IMPETUS TO MINING

ACCORDING to Henry Rives, secretary of the Nevada Mine Operators Association, the new revenue bill contains a provision which exempts all net profits derived from the mining for gold from payment of the excess profit tax or from the sur-tax. This makes it applicable to corporations and individuals operating gold mines for the purpose of stimulating the production of gold. This is a sensible subsidy to encourage the introduction of capital in this industry and one, which, no doubt, will stimulate interest in the numerous offerings of companies proposing to operate on the Divide. The details of the measure have not been received and some doubt exists to what extent it will benefit the silver-gold mines of this district but, it is conjectured that the immunity from taxation may be claimed justly by Tonopah and Divide producers for the reason that the production of gold is correlated to the production of silver and that one cannot go on without the other.

The new revenue bill also provides that the capital value of a mine acquired since March, 1913, may be fixed according to the value at the time of discovery or thirty days thereafter for the purpose of paying the excess profits' tax. This means that a mine on which only $5000 worth of development work has been done but which is worth many times that much can use the amount it is worth for the purpose of fixing the excess profit tax. Under the old system if only $5000 worth of development work had been done and the profits from the mine amounted to $10,000 then a 200 per cent tax would be levied, where in reality the mine may have been worth $100,000 and the $10,000 profit amounts to only 10 per cent of the value of the mine.

NO CONFIDENCE IN THE GOVERNOR

BY passing the boxing bill over the veto the senate and assembly served notice on Governor Boyle that he and his ideals were not acceptable to the people of Nevada. The governor pretends that he is looking after the morals of the state and he assumes that it is his bounden duty to act as censor on the doings of all classes of citizens. He is entitled to his opinion but it is not too late to take warning that this is a state where the men and women are endowed with liberal ideas and who will not submit to any puritanical concepts that would consign them to eternal damnation for indulging in a little rational pleasure. The governor is one of the mossback class that would justify the use of the stocks and the whipping post to make object lessons of those who run counter to his wishes. He forgets one of the greatest mottoes that ever was penned provides that bear and forbear are the sterling watchwords of life and in living up to these ideals he and everybody else has to submit with discretion to the will of the majority. In opposing the prize fight law, the governor acted as the special guardian of the morals of Reno without regard to the remainder of the state. He said Reno was a pretty place that should not be spoiled by the presence of odious malefactors and analogous characters who are supposed to follow in the train of the manly sport. As the self-appointed conservator of Reno Mr. Boyle would have it understood that the residents of that burg were a unit in their opposition. The vote shows that Washoe county is nothing more than human after all and that her representatives and senators are just as eager to see legalized exhibitions of boxing as the citizens of any other section. Nevertheless it is going a long way out of the straight path to find an excuse for opposing the boxing bill by selecting one town instead of urging or opposing legislation seeking to advance the welfare of the entire state. It does not necessarily follow that Reno is likely to be chosen for any great boxing match that may be pulled off for it is conceded that the mining camps would offer better opportunities and bigger purses for athletic events conducted under this statute. For instance there is not a better or more liberal town in the state than little old Tonopah which has the reputation of offering the most liberal purses or hanging up the highest premiums for all contests involving physical development. The Fourth of July sports are an excellent illustration of this liberality and patronage found in the mining camps. They always attract a large attendance from outside cities and the results are invariably on the square with the best man winning and his competitors cheerfully applauding the victory. Under existing conditions Reno has the advantage of being close to the California line which would permit the sporting element to slake their thirst without having to carry their own beverages along from more fortunate states. If there is to be any bidding for the big event then it is time to count Tonopah in on the game. If Reno is so reluctant as the governor says about having the presence of the sporting element within her gates for a short period this camp will cheerfully take the match off her hands and take care of every one attending in the splendid spirit of hospitality that has made the name of the camp synonymous for enterprise and generosity.

ANOTHER DEFEAT IN SIGHT

THE governor must be having bad dreams these nights since the legislature took the bit in its teeth and is proceeding to legislate for the people rather than to suit the caprices of the man occupying the executive mansion at Carson City. The first move to regenerate the state police force in the interest of the prohibition element was defeated by a vote that should warn the governor that he is not going to have all the state machinery he is anticipating at his disposal. The bill which acted as a test measure was known as the Phillips bill which provided for restoring the position of superintendent of state police instead of retaining the present supervision in the hands of the warden of the state prison. It was frankly admitted that this was the first step toward establishing a $100,000 state police force ostensibly in behalf of the prohibition element but actually, as a gag in the state Democratic machine. By restoring the office of superintendent the state would have another salary to pay, the appointment would come from the governor and the nominee would naturally be a man who would work in close conjunction with the governor. Through this action in refusing to sanction the appointment of a state superintendent of police the way is paved for sidestepping the next measure of the same class which would add a regiment of secret agents gunshooting around the state and spying through keyholes to discover what is going on in the family circle. Defeat of the Phillips bill carries with it the inference that the men who voted against it will continue their good work until they hang the pelt of the prohibition law on the barb wire to dry.

Carson City would capitalize patriotism by moving for the erection of a monument to the war heroes originating in this state. The idea is good enough, but why should an appropriation of $80,000 be demanded for such a testimonial? If we are going to indulge in any ventures of this kind let the monument be built where it will be seen.

Uniform accounting is provided by a bill introduced in the assembly. If there is much more of this sort of thing imposed on the counties it will be necessary to raise the tax rate in order to buy more stationery.

