PRINCE WALES VISITS MINERS UNDERGROUND

(Correspondence Associated Press)
LONDON, July 1.—Children strewed with flowers the path of the Prince of Wales and bombarded his automobile with roses when he visited recently the coal mining regions of South Wales and went down into a mine. The prince scored with the coal miners of Rhondda Valley by telling them that it was not his fault that it was his first visit and that his absence was due to the war.

On his way to the mine he surprised one woman by asking her to see her house and garden. He stopped his car when another woman held up her baby to give him a rose.

Arriving at Cwynne pit, the prince donned the cap and overalls of a miner, and gratefully accepted from the foreman a silver safety lamp, the gift of the management. Miners and their families crowded around him, and cheered while the prince waited for the cage to rise from the depths of the shaft.

Suddenly there was heard the sound of singing apparently from the bowels of the earth. The cage came into view bringing a small party of miners, black with coal-dust, straight from the toil of the pit and singing a Welsh anthem.

When the singing stopped the prince and his official guides then stepped into the cage, and swiftly, but very carefully, were lowered into the mine.

At the bottom of the shaft some one had written on a bank flume with white chalk, "Welcome to our soldier prince." The prince was manifestly pleased and asking for chalk wrote beside it "Thank you" and signed it "Edward P."

Then they took him through the mines, showed him the ventilation system which guards the lives of the hundreds of men and boys while they work, showed him the "working faces" where miners were digging coal, and explained to him some of the difficulties attending the underground life of the toilers.

He insisted on trying it himself, and taking the pick handed to him by a crumy old miner, struck a few vigorous blows. Later, while thanking the people for his reception, he said he could appreciate the strenuous character of a miner's work.
