FORGOTTEN LAND TO LEARN WHAT IS TRANSPIRING

Island of Tristan de Cunha Has Hundred and Twenty Souls, Far From Civilization.

(By Associated Press) MONTEVIDEO, April 5.—(By Mail) The British island of Tristan de Cunha, in the middle of the south Atlantic, with its 120-odd souls, mostly descendants of Napoleon's St. Helena guards, who hardly hear from civilization more than once in two years, is at last to have a mission. For more than 18 months an English clergyman named Rogers, and his wife, have been trying to reach the island from Cape Town and finally induced the captain of the Japanese steamship Tacoma Maru, which left Cape Town on March 26 for Blue Plate, to deviate from his regular course and land them at Tristan de Cunha.

W. Denis Myers, a passenger on the Tacoma Maru and a lawyer of Cape Town, who has just arrived here, tells of the vessel's call at the island and Mrs. Rogers, and how she thinks the population is truly in need of a missionary.

The student of evolution, the psychologist as well as the missionary, would find much to interest him in this curious, forgotten community, says Mr. Myers. The settlement originated, it is said, when a detachment of soldiers who were guarding Napoleon at St. Helena, to the north, were despatched to Tristan de Cunha to forestall the remote possibility that Napoleon might attempt to escape thither. Two of the soldiers remained and, importing wives from St. Helena, laid the foundations of what one of the strangest settlements in the world.

From time to time shipwrecked seafarers have added to the inhabitants on the island, who have married and intermarried till relationship has become a hopeless tangle. Nearly all the present population were born on the island and have a colored strain in their blood. They speak English with a peculiar drawl, resembling West of England speech. There is one old Italian among them, shipwrecked from a sailing vessel, who appears to have forgotten his own name, and in fact, his mother tongue.

AMUSEMENTS

BERT LYTELL AND SNOOKY TODAY

Perhaps you remember reading Kennett Harris' story, "Junk" in the Saturday Evening Post. It was one of the great stories of the year; and at the same time, a story ideally suited to motion pictures. Every picture concern sought the screen rights—Metro won out, and made the picture under the name of "The Idle Rich" with Bert Lytell in the leading role, and it turned out to be one of the best things Mr. Lytell has ever done. The story deals with three generations of Californians; the original '49er who won wealth in the gold rush; the prosperous business man's son and the young idle grandson who is trying to paint the world a more vivid scarlet. It's the tale of the foundation, decay and regeneration of a family that ranks as aristocratic in the American sense; it approaches the ideal of "the great American screen play" and will be shown at the Butler today.

Added to the program, a two-reel comedy, "Snooky's Twin Troubles," featuring the wonderful educated Chimp—Snooky. Tomorrow, Debe Daniels, in "A Game Chicken," and the wild antics Monday, Normal Talmadge, in "The Sign on the Door."
