COMMUNAL FARMING TO RAISE FOOD IN BAVARIA

(Correspondence Associated Press) MUNICH, Dec. 15.—Describing the Bavarian food situation before the workmen's council at a meeting last night, Minister of the Interior Auer estimated the wheat crop at 5,200,000 tons, but declared that fully 900,000 tons of this amount had already been taken and not more than one half of the remainder would be available.

This, he said, asserted by the entire empire only until February 7. The minister said he had reliable information from abroad that the recent disorders in Munich had affected the possibilities of importation unfavorably, and had driven values still further down. Dishonest dealing and hoarding, he continued, had added materially to the difficulty of the situation.

Potato deliveries had improved somewhat in spite of the fact that great quantities had frozen when workers refused to remove them from the fields, and the majority of the cities would receive from 75 to 100 per cent of the usual supply. More cattle had been offered in the markets than he said, than had been taken because the peasants wanted ready money. This would result in a shortage next spring, and in consequence an increase in meat ration would be possible.

Milk delivery was somewhat better, but cheese was worse while the production of butter was somewhat behind last year. These features, coupled with hoarding and unfair trading, he asserted, made it evident that the fat ration must be reduced. Minister Auer concluded with the declaration that communal farming must be put into operation as soon as possible in order that production of all farm products might be increased since the low value of the mark made very difficult the importation of food even if it were possible to buy food outside the country. When it was possible to import, however, he believed the food situation for Bavaria would be materially bettered.

WAR INDUSTRIES OF MONTANA PROSTRATED BY THE ARMISTICE

(By Associated Press) HELENA, Mont., Jan. 20.—The close of the war is likely to have only slightly perceptible effect on industries of Montana so far as most of the state's business activity is concerned, it is believed by state officials here. Although its copper mines, as well as those producing lead and coal, probably were worked to a greater extent than if there had been no war, it is not expected that a slackening of the demand for these products will cause a material falling off in the production soon.

As far as agriculture is concerned, the high price for wheat and the government guarantee had the effect of inducing the farmers of the state to plant a larger acreage of grain with the result that tens of thousands of acres of land have been broken which, except for the war, probably would not have been put under the plow. With the returning soldiers of this and other states who are expected to seek opportunities on the farm, it is expected that this agricultural development will continue.

Montana had few of what are usually termed war industries, said Charles D. Greenfield, Sr., secretary of the state council of defense. There was but one industry established in the state solely by reason of the war. This was the mining and treatment of manganese ore. In the Butte district and also at Phillipsburg, in Yellowstone county, there are large deposits of manganese. These were opened up, concentrating plants were erected and the product shipped to various steel mills.

Although the war demand for labor resulted in the employment of some 2000 women in places of men in various industries, according to the estimate of the state industrial council board, it is not expected that more than half of them will return to their former work, such as business handlers, machine operators and clerks are expected to be replaced shortly by men.

NEW NEWSPAPERS GROWING POPULAR

(City Associated Press) LONDON, Jan. 20.—With the lifting of an embargo on newspapers, a wartime measure, an announcement is made of another Sunday paper for London, the Sunday Express, which is being produced by the publishers of the Daily Express. Lord Beaverbrook, who was until recently minister of information, is understood to be devoting his personal attention to this venture.

The war produced four new publications, all Sunday papers, the National News, the Evening Telegram and the Sunday Pictorial and the Sunday Herald. Two dailies disappeared, the Standard and the Citizen.

ISLAND OF CORFU BECOMES CEMETERY

(Correspondence Associated Press) CORFU, Dec. 22. Now that the Serbian government and civilian refugees have returned to their native country, this little island of the Greek coast, to which they were driven by the Austrian invasion has resumed its pre-war appearance.

Across the harbor, however, is solemn and mute evidence of the terrible misery and privation suffered by the Serbian army and population in their tragic retreat of 1915. On a small grass-covered island, now called by the natives "the island of the dead" are several hastily made cemeteries where are buried thousands of victims, soldiers and civilians alike, who succumbed to starvation and disease in the headlong flight of the Serbians three years ago.
