

IF YOU CAN'T BOOST, DON'T KNOCK

The success of Carson and its future as a residence city, the best in the State of Nevada is assured.

It has always been the prettiest city in the state for that matter, but up to this summer, there has been no residence property available for general building purposes.

Now, however, that lack is remedied by the addition to the city of Valley Park. This tract of land borders the town site on the east and is laid out in the most liberal manner with large blocks and streets. Many lots have been sold in this tract to prospective home builders and the work now being done on the old race track property and the Ruedy ranch itself, both of which plots are in Valley Park is an eye opener to old residents of this city.

It will be an astonishing sight and one most surprising to the Carsonites when, early in the spring, they will find thousands of trees planted in the Valley Park addition and all of the streets opened and new buildings well advanced in the course of erection. Take also into consideration that the electric car line will be constructed early in the spring, running through the center of this addition.

This new feature will add materially to the advantages and conveniences of the residents of this new locality. This is apparent from the location of the land comprising Valley Park, inasmuch as it lies but a few squares to the east of and runs from the depot to the prison road. There is not a piece of land within a short distance from the business center which affords such a magnificent view of the mountain ranges bordering to the west and south.

When we take into consideration that practically every one who arrives at Carson City predicts such a great future, based upon natural advantages and superior surroundings, the Carsonite ought to take heed and warning in time and not let this golden opportunity slip by but realize that the old conditions are fast fading away by the instilling of new blood and energy, which, with the proper co-operation of the Carsonites, will make this the banner city of the state. By our indifference we have lost sight and track of what we can justly boast. Let us therefore come back to life, and instead of depending upon others, put our shoulders to the wheel with energy and determination, and advocate, with considerable emphasis to others, the attractions for home life. Let us forever stop worrying as to how people will make a living who desire to locate here. It is not factories that we can expect at this stage of development but what we need is many new homes which afford shelter to those desiring to locate here. By the time a sufficient number of buildings are being erected this city, like all others, which have acquired a large population will be self sustaining and self supporting and move by reason of its own impetus.

Full credit should be given, and proper co-operation should be accorded to Lewis & Co., who, by their efforts, are trying to make Carson City what it ought to be, the banner city of this state.

Lewis & Co., the firm that platted the tract and are disposing of the ground, are spending a lot of money for the Valley Park company to improve the tract and make it the most desirable residence place in the state. Associated with this company are two recent arrivals, Geo. E. Bendinger and Geo. T. Connor, who have associated themselves with Lewis & Co. Both are experienced real estate men and both appear very enthusiastic over Valley Park, expressing in the strongest terms possible the great merit which Valley Park possesses over any other site for the location of buildings along the line of modern types. The great drawback to Carson City, before the opening of Valley Park, has been the way in which the lots are entirely too small to accommodate a good, substantial home and at the same time furnish a desirable back yard or leave sufficient space to build a stable of only moderate dimensions. Then too, the small alleys, of which fortunately there are but few, are entirely inadequate to serve even the purpose for which they were intended.

All these defects have been remedied in the new tract and there is now a chance to go ahead and make a really beautiful city here in the prettiest valley in the state. So let every Carsonite forever lay aside his hammer and quit knocking and take up the new vocation of boosting to his utmost capacity. Should it do him no good it will certainly do him no harm.

MISS ANNIE LEAVES US

Miss Annie Martin, the Little Grey Sister of us all, performed her last piece of duty in a newspaper office today.

She has left the Appeal office and left the newspaper business, to the everlasting regret of the management of the Appeal.

It is not given to many women to endure themselves to their acquaintances as this little woman has done in Carson City. For years she has been the good kind helpful and cheery friend of every person with whom she has become acquainted. To recite the virtues of Miss Martin would take columns and a pen stronger than ours.

The discouraged and disheartened have had her sympathetic friendship. The great and successful have had her appreciation and congratulation. It can be said without fear of contradiction that Miss Martin has more dear true friends in Carson City than any other person who lives or ever lived in Carson City.

In leaving the newspaper business, in which she has been busy for so many years she creates a gap that cannot be filled in this place nor on this paper. We join with every other acquaintance in wishing her the best of success in her new line of business and in hoping that she has at last found that place where she may take it a little easier and be a bit more comfortable. She has deserved a good reward and it is to be hoped her new place will prove one.

The Appeal desires it known that to Miss Annie Martin the management owes a debt of gratitude it will never forget. It also desires Miss Martin to know that if at any time the columns of this paper can be of use to her, she is most welcome to them.

May she prosper and live long to comfort and aid her many friends in Carson City and elsewhere.

IRVIN LEWIS.

Seventeen carloads of coal passed south last night for Goldfield and Tonopah. This will relieve the stress in those two camps and more coal is promised.

Grandma Curry will be 89 years old tomorrow and if it were not for her defective sight and hearing she would be the liveliest lady in this city.

