SAYS GLAMOR HAS GONE FROM LIFE IN FROZEN NORTH

(By Associated Press)
 SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 9.—Heroic glamour and dreadful risks of the frozen Arctic have gone the way of the pictured dangers and romantic adventures of the old storied Wild West, according to Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Canadian Arctic explorer, who passed through here recently.

Explorers of the white country live off the land, so why shouldn't the white stranger? he asks.

"There is no reason," Stefansson said, "why two or three men should go to the north pole, or even to the pole of inaccessibility, which is in the center of the icy area 400 miles farther from navigable water than the North Pole, and live there for one or several years, depending for food, fuel and shelter solely on the meat, fat and skins of animals found there."

The explorer has under consideration plans for a new expedition to the north, he said here.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"HEALTHY" AND "HEALTHFUL"

THERE is a distinct difference in the meaning of these two words, and the distinction should be made by all who desire to speak and write correctly. "Healthy" means possessing or enjoying health or its effects; as, "a healthy person" or "a healthy condition." But "healthful" means promoting health, or adding to it, or preserving it. Thus, we say that a healthy person is the product of healthful surroundings. "The finances of the country are in a healthy condition." "Healthful living is conducive to length of life."

A correspondent of a newspaper wrote, "Are plants in a sleeping room healthy?" It was evident that she meant, "Does the presence of plants in a sleeping room affect the health of the occupant of the room?" Of course, a plant, in a sleeping room or elsewhere, may or may not be healthy; and its presence in a room may or may not be healthful for the human occupant.

Filmy Frocks for Graduates

DESIGNERS have succeeded in writing "youth" into all the lovely frocks designed for this year's graduates. They have chosen many fabrics and made them up in styles that are as dainty as the flowers of spring, and these same flowers are made much of in their decoration. In fabrics organza is a long way in the lead of a list that includes net (plain and dotted) in silk or cotton, fine voile, lace, swiss, crepe-de-chine and other crepes.

One reason for the success of organza is that it provides its own trimmings. Fills, ruffles, flowers, petals and other decorations made of it are not outwitted by any other kind of ornament. Tucks and hemstitching are suited to it and it makes the most buoyant and youthful of sashes. The graduation frock pictured is an example of its translation into just the right character of dress for the young maid. In this frock narrow tucks and val lace edging make a setting for embroidered daisies done in mercerized floss, with white petals and yellow centers. Daisies made of white organza are set about the girle of another pretty frock and on a model having a long tunic made up of several panels, they appear, embroidered in white and yellow, at the bottom of each panel. Strips of organza pleated on the edges are gathered along the center to four ruffles that edge the panels.

Organza frocks have wide hems often cut in shallow scallops at the top and headed with frills. These frills, with pivot edges are used alone for decorating many frocks and often placed in festoons running in parallel rows on the skirt and bodice. Wide, hemstitched tucks or narrower ones edged with narrow lace are perhaps the best liked of all decorative features. Nearly all net dresses are tuck-ed and the tucks bordered with narrow satin ribbon stitched to their edges, or with narrow lace.

ASKS BUSINESS MEN FOR AID TO CUT DEFICITS

(By Associated Press)
 LONDON, July 9.—The postmaster-general has called upon the business men of Great Britain to aid him in solving the problem of how to operate the postal, telegraph and telephone services efficiently and without a deficit.

A council of business men has been appointed to assist in the management of the department. H. Gordon Selfridge, the American merchant in London, is one of the 19 appointees. The others include bank directors, presidents of chambers of commerce, railroad managers and other leaders of industry. One is a newspaper proprietor, Viscount Burnham of the London Daily Telegraph. The postoffice department estimates for the current year show a deficit of 3,500,000 pounds. The postmaster-general has proposed to cover this by increasing the rates on the second-class mail but now this project has been abandoned.

The question why the department should show a loss has been the subject of much debate in the newspapers. The department has a monopoly in the United Kingdom of the mails, telegraph and telephone, thus making it the greatest business in the country. Yet, on a combined revenue of 70,000,000 a year, it has been run at a loss. One writer has attributed the deficit to the doubling of the penny postage on letters which took place during the war and its retention since.

Occasionally we are lulled into the belief that the statement "there is a sucker born every minute" is not axiomatic but just about that time the first page of any newspaper proves that it is.

Many a girl listens to sweet nothings in courtship days and then objects to being fed on them after marriage.
