ANDY STINSON WAS EIGHT IN VIEWS

Nevada has become in the opinion of Andy Stinson, secretary of the Nevada State Republican Association, the eighth of the regular political conventions. It will meet in the Nevada State Convention at Carson City, Nevada, on January 19, 1923.

ANDY STINSON WAS EIGHT IN VIEWS

It does not follow that a man ranked in Andy Stinson's opinion as the eighth of the regular political conventions, will make a good record. The cases are rare in which the man ranked for the diplomatic service would not be more competent if they had several years of experience in the ministerial service. Only too often are the diplomatic secretaries lacking in a knowledge of business and trade and the realities and hard knowledge of international affairs.

Governmental responsibility on the part of the man in charge of the Nevada State Republican Association is probably the most responsible for the political party which will convene in Carson City, Nevada, on January 19, 1923. It is the duty of the committee to make a selection of men who are capable of doing the job. The committee should be made up of men who are capable of doing the job. The committee should be made up of men who are capable of doing the job.

REPUBLICANS MUST GUARD TREASURY

The incoming legislature of the state of Nevada has a solemn duty to perform, and it will be up to the republican members of the assembly and senate to protect the interests of the taxpayers by reason of the fact that they will be in control of both houses. To the very best of their ability and therefore it is essential that those in control see to it that only members of their party are given recognition when it comes to distribution of patronage.

When Andy Stinson made the statement that the law of the Argument was should be reversed, and that if this law were not reversed the party would be in a worse position than it is now. The committee should be made up of men who are capable of doing the job.

While in control of the assembly and senate the republican majority should not overlook the fact that the expense of conducting the government is entirely too high and that retrenchment must be the watchword. It is the bounden duty of each and every member to see to it that any person holding a position under the capitol dome gives an honest day's work for the salary received.

UNIFYING FOREIGN DIPLOMATIC SERVICE

Secretary Hughes has endorsed the Rogers bill for the reorganization of the diplomatic and consular services. This bill provides, among other things, for the interchangeability of men in the consular and diplomatic services, for increased pay and for retirement pensions. The purpose is to unify the two branches of the foreign service which heretofore have been kept apart and at the same time to offer to men entering either branch the inducement of a career of recognition and distinction.

The platform of the republicans during the recent campaign called for retrenchment and even though the party was not wholly victorious in the campaign, the platform pledges still stand and the people will expect a slash in operating expenses. If such does not take place then every political party, and especially so the republicans, had best do away in the future with so-called platforms.

By increasing the pay of consular and diplomatic representatives it will be possible to induce men of limited means to enter the service. In this way the field for recruiting able men will be widened.

A note of optimism is seen in connection with business in general. It would be still more prominent were there not so many other notes floating around. Walk if you would live long. Health Commissioner Burdenson of Chicago says. Also keep both eyes on automobiles.

This proposed reorganization has met with the opposition of numerous persons formerly connected with the diplomatic service. They say that the nature of the work of consulates and embassies is so different that it is impractical to make the personnel interchangeable. The consular service requires a thorough knowledge of trade conditions and of the mechanics of international business. The diplomatic service, on the other hand, requires a full knowledge of international politics and international law and a good background of the history, customs,

THE GREATEST ART

IF YOU will look around you with undisturbed vision without prejudice in your heart and with a mind open to getting at the truth, quite regardless of the point it may cause you to see, you will discover that the greatest art of all arts is the art of pleasing others.

It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us.

It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us. It is the art of the very best of us.

United for Short Skirts. Women in various parts of the country are forming "Short Skirt Clubs," the purpose of which is to thwart the efforts of fashion makers, who have voted for somewhat greater length. It seems a bit strange that women should have to organize for the right to wear skirts any length they please. There is no law against short skirts. But it would be as difficult for one woman to wear a short skirt when everybody else had shifted to the shopping length as it would for an individual to adopt a daylight saving schedule in a town where the people had voted for standard time. The only way the average woman can resist changing fashions is to be conscious that she has a wide support among her fellow women. If any man condemns these women as cowards, let him take off his coat in the flower. It is more comfortable and there is no law against it.—St. Louis Star.

Plan Fine African Roadway. For several years work has been in progress on a roadway to connect the entire peninsula of the southern part of South Africa, on which Cape Town is situated. The roadway is now completed and it is expected to be the finest roadway drive in the world, surpassing even the famous Corniche road at Mentone in the south of France. The road is 125 miles long and for most of its length follows the rocky sides of the mountains that tower over the entire coast of the cape.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.
