JUSTICE WHITE OF SUPREME COURT DEAD

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19.—The death here this morning of Edward Douglass White, veteran chief justice of the United States supreme court, has cast a shadow of sorrow over the national capital where, during his long years of service on the supreme bench, he had grown in admiration and esteem not only of his official associates, but of the entire community.

Chief Justice Edward Douglass White was, strictly speaking, the lone representative of the south on the supreme bench for a number of years. Coming from a family of judges, his father and his grandfather before him having been on the bench, Chief Justice White had a judicial inheritance as well as legal training. His knowledge of the civil law was generally regarded as the most profound of any man who ever sat on the bench of the supreme court of the United States.

In 1891 Mr. White became a national figure. A sensational contest was waged in Louisiana, and he entered the race. He had managed the campaign of Governor Nicholas for reelection and had been prominent in the reform element of Louisiana. He had fought vigorously in favor of the anti-lottery movement. The legislature finally chose him to succeed Senator Eustis.

Chief Justice White was in the senate three years before he was elevated to the bench of the supreme court of the United States by President Cleveland in 1894. During that period he distinguished himself on two occasions. Once was in the debate on the anti-option law, when Senator White made a profound legal argument against the constitutionality of the measure. The other occasion was during the struggle over the repeal of the Sherman act, when he advocated the views President Cleveland was known to entertain on the subject. His nomination to the bench ended a memorable contest in the senate. Two New Yorkers had been nominated by President Cleveland, but both failed of confirmation. Throwing to the winds the custom which for 88 years had kept a New York man on the bench, Mr. Cleveland named Senator White. He was confirmed within an hour.

Almost as unusual as his appointment as associate justice was his elevation to the chief justiceship. In 1910, when President Taft was besieged by various factions of the Republican party to appoint first this man and then that to succeed Chief Justice Fuller, the president boldly disregarded the custom regarding the selection of justices from his own party and that precedent frowning on the promotion of an associate justice to the chief justiceship, and sent to the senate the nomination of Justice White. His nomination was confirmed immediately.

Funeral services for the late chief justice will be private. They will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday at St. Matthew's Cathedral church and will be conducted by the rector, Rt. Rev. Messenger Lee. Interment will be in Oakhill cemetery, Germantown. Justices of the supreme court will act as honorary pallbearers and members of the cabinet and other high officials will attend.

(By Associated Press) EDMONTON, Alta., May 19.—Steamboat companies operating on the rivers that flow toward the Arctic from here are ready for the hundreds expected to travel north this spring to the newly discovered oil fields at Fort Norman in the Mackenzie river valley of northwestern Canada.
