

KAISER'S MUGS ARE TORN DOWN

(Correspondence Associated Press)
 BERLIN, July 2.—The question whether photos, chronos or busts of the dethroned German emperor are to be tolerated in official buildings and public schools, has come up again for discussion before the Prussian diet which was informed, by Konrad Haensch, the minister of education that, despite his efforts to leave the delicate task to the final judgment of the respective officials, numerous instances have been reported to his ministry to the effect that the Hohenzollern emblems which once were removed, have been restorationally restored.

This prompted him to issue a new edict which orders the definite removal of such pictures and other reminders with the exception of art products.

Haensch was applauded by the left who declared that the reminders of "old career days" could be no more tolerated than were the Republican enemies under the old regime.

He suggested that the iconoclastic operations should proceed with as little demonstration as possible and recommended teachers to use their summer vacation for the job of packing up the painted, etched and marbled Hohenzollern.

LABOR TEMPLE WILL BE BUILT

(Correspondence Associated Press)
 LONDON, July 1.—Representatives of the principal labor organizations have taken steps for the erection in London of a building intended to be the finest headquarters of any democratic movement to be found in the world as Arthur Henderson, labor leader, explained to the meeting which launched the project.

It is to be erected in Westminster district near parliament, and will contain the headquarters of the Trade Union Congress, the British Labor Party (which is a political party with an organization distinct from the trade unions), and the co-operative trading bodies, which are powerful in the industrial centers.

There are to be committee rooms, offices for the staffs, reference library, reading rooms, hotel and restaurant. It is proposed to establish a permanent exhibition of co-operative products.

BELMONT TAKES BELL COPPER

Reports from Tonopah are to the effect that the Belmont Development company was taken over, by purchase, the Bell Copper company, formerly the Contact Copper company. The property consists of a number of patented claims on the extreme eastern end of the Simon district in the Cedar Range, and about six miles east of the Simon Silver-Lead mine. The stock in the company is held by Salt Lake parties and W. R. Smith of Mina. The price paid is not mentioned, but it is reported that the deal calls for a cash payment of $11,000 and the price paid for the stock is 2 1/2 cents per share. This is one of the biggest deals yet made in the Simon district, and in the hands of the Tonopah Belmont Development company. It also means the extensive development of the east end of the Simon district, and a regular boom for that section.

While the character of the ore is copper it carries three to four ounces in gold, besides the silver values. The General Mines company had a lease and bond on it before the general slump in copper, and under the management of Rackerliff & Walsh, acting for that company, it is reported that $200,000 worth of ore has been extracted from the workings, which, where the big glory hole was opened up, are about 40 feet in depth. With systematic and extensive development, such as is characteristic of the Belmont people, competent mining men are of the opinion that it is one of the biggest mines in the district. Just a short distance from this property is located what was formerly known as the Copper Blossom, now owned by Tonopah people. Shipments of ore from this property, although copper, ran $212 per ton, principally in gold.—Western Nevada Miner.

FLOGGING BOYS STILL IN VOGUE

 LONDON, July 1.—The old custom of flogging students is still in vogue in British colleges, whose students are as old as the average American college man. The custom is most followed in the higher class institutions, so that to have been flogged at school or college is said to be the mark of an aristocrat.

At Cheltenham college the students laced Barnwell, the former tender of the college baths because he had deserted the baths for higher wages in an aircraft factory. They bombarded Barnwell's house with bricks. Thereupon, Barnwell's workmates, with several hundred of the populace marched to the college and told their story to the principal, Archdeacon Waterfield. It was agreed that the students should pay damages and be flogged by the archdeacon. This was satisfactory to all concerned, including the students.

Because of the number to undergo castigation, lots were drawn so that one out of ten of the student body should get the whipl. This also was satisfactory to the students. But this sporting spirit so impressed the bath-keeper's faction that they proposed that both sides shake hands and call it off, which was done with mutual regrets and compliments.

WOMAN CAUGHT BETWEEN TRAINS, BADLY BRUISED

Mrs. Sadie Dawson, assistant to County Treasurer Dunkle, narrowly missed death when she was hit by an outgoing freight train, fifty yards west of the Reno station at Center street. She escaped with only severe contusions and shock.

The V & T train had just arrived and the passengers had left it. A long freight train, drawn by a big mallet engine, started to pull out on the track next to the V & T. At the same time the V & T started to back up and Mrs. Dawson, standing between the two trains, became excited according to witnesses, and started to outrun the freight train and get on the other side.

She was struck by the engine of the freight, thrown and rolled against the V & T train. Then, witnesses say she seemed to bounce back and forth between the two trains, sometimes appearing to be beneath the freight but being saved by her dress catching a projection. The engineer of the freight brought his train to a stop and she was picked up.

Mrs. Dawson is the widow of Dwight Dawson, who was postmaster of Reno for several years.

PUTTING A KICK IN ROOT BEER

(By Associated Press)
 PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Root beer made at home may not always be as innocent as its name. Professor Charles H. La Wall, dean of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, cautions the public to look out for the kick. The home brew, he finds, has an alcoholic content of 1.77 per cent.

"It will take gallons to produce the familiar dizziness," he said, "but it may provide some exhilaration."

"I was surprised recently," declared the professor, "to notice a friend coughing a little after drinking several glasses of home-made root beer. I became interested and began an analysis of some of the beverage. The result was surprising. I found that the alcoholic content was much greater than I had supposed."

"I discovered that after standing five days the beverage contained 53 per cent of alcohol; after ten days the percentage jumped to 136 and a day or so later had climbed to 177. The alcohol came from a natural fermentation."

MINE CLOSED DOWN BECAUSE BANDITS

(By Associated Press)
 EL PASO, July 28.—The presence of forty Villa followers under Miguel Holguin in the Villa Ahumada district eighty-five miles south of Juarez, caused the Erupcion Mining company to suspend all operations at its mine. E. P. Knotts, president of the company, announced today. The Erupcion company is owned by New York and El Paso men. The mine is located forty miles east of Villa Ahumada, where a federal garrison is stationed, but no protection has been given the mine, the officials stated. The mine office and store were looted by Villa on his march to Juarez in June.
