

MORNING APPEAL.

SATURDAY.....NOVEMBER 10, 1877

HE HADN'T BEEN THERE.—In the smoking room of a sleeping car on the Central Pacific Railroad were gathered a number of old Nevadans. An Eastern gentleman who had traveled around the world was entertaining them. He had been everywhere. The number of sheep raised in California had been calculated, but he raised them in Bulgaria. He had seen larger ranches abroad than this country furnished, more crops, finer cities, more productive valleys, higher mountains, deeper, larger, and more swift rivers, in fact surpassed anything that could be suggested. A gentleman from Eureka, a wag in his way, sat silent during the entire conversation, at length he chipped in thusly: "My friend have you been to Tripoli, on the northern coast of Africa?" "Oh yes," replied the traveler, and proceeded to give some general information on the subject. "Yes," added our friend, "I have never been there. But have you ever visited Holstenburg on the eastern coast of Greenland?" "Oh yes," responded the traveler and information concerning Holsteinburg was furnished. "I have never been there," said Eureka. "Have you ever been to Patagonia?" continued the Eureka man. "Oh yes," said he, and the geographical and climatical advantages of that remote region were duly rehearsed. The Eureka man said he hadn't been there. It seemed for the moment that he had been everywhere, when the Eureka man with a bland, inoffensive smile, inquired, "Have you ever visited Austin?" "Austin?" inquired the traveler in foreign countries, "Where is Austin? No, I have never been there." "Not been there?" queried the man from Eureka, in amazement. "No. Where is it?" said the traveler, "Why down south, about ninety-six miles from Battle Mountain, where you had dinner yesterday," said our hero, "they are waiting for you; you go in a stage, you know." "Go in a stage?" queried he, "you are mistaken, nobody wants me down there." "Not at all," said the Eureka man, "They really do need you. He is going to write a book. The Stock Report said so, and he will have to leave and go to San Francisco and they want you to take his place." "Take his place? Who?" anxiously inquired the extensive traveler, and the Eureka man gathered himself comfortably in his seat and placing his hand in his rear pocket, firmly said, "The President of the Sazarac Lying Club. You see, there is a vacancy which a fellow of your get-up could just about fill." That traveler who had seen so much, sloped, and was not heard from again this side of San Francisco.

DR. BUTTS has almost completed his work at the corner of Spear and Division streets. A bridge is in process of construction at the corner in front of J. G. Fox's residence, which will be a great improvement to that part of the city. To-day the Doctor goes to work on a new sewer, running from Carson street north of the Carson City Savings Bank east, to connect with the sewer below the railroad. Butts is indefatigable and if the drainage of the town is not perfect, complete and healthy, it is not his fault.

NEW BOXES.—Prof. Pinckney the gorgeous is more than delighted over his receipts of the 9th. Not coin receipts, for he never mentions them. But the invoice of new boxes. He has received from headquarters eight splendid caskets, not burial caskets, further than that coin is to be buried therein. They are of a heavy pea green shade and bear a crest in white, four of them Aurora, and the balance Belleville. We trust they may come daily, freighted with rich treasure. Then Pinckney will be happy.

RED FRANK.—The well known and sturdily pious Red Frank Wheeler arrived by private conveyance yesterday afternoon. He innocently stated (as is his wont) that he just came down with a friend, which of course is strictly true. We take pleasure, therefore, in informing our readers that he has no particular business and is entirely at the disposition of his friends, of whom he has probably more than any man who sets foot in Carson. Glad to see you, Frank.

THE FRAGAS between Mr. Cormack, the auctioneer, and Mr. Connelly, the ass of spades of the Capitol grounds, amounted to nothing very serious. There were a few epithets used, some pushing, and striking from the shoulder, but no one was injured. It was reported that Connelly was incarcerated, but he was not an occupant of the jail last night. We understand charges will be made, at which time he will be forthcoming. Let justice be done, though the hammer fall.