Ed Patterson will toy no more with the long twisted spoon. He has resigned his place as chef at Dick's and will be in the county clerk's office and both appear very enthusiastic from now on for four years.

NEVADA BANK PASSES OUT OF MEYER'S CONTROL

A fight without noise or visible disturbance, but none the less real ended this week with the retirement of Daniel Meyer from the control of the Nevada Bank, of Reno.

P. L. Flannigan and associates, have been at cross purposes with Moritz Scheeline for months but Meyer, his uncle, has maintained Scheeline in control of the bank during the whole time.

Last week Flannigan went to San Francisco, figuratively locked himself in with the old financier, Meyer, and they fought it out, Flannigan buying peace and Meyer buying peace, both men winning what they wanted. Meyer sells all at his own figure and Flannigan takes control. The directorate will be reorganized at the next meeting and it is almost a foregone conclusion that Scheeline will retire. The day has come when Nevada men are able to carry out large financial programs with their own capital. For years they were compelled to call upon San Francisco men but things have changed. Meyer has wielded an immense influence in this state in financial affairs for a third of a century, and still holds great interests in Nevada.

ENDEAVOR SOCIAL.

The social last evening at the Presbyterian church was not largely attended, a colder traction and the cold weather interfering with attendance, but the evening was passed delightfully notwithstanding. The program was an interesting one and was greatly appreciated by the listeners. Vocal solos by Miss Annie Newnam, Reuben Sweetland and Helen Hoskins, Miss Alice Newman, Helen Hoskins, Miss Alice Newman, Miss Werner and a story, well told, by Miss Katherine McCreery.

Spiritly games followed the presentation of the program and they were enjoyed by all present.

WILL SING OFFERTORY.

Will Murray has kindly consented to sing the offertory at the Presbyterian church tomorrow night. He will repeat the selection he gave last Sunday "In the Eternal City." The selection is a beautiful one and Mr. Murray sings it most excellently.

"BBB" ENTERTAINMENT LAST NIGHT HOWLING SUCCESS

For several weeks the young ladies of the Carson high school have been on the anxious seat, wondering what the male members of the class were up to, and last night their curiosity was satisfied. Invitations very small and thoroughly up-to-date, had been issued and the fortunate recipients presented themselves at the specified hour at the main entrance of the school building.

Assembly hall was odoriferous with the scent of the pine and the fir and the class banner was effectively displayed. The initials B. B. B. were prominently placed on the wall at the rear of the stage and caused renewed interest in their meaning, but no one outside of the club knows what they mean.

The boys had prepared a most entertaining program, which consisted of instrumental music and addresses from Julius Caesar; then followed the farce. And how the audience did enjoy that farce! It was a satire on the present method of playing football and was written by the boys themselves, with the assistance of Professor Templeton. The rules were ridiculously funny and elicited screams of appreciative laughter from the coeds present.

Games followed the presentation of the farce, the crowd being divided into sections, one occupying the second floor and the other descending to the first landing. Shortly after ten o'clock the upstairs merrymakers were invited to join the crowd on the lower floor and all participated in a rollicking game of drop the handkerchief, an old-time game that is always welcome.

While the game was in progress the boys stole out quietly, only a few at a time so that no one was missed from the circle and at half past ten the guests were asked to step upstairs once more. Along the center of the hall stood a long table, daintily appointed and set with a lot of good things to eat. The invited guests did ample justice to all that was set before them and the supper was a merry one. After dinner speeches were made by the boys and they were speeches to be proud of, too.

The present class of boys in our high school is a class of which any teacher and any parent may well be proud and their members are to be heartily congratulated upon the success of their entertainment last night.

Miss Jane Mills, of the corps of teacher at Gardnerville, is in town and will remain until tomorrow afternoon.

J. J. Reid, of the Nevada Press Company, returned this morning from Sacramento where he has been at the bedside of his father, who has been very ill.

SCHMITZ, RUEF AND DINAN THREE INDICTED

The return of Mayor Schmitz to San Francisco was celebrated by the grand jury of that county and city by handing out two indictments against Chief of Police Dinan. Abe Ruef drew another one and Schmitz is busily engaged with his lawyers preparing a defense to the last ditch. Schmitz continues to yell political animus, though every one knows that the cause for the matter lies deeper than politics. It seems the day of the grafter is declining in San Francisco.

"PILK" MAKES GOOD.

H. Pilkington, an attorney of Lyon county who has stuck to the Sunrise mining district and its prospects through thick and thin, is in town with a pocket full of money. Pilk sold out a mine in the Sunrise district and got the money. He says he has another mine in the same locality that is just as good as the one he sold and that he has some good claims in the Walker River district, all copper.

It is only in Nevada that a man can go out and look like a prospector for months and then suddenly blossom like a lily of the field, buy wine for his friends and come up smiling, with both hands full of money. Pilk displayed a roll of greenbacks today big enough to choke a cow, all from the little sale he made in Sunrise. And his clothes are cut from the very latest blocks, too.
