NO SUCH THING AS MAD DOGS.

THE "HYDROPHOBIA" season is now here. Hydrophobia is "scarcely" rare so rare that pound keepers in cities like Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Denver, after being "bit" scores of times, have never seen any such thing as hydrophobia. Sending heads or carcasses of dogs to laboratories "analyzing" "salts," although it is only a few years since any person presented to the germ of rabies. The Pasteur Institutes are "measuring" grafts. A celebrated French physician has said: "Pasteur does not cure hydrophobia; he gives it."

The only result of the establishment of a Pasteur institute in any part of the world has been an enormous increase in cases and deaths reported to have occurred from hydrophobia, and the one result where there has been no single case reported for years is England, where—thanks to the protests of the anti-vivisectionists, there is no Pasteur institute to play upon the credulity of the ignorant.

The something that goes under the name of hydrophobia does occur, but it is easily cured by what is known as the Buisson method, which consists simply in a course of sweating in a vapor bath, such as may easily be carried out in any Turkish or Russian bath establishment or at home. This has been demonstrated over and over again in this country, in France, in England, and in India, and has never failed to cure, even advanced cases.

Dogs will go mad when they are tortured beyond endurance. So will men. Dogs will go mad in hot weather, when deprived of water. So will men. Dogs do not perspire through the skin. Hence, it is a refinement of cruelty to muzzle them. Instead of a muzzling law, there should be a law compelling people to furnish water to dogs, as in some German cities, where each household is compelled to keep in front of the house a pan of water for dogs. This, in the home of "frighthfulness," and where they have no hot, dry summers, like ours.

Dogs that are fed on carrion become worm-infested, and sometimes go mad from that cause. Dogs become savage when fed exclusively on meat, as do all animals, including man, especially when they get little exercise. The bite of any carnivorous animal, especially when angry, is poisonous. This includes men who eat largely of flesh.

SICKENING ADMINISTRATIVE INEFFICIENCY.

EVERY WAR is accompanied by unavoidable loss, but no war has ever been marked by such a record for inefficiency, criminal carelessness and wanton waste as that made by the present Democratic administration at Washington. It has piled up superfluous expenditures never before inflicted on any people and under which no other nation but our own could have stood up. That the United States did sustain the burden was due to the self-denial and sacrifice of the citizens.

A glaring instance of the wanton destruction of national property has just been furnished in the report of the burning of 115 new army airplanes at Colombes Les Belles in France. This conflagration, that promises to become historic, was called by the soldiers who witnessed it "the $1,000,000 fire." Evidently the military authorities were in "the" embarrassed at this wholesale destruction, for they had arms if means to prevent any photographs being taken. But of course the orders of the War Department had to be carried out.

The burning of the finished product was but the climax to a long list of blunders and blunders in supplying the fuel for the war. By billions as to the spruce contracts alone have fixed the record of inefficiency. If nothing worse—on those responsible for the administration of the program. The government paid $200,000,000 for spruce when private concerns were producing it for $100,000,000. In the government spruce camps stores were left to rot on the wayside, staves allowed to be eaten up by bees and holes of plank roads that were never used built into the ground were never tapped.

Having by various methods of taxation and financial engineering raised the many billions necessary for winning the war, the government apparently imagined its responsibility to the people ended in carnage and. The money was spent, the war was won, that portion of the loss that the present generation did not pay by direct taxation the next generation would have to make good through interest on bonded indebtedness.

So a billion and a half dollars worth of supplies that the people had bought for their armies in France are to be turned over to the French buyers by the government for about three million dollars. Another item for which the people have already footed the bill consists of 200,000,000 pounds of ham and bacon, left over when the war was started. This meat is still being held in stores, when it is rapidly deteriorating, though swine are now too plentiful to eat before perishing. So, whereas the nation for the last nine months might have been selling meat, it is now merely paying for another dead horse—like the airplanes whose ashes enrich the fields of Colombes Les Belles.

There are other blunders for which the people are still being taxed. A special War Risk Insurance employing 2500 clerks, selected clerks, all Democrats, is still attending to the soldiers' insurance business, although Director Lindsay of the Douglas Bureau long ago informed the administration that his bureau could easily handle all such matters. His office was equipped with competent help—the new War Risk Department was composed of green hands. Disgusted with such determined inefficiency, Director Lindsay resigned. But the people are still paying the salaries of those superfluous 2500 clerks.

LET THE PEOPLE KNOW.

A LEADING Democratic paper of the Pacific northwest asserts that if the Senate refuses to accept the president's "fair offer" to place all the information he possesses at their disposal, they will stand under a terrible indictment. Then what will the president himself be under if he fails to make good his offer? But it is not the senate alone that wants information. The senate is merely the servant of the people of the United States. The people of the country want the information, and the president can give it to them by going to the senate and addressing them fully, setting forth the reasons for the objectionable features of the peace treaty, the meaning of the obscure provisions of the league of nations covenant, and the steps in the negotiations which resulted in his agreeing to a contract which requires this nation to make what he calls a "supreme sacrifice."

A prominent educator out west is quoted as saying that one-fourth of the American soldiers in France could not read. And yet President Wilson vetoed an immigration bill that contained a provision for a literacy test.

AMUSEMENTS

TOM MOORE IN A THRILLING COMEDY DRAMA

Unique and replete with touches of originality is the description given of "A Man and His Money," the new Goldwyn picture in which Tom Moore will be seen at the Butler theater today. "A Man and His Money" tells the story of a young man who is made aware of the futility of his life when his fiancée breaks their engagement. Promptly he gives up his luxurious bachelor quarters, assigns his income to an attorney, and resolves to make his own living. Naturally, his larger adventures begin at this point. Forced by necessity, he becomes caretaker of a wealthy woman's four dogs, thereby earning the added contempt of the girl he still loves when she sees him at his lowly tasks. But Harry does not give up his job, for he sees that the girl is on the brink of great danger. His efforts to save her with out causing her too great alarm, and his success in doing so, bring about a climax as amazing as it is thrilling. The other feature on today's bill is the talented and beautiful Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail." Tomorrow Marguerite Clark in "Three Men and a Girl."

END OF WAR STIMULATES SOCIAL LIFE IN MEXICO

(Correspondence Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, July 14.—The end of the war has brought a revival in this city's social life which, throughout the war, reflected the serious mood that prevailed in the capitals of so many other governments. The various foreign colonies which contribute much to society here have resumed a schedule of balls, recep-

State spinners and constables are so true to life because nobody ever saw anything like them in real life. When he plays on your emotions he's probably working on your pocketbook. If a man could invent a method of shaving a beard without shaving, that man could be elected president of the United States by a vote that would be unanimous except for the lawyers. A philosopher is one who knows why others should bear their troubles gladly. Then there's the nut who prides his wife in public and gives her heck at home.
