

NIGHT SCHOOLS IN ARMY LIFE BEAR GOOD FRUIT IN FRANCE

(Correspondence Associated Press) PARIS, May 5.—Scores of thousands of American soldiers eagerly have grasped the opportunity to attend the schools which the army now is providing for all the men of the American expeditionary force, under the direction of the educational corps.

The post schools which are primary grades of this school system are used wherever they can find a roof to shelter them. Floundering through the mud of some little hamlet where American soldiers are stationed, one is likely to stumble upon such a school in full operation. An army chaplain recently chanced upon such a school the pupils of which were standing on benches because the floor was under six inches of water and in a room dimly lighted by candles stuck in bottles. The sergeant-teacher was using a piece of tarred paper as a blackboard. It was 11 o'clock at night and fourteen men whose military duties prevented them from attending in regular hours composed the extra class.

This little scene is symbolic of the spirit with which the American soldier has taken advantage of the educational training offered them by the army school system.

Men in some cases are working eight, 10 and 12 hours a day at military duties and then studying at night in the post schools, tired in body but doggedly determined. In some cases they have voluntarily worked at night so as to be allowed to attend a lecture or school session in the daytime. Illiterate men who have been taught to read and write often ask permission to take their dog-eared primers home with them when their divisions start for America. Thousands of such men have been started on the road to education in the past few months. But it must not be mistakenly assumed that all the soldier boys are coming back with a higher education. The big idea of the educational corps is to give a man a start and enable him to "find himself," so to speak. Many a soldier has been a round peg in a square hole back home. The army is helping these men to get started on the right groove.

Practically is the keyword of all the educational courses. The soldier is not going to school merely for the "fun of it." He wants results that will help him with his job back home and he is getting them. Vocational training is an important and successful feature of the post school and there are few trades that are not covered.

DISCHARGED SOLDIER SUICIDES AT CARLIN Ira D. Molen, who had lately been discharged from the army, committed suicide at Carlin Saturday by taking strychnine, and when found he was in another man's room and had been dead for some time. It seems that he had applied for work at the railroad camp near Carlin and on being unable to secure employment went to Carlin, where he was seen for a couple of days, and it is believed that, failing to secure employment, the man became despondent and killed himself. His parents live at Sugar City, Idaho, where the body has been shipped for burial.—Elko Free Press

HUMBOLDT WATER IS BEING WASTED W. C. Noteware, who has been looking over the water situation in Elko, Eureka and Lander counties, states that the river is falling rapidly east of Winnemucca due to the large proportions that are being made by the big ranches along the river. A great part of this water, Mr. Noteware says is being wasted by being diverted on to uncleared land. As a result very little water is now reaching Lovelock and there is practically none stored in the Humboldt-Lovelock company's reservoirs near Humboldt House.

BIG FALLON RANCH WAS SOLD EARLY THIS WEEK One of the oldest ranches in this country was sold this week when Ramon Artzabalaga purchased the Boyer ranch near here from the Churchill County Livestock company for about $50,000. This ranch includes 160 acres of patented land and several hundred acres of land which are under lease and contract. The Churchill County Livestock company, which is composed of George B. Williams and E. E. Cann, has owned this ranch for many years and it was used as a sheep and cattle range.—Review Miner are not taught in some of them. In the academic course, history, English and mathematics hold the major places. If there is sufficient demand, for the teaching of a given subject it is placed on the curriculum.

Agricultural courses are provided in many of the schools and find many pupils. Fifty per cent of the men in the army are from rural districts and many of them intend to return to their farms. Thousands of city men who have had their first days of outdoor life since they joined the army declare they will never return to the office stool. They like the independence of the farmer and hope to go into agricultural work when they return.

The practical phases of farming are being taught to the men. Teaching of citizenship is an important course. Under this head comes labor problems and subjects vital to the national welfare.
