"NEVADA FIRST," M'CARRAN'S MOTTO

There are little men and big men. Men who rise above any little personal disappointment and, forgetting the sting of the moment, clasp hands with their fellowmen and work loyally for the common good. Again, the other side shows the little man, the man who lives for himself alone; the grouch, the self-constituted Moses to, figuratively, lead the children of men into the promised land.

Justice McCarran is of the class of big men, the men who believe that every fellow helping the other fellow, represents a splendid sum total.

At the meeting in Carson City, and also at Reno, Judge McCarran introduced Senator Pittman, his opponent in the primaries. And the introduction was not the forced, snivelling, apologetic introduction of the small man, it was broad of spirit, genuine and loyal.

"I want all of my friends to vote for Senator Pittman," said Justice McCarran. I know of his work in Washington. I know that he is an active, efficient and tireless toiler for the people of the state of Nevada. His re-election means much for the state of Nevada and I bespeak for him the votes of all my friends who supported me in the primaries."

This is the language of a man bigger and broader than the "little politician." Justice McCarran is a student of world conditions. He is a lover of peace and places human rights above property rights—the man above the dollar. And as such a student of the economic conditions prevailing in the world of today he realizes what it means to this nation to return Woodrow Wilson to the presidency and sustain him with a Democratic congress.

ITS LAST PLEA

Stripped of all other issues the Republican party in a last frantic plea is calling for support because of the pension system it inaugurated in the days following the Civil war, to which system the Democrats offered no objection except where the practice ran riot. A circular just issued by the National Republican committee calls attention to the pension bills passed by that party and concludes with a speech made by a Republican congressman, who winds up his peroration with the following verse:

"Words are but leaves;
Deeds are fruits.
Words are easy, like the wind,
Faithful friends are hard to find."

The verse, of course, is meant to indicate that the Republican party is the friend of the great common people, but what benefits have that class received from the G. O. P. in recent years. On the other hand, with its record of deeds performed, is not the Democratic party more entitled to the use of the phrase "deeds are fruits" than the Republicans? In what day or period did the Republican party pass such beneficent laws as the Democrats in putting on the statute books the Federal Reserve law, the Rural Credits bill, the Ship Purchase bill, the Child Labor bill, the act creating the Tariff Commission and scores of others?

All this wise legislation has been performed in the three and a half years the Wilson administration has had control of the government, and no man has had more to do with its enactment than Senator Key Pittman of Nevada.

WHY PITTMAN AND CAINE ARE NEEDED

"Now Senator Pittman has had the advantage of living even farther west than I did, and he came from even a smaller state than Maine; and yet he has been able to live down these objections and make himself conspicuous among the members of the senate. If he had not earned a reelection by his own merit—if all I knew of him was that he was a man in harmony with the president and would, if elected, help the president in the carrying out of his foreign policies and his domestic policies, I would say that he was entitled to your support, as against any man who was not in harmony with the president. So I want you to remember that, in addition to what he has earned by his own merit he is entitled to your support if you want to aid the president in the work that lies before him.

"And I want to appeal to you in behalf of the Democratic candidate for congress; Mr. Caine is needed in Washington; and remember that we have not a very large majority in the house, and every one of these congressmen must be re-elected or somebody elected in his place; and we cannot afford, at a time like this, to leave anything undone that we can do to give the president both a house and a senate in sympathy with his purpose and his work."—W. J. Bryan.

A WILSON LANDSLIDE

It ought not to be merely a Wilson victory at the polls in November, says the New York World. It ought to be a Wilson landslide.

That would be the greatest political blessing that the American people could confer upon themselves.

A Wilson landslide would completely destroy the influence of the hyphen in American politics, and once for all put American citizenship above all foreign intrigue and alien sympathy.

To Europe it would be a final proof of American solidarity which would carry its effect into all the diplomatic relations of the United States with the warring nations.

It would definitely establish progressivism as a forward policy of American government, beyond the power of Toryism and reaction to overcome.

It would mark the beginning of a new economic order in which human rights were no longer held subordinate to property rights, and the labor of living men held of less consequence than the accumulated product of the labor of dead men.

It was Jefferson who put the ship of state on the Democratic tack in the nineteenth century and made possible a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Wilson is rendering the same kind of service to American democracy in the twentieth century that Jefferson rendered in the nineteenth century. Regardless of any mistakes he makes, regardless of errors of judgment, he is restoring American democracy and giving government back into the hands of the people to promote the welfare of all the people, not the welfare of a few of the people.

American democracy, if it is to go forward, cannot permit anybody to undo what has been done under President Wilson's leadership. It cannot afford to give any man the opportunity to do it. It can take no risks with Bourbonism. It can make no experiments with reaction.

The highest duty the American people owe to themselves, to their principles of government and to their ideals of the republic is to give to the president a popular majority that will be overwhelming.

Make it a Wilson landslide!

WOULD WANT TO HEAR BOTH SIDES

In an advertisement in the Reno Journal it is stated that Mr. Hughes has "conveyed to the Journal the information that he will veto all land grabbing bills." Of course he will, if elected, and so would any other righteous and self-respecting president, but it is safe to say that he would not veto any bill on ex parte evidence. He would lack the legal acumen he is credited with were he to do so.

WHY SHE IS FOR WILSON

I am for Wilson because he is a real democrat. That means that he is for his fellow man at home and abroad. I am a German, and I do not understand how the Germans of this country can fail to see that Mr. Wilson is their friend, just as he is the friend of his fellow man in all countries. One can always count on his impartiality—that he will not favor any particular one, because he favors all. We can see by his acts that he really does this; they may not always show forth his intent; but if one waits long enough, one finds that the true intent and intelligence of the highest kind were there—an intent consonant with love for humanity. His foreign policy alone would entitle him to re-election. His internal policy, of course, adds so much the more to his desirability. What he has done gives us an earnest of what he will do, if one will only use one's own intelligence to see through the mists engendered by the present world situation.—Mary Fels (Mrs. Joseph Fels.)

BE A MAN OR A MOUSE

Is it fair and honest on the part of Ed Roberts, Republican candidate for congress, to sit on the platform with Sam Platt in his stumping tour of the state and listen to the latter denounce the Pittman land bill as a vicious and dishonest measure?

Mr. Roberts, when the land bill was before the congressional committees, and again on the floor of the house, was to all appearances an earnest and sincere supporter of the measure and so far as known he has not up to the present time altered his views.

If the measure was good then, it is good now, and Roberts should not stultify himself by remaining silent when it is being attacked in his presence by Sam Platt for purely political purposes. The bill means too much to Nevada to be cried down.
