be chosen, as well as a majority of congress. All who are elected must be worthy, for the tasks to be placed upon them are enormous.

"HOLD THE FORT FOR I AM COMING"

FROM the increase in our casualty lists it is now obvious that our boys are getting into the fighting, but it is probable that not ten per cent of our army in France and Flanders is as yet actively engaged.

There is to be a considerable wait before the Browning guns are ready and before the American air fleet will loom like homing dragons dark upon the west.

Meanwhile time must continue to fight on the side of the allies. The Hun lines must be held until we are ready for our huge offensive, the greatest ever launched in the history of battles.

Did you ever form one of the multitude at Mackay field when the Nevada boys were being forced back by a superior foe? Then you cannot forget that long-drawn, basso profundo plea, coming at five second intervals: "Ho-o-o-l-d 'em, Nevada, Ho-o-o-l-d 'em, Nevada." Hold 'em, France and England. Help is coming.

SCHWAB TELLS HIS GREAT SECRET

THE greatness of such men as Charles M. Schwab consists of an ability to "get things done" as much as of an individual capacity for doing things. Given his clarity of vision, his sense of proportion, his indomitable courage and his dynamic energy, and yet he would fall short of his ultimate capacity for great achievement if he failed to apprehend, seize and apply the potential cooperation of those about him.

Charles M. Schwab has had nothing to say about the fault-finders, the office strategists, the desk warriors and the crepe-hangers who are the self-appointed critics and monitors of every fact and factor in our government's conduct of the war.

"I have never yet seen a man who could do real work except under the stimulus of encouragement and enthusiasm and the approval of the people for whom he is working."

How much he may have depended upon that kind of encouragement and approval for the accomplishment of his own wonderful deeds in big business we may never know. But every one who has come in contact with the world's greatest industrial captain knows that the heart of his incomparable system of constructive enterprise is energized and sustained by the utterly human, wise and generous thought expressed in the one sentence quoted.

How little they know about the almost elemental wisdom and simple effectiveness of Mr. Schwab's proved and infallible method of getting things done properly. For employers, teachers, critics and all leaders and would-be protagonists of men that short and sententious remark (don't call it a maxim) of Schwab's is worth remembering:

"I have never yet seen a man who could do real work except under the stimulus of encouragement and enthusiasm and the approval of the people for whom he is working."

HE FIGHTETH BEST WHO SMILETH MOST

WAR is as complex a piece of mechanism nowadays as a marine engine. It is no longer a case of take the musket off the entlers, sling on the powder horn and bullet flask and go out on the main traveled road and become a hero.

Now, while every resource of this government is being strained to produce an army that will be victorious, with equipment that will guarantee it success, it is well to get back to the man for a moment and inquire how he feels, with all the fuss that is being made over the mechanism which he will control.

Now, here's how we can fix him all right. Just buy him a smileage book. Art Keenan's got 'em.

Who will invent a protective mask against the poison gas of Hun propaganda?

UNITED STATES EXPECTS TO HAVE REAL NATIONAL ANTHEM AT LAST

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 30.—After nearly a century and a half of delay the United States seems about to acquire a national anthem.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" would be adopted as the officially recognized hymn of the republic under a resolution by Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, now pending in the house.

Army and navy regulations long have designated the "Star-Spangled Banner" as the official anthem and provide that officers and men shall stand at attention while it is being played or sung.

Every land has a national anthem identified inseparably with its life. The sonorous strains of the "Marsellaise" breathe the indomitable spirit, the achievements and the aspirations of France.

Key, just before he wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner," had been appointed an emissary from the town of Marlborough in Maryland to the British commander to procure the release of a captured Marlborough physician.

An effective musical vehicle for the poem was found in the jovial old British song, "Anacreon in Heaven," the authorship of which is in controversy.

"America" has a powerful hold on the people of this country, but it is considered by many unsuitable for official recognition because its melody is identical with that of England's "God Save the King."

"Russia seems to be forever doomed to mass poverty" by a more developed people. If low productivity and waste cause the things produced by the factories to be very scarce and dear, the disgruntled peasants may in time lose faith in the Trotsky-Lenine program.

"I am often asked the question whether Lenin and Trotsky are not agents of Germany. I have no means of knowing, but I found no one who in private conversation avowed such a belief.

"In order to meet this condition the legation of Switzerland and the legation of Sweden, in charge respectively, of German and Austro-Hungarian interests in the United States, have with the approval and co-operation of this government undertaken to systematize and supervise all the relief that may be given to needy enemy aliens, wherever and however situated throughout the country.

Secretary Lansing announced the arrangement yesterday in this statement: "In the interests of safety and welfare of this country it has been found necessary from time to time to restrict the movements and fields of employment of enemy aliens."

"The case of the law-abiding enemy aliens has presented a more complex problem. This it is proposed to meet by the formation of a national committee composed of American citizens, which, in co-operation with the legations of Switzerland and Sweden and the consuls under their jurisdiction, will investigate all cases of distress among this class and will control the collection and distribution of all funds that may be subscribed for the purpose of their relief."

melody is identical with that of England's "God Save the King." Yankee Doodle, although sung through all the nation's wars, is thought too light, and in the south, at least, is unfortunately believed to carry a note of sectionalism.

The majestic "Battle Hymn of the Republic," musicians claim, falls short of the standard, while "The Red, White and Blue," "Roll Round the Flag" and others also are said to be unsuitable.

It will, of course, have local committees working under it whenever the need of such committees is felt, and will render accounts of its activities to the proper authorities.

"I feel confident that the intelligent and controlled relief of enemy aliens in distress in accordance with the proposed methods is a humanitarian measure in accord with the spirit in which we have undertaken to carry out this war."

There is no obligation in existing treaties for such treatment of enemy aliens as is proposed. In Germany and Austria many such have been detained and most of them are largely dependent for support on the food supplies sent in through the Red Cross or other organizations.

In the case of enemy aliens who are now interned, the United States is liable for the cost of their maintenance as in the case of any lawbreaker or suspect.

The music of the "Star-Spangled Banner" has been adversely criticized because its wide range makes its singing difficult for the average crowd. Yet, its appeal has increased through a century to the point where it would be difficult to displace it in the affections of the American people.