IN TOWN.—Lance E. Nightingill, nephew of Lance Nightingill, the old pioneer and the first State Controller of Nevada, is in town visiting his Aunt, Mrs. Lillian Nightingill. Young Lance is a worthy scion of the old stock, and will meet a host of old friends of his uncle, from whom he will receive many a warm hand shake. He goes to Sutro to-day on business.

E. B. Rail, arrived from the Bay yesterday and met and greeted his many friends. He has purchased a large invoice of hardware and house furnishing goods which will be on hand in a few days.

TUMBLE.—Ophir, which was up in the thirties dropped to twenty-four on the street yesterday afternoon. Good by John!

KINDERGARTEN.

For real, solid, genuine amusement commend us to Misses Clapp and Babcock's Kindergarten, presided over by Misses Babcock and Martin. Talk about your theaters, circuses and legerdemain performances, they are simply nowhere in comparison. It is just the greatest treat any one can possibly enjoy, and we wish our citizens, particularly parents, could see it. As a process of instruction for little children it is unsurpassed. We spent an hour there yesterday and were more than delighted. The exercises gone through with were very satisfactory, and they were, by the way, the regular order of the school. The object, as near as we could learn by a short visit, is to teach the children the practicalities of life, by the simplest and most natural methods. They play while they learn. When we entered the "cooper" lesson was in progress. Now, the business of a cooper is very necessary to be known. Of course there are but few coopers in Carson, but there are a good many barrels, and it is important to know how those barrels are made. The average child might ask the parent as to the how in this case, and the said parent, though posted on the contents, could not answer. Hence the Kindergarten. The children were formed in a circle, all the same as a barrel, and with the accompaniment of Miss Annie Martin on the piano, went through the motions of making a barrel, singing meanwhile:

I am a cooper and barrels I bind, And on my brow perspiration I find, And with my hammer I pound, etc.

A selected number of children went around within the circle and represented the workmen hammering. After this they all went to their seats; there were twenty-one present, and they were furnished with straws, with which the younger ones made letters and the more advanced triangles and squares. After exercising thus with their hands, they marched around giving play to their feet, singing,

Children go to and fro In a merry, pretty row, Swiftly turning round and round, Do not look upon the ground.

In the Kindergarten all the physical and mental departments are attended to. From our brief observation of the works of the system we pronounce it a success, and advise the parents of children to give the school a visit.

COURTS.

In the Supreme Court the argument of Judge Berry was continued yesterday morning. Pierce Evans was admitted to practice. The Rover case was presented and opened by argument, by T. W. W. Davies. Adjourned until to-day.

In the United States Circuit Court, argument in the Wilson vs. Dayton Mill and Mining Co. case was continued and the case submitted.

In the District Court the case of Mason & Co. vs. Muller & Weber was submitted and set for argument this morning.

In the Justice Court, Frank Craven was before his Honor for being drunk and disorderly. After hearing he was sentenced to serve ten days in the county jail. He went; any friends inquiring for him will find him ready to receive callers.

TOM STEVENS the veteran stage driver, who manipulates the reins between Wellington's and Aurora arrived in the city yesterday. Tom is one of the most genial and pleasant ribbon men in the country and we are glad to see him. Hope he will behave himself while he remains.

NEW ROOF.—Lusty mechanics are industriously laboring in constructing a new section of roof on the north end of the Adams House. This will cover the lodgers in good shape and prevent the baptism of unfortunates at the low price, offered by the House.

BULLION.—Wells, Fargo & Co received per southern stage last evening 3 bars from Bellville valued at $5,884 70, 2 bars from Marietta, valued at $2,656 79, and 6 bars from Benton valued at $4,169 76.

WOOD is pouring in, as fast as full four feet sticks can pour. We noticed a team yesterday afternoon with a back action, containing twelve and a half cords. The teamster said there were more loads coming.

AT HOME.—Mrs. W. W. Hobart, with her two daughters Clario and Pearl, returned yesterday from the Bay. They are for the present at the White House.
