A most horrible death awaited Mattie and Annie, two squaws, who were burned to death last night in their cabin at Goldfield. VETERANS WILL GLADLY GREET THESE VISITORS

Officials Here to Adjust Claims of Disabled and to Renew Insurance Risks

Officials of the Reno sub-district office of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, L. A. Crawford, manager, Dr. Delos Turner and William A. Tappan, chief personal service section, arrived in Tonopah this morning to investigate conditions relative to ex-soldiers disabled in the service of the United States during the world war. The U. S. Veterans' bureau, created in August, 1921 to supersede and take over the work of the bureau of war risk insurance, U. S. public health service and hospitals and the federal board for vocational training, has during the past year developed into a highly efficient and smoothly operating organization. Starting under the most adverse conditions, without any precedent to follow, the bureau under the leadership and guidance of Colonel Forbes has brought order out of chaos, has overcome many obstacles set before it and is constantly striving to overcome the remaining difficulties and to master the problems charged to it, in order that the disabled soldiers of the United States may receive the kind of treatment and service that was intended for them by the American people. The twelfth district comprising Nevada, California and Arizona, has been brought to the fore by the efforts of Major Louis T. Grant, district manager. He installed in his staff the spirit of service to the disabled at all costs which has resulted in making this district one of the best of the country. The Reno sub-district office has assigned as its territory the state of Nevada and three of the northern counties of California. Mr. Crawford states that the present force there are approximately 400 beneficiaries of this bureau in this territory. Of this number 167 are taking vocational training to overcome handicaps incurred in service so they may again become self-sustaining citizens and assets to the community. Fifty-six of these men are registered at the University of Nevada, the majority of whom are studying to become engineers. Of the other 51 men in training, eight are taking commercial courses at the Reno Business College; seven are being trained in agriculture on their own farms in the Newlands irrigation district, and the remainder are in placement training. During the past eight months, 10 men have been declared rehabilitated in objectives ranging from lawyers, electricians, civil engineers to novelty salesmen and stenographers. All of these men are doing well in their new vocations and as one expressed it in a letter of appreciation:

TRAINING QUARTERS U. OF N. DESTROYED

BY VERDA LUCE

RENO, Nov. 14.—The Mackey training quarters of the University of Nevada were partially destroyed Monday morning by fire which started on the second floor of the building. The origin was presumably from an overheated electric plate, and it is believed the fire smoldered for some hours before it actually broke into flame. An alarm was turned in by an employe of the university and in a few moments Mackey field was covered with excited students. University men assisted the firemen in manipulation of the hoses and also broke into the building where they succeeded in saving trophies, football equipment, pictures and furniture. For some time it seemed doubtful the building could be saved, judging from the density and quantity of smoke, which poured from all parts of the building, but the fire was under control before the exterior of the building was noticeably damaged. The second floor, where the fire originated, is almost wrecked. Mackey training quarters was a gift of Clarence H. Mackay to the University of Nevada in 1909, and is valued at $15,000. It is covered by a $10,000 insurance.