THE PICTURES FROM HOME CHEER BOYS WITH ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN LONELY WATCH ON THE RHINE

(Correspondence Associated Press) PARIS, Feb. 10.—The American soldier wants more than anything else in the world right now, to go home. For the 90,000 or more who still have weary weeks ahead of them here and with the army of occupation the next best thing is to see pictures of their home towns.

These pictures are being shown to them in the miles and miles of films called "Smiles" distributed to the camp by the Community Motion Picture Bureau of the Young Men's Christian Association. Probably there are a hundred miles of the films.

The movies are taken everywhere, from the Times Square to the Cliff House. They show the familiar streets and the familiar landmarks and the familiar faces and then they are rushed over here to the boys and to say that they are welcomed is putting it mildly indeed.

The pictures are not shown indiscriminately. When a picture from New York or Kansas City or Seattle, or anywhere else, arrives it is sent immediately to the military organizations hailing from that particular locality and it only needs a simple announcement to the effect that a home town movie will be shown to back the Young Men's Christian Association but or theatre to the limit as many times as it is possible to show the film before taps blows.

Some days ago in Coblenz, while a picture from Chicago was being shown a soldier rose from his seat and shouted, "There's my dog," then, after a pause he added, "and that's my brother with him."

MOVEMENT TO SAVE TAHITIAN MONUMENT

(By Associated Press) PAPERETE, Island of Tahiti, Feb. 7.—(By Mail)—There has been a revival of interest here among Europeans residing on the island in the history and lore of Tahiti inspired by a wish to identify and preserve landmarks of historic value which, if left for any considerable period, would be lost to the memory of man.

Among the relics preserved has been the proper marking of the burial place of the Reverend Henry Nott, one of the first, and considered the greatest, of the missionaries who came to the South Seas in the early days.

The mission sent out from England to Tahiti in 1796 was the first undertaken by the London Missionary society after its formation. The Reverend Henry Nott was of this company who landed from the ship Duff, commanded by Captain James Wilson, at Matavai bay, Tahiti, in 1797. From that time until his death in 1844 he labored without ceasing in the island. It was he who first translated the scriptures, directly from the original Hebrew and Greek texts, into the Tahitian language. He alone, of all the missionaries who were on the island during the troublous times in the opening of the nineteenth century when the island was torn and devastated by intertribal wars, remained steadfastly at his post.

Strange it may seem, information in regard to Mr. Nott obtainable at the headquarters of the London Missionary society in London is meager. One of the three Europeans who have been interested in finding and marking his resting place, made inquiries during a recent visit to the English capital as to what knowledge the society had of him. It was discovered that the society had no record of Mr. Nott's death, nor did they know where he was buried. All they could say was that as the years rolled by Mr. Nott's fame as a great missionary increased and more and more interest was being shown in his commanding personality.

His grave, long neglected and nearly forgotten, now is properly marked. A substantial wall has been built around it and the natives of the district, remembering the debt they owe his memory, have filled the enclosure with flowering plants.

Ellis, Polynesian Researcher, considered as the most authoritative book on old Tahiti, is regarded as the best source of information on the work of Mr. Nott in the islands. It was Mr. Nott that Mr. Ellis, who came to the islands in 1818, obtained the knowledge of native lore and customs.

WYOMING HAS YOUNG EXECUTIVES

(By Associated Press) CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 7.—Robert D. Carey, governor of Wyoming, is no exception to the precedent that young men have been in charge of state affairs since Wyoming entered the union. Only four of the eleven governors the state had were past 50 years of age when inaugurated. J. M. Carey, father of the present governor, was the oldest governor the state has had, being 66 when inaugurated. Governor Carey is 49 years old.

Wyoming's youngest governor was J. E. Osborne, who assumed office at 33; F. E. Warren, was 46; A. W. Barber, 41; W. A. Richards, 46; Dr. F. Richards, 53; Fenimore Chatterton, 43; B. B. Brooks, 43; John B. Kendrick, 57; Frank L. Houx, 57.

BROKE HIS NECK AND STILL LIVES

(By Associated Press) CAMP SHERMAN, Chillicothe, Ohio, March 7.—Lieutenant John A. Logan, U. S. A., of Cleveland, is one of the few men who have sustained broken necks and is still alive to tell the story of how it happened. The lieutenant is in the base hospital here, and attending surgeons say, that he will enjoy life for many years to come despite the broken neck.

Lieutenant Logan, an aviator, sustained the injury while on duty in France. He went up one day over the Vosges sector, and engaged several German planes. A piece of shell from one of the enemy's guns put his motor out of commission, and the officer was forced to volplane. He lost control, and had the preference of landing on a house or landing on the ground. He chose the latter, and when he was dragged from the wrecked machine it was found that he had received only a few slight scratches. He rejoined his squadron, being able to walk, but that night his right side became paralyzed. Surgeons made an examination, and it was found that Logan's neck was broken. This was the fourth accident in which Lieutenant Logan figures, for previous to going into active service he was injured in three training accidents.

RECIPROCITY IN DECIDING CASES

(By Associated Press) MEXICO CITY, March 7.—Passing on a case which originated in a Santa Cruz, Ariz., court, the supreme court of Mexico recently ruled that "judicial reciprocity" is in effect between Mexico and the United States. The decision provides that, where a case involving property in Mexico is tried in an American court having jurisdiction over the litigants, the decisions of that court must be carried out in this country.
