A Clever Cartoon.

The last number of Puck contains a cartoon entitled "A Midsummer day Dream," which, aside from its artistic merit, is a remarkably clever satirical conception. It represents Keppler, the artist, asleep in his studio while about him are the various public men he has caricatured working at canvasses upon their own portraits as they regard themselves. First comes the squat figure of Ben Butler painting a portrait of himself as a beauty. Gen. Grant in short trousers is at work on the figure of a gigantic king, with cigar and sceptre. Talmage, with hideous mug and ungainly person, is painting himself as a gentlemanly looking divine, Beecher, mounted on a stool, outlines the picture of an ideal pastor devoutly perusing the good book. James Gordon Bennett is making an Apollo of himself. Tilden, almost shrunken to a skeleton, depicts himself as an athlete elevating enormous dumb bells. Peter Cooper in his white locks is at work on the figure and face of a young man, inscribed, "Peter Cooper, the ever young." Conkling depicts himself as Jupiter hurling the thunderbolts from Olympus, and the stubby figure of John Kelly is sketching out a rough draft of an idealized portrait of "Kelly, as The Stainless Statesman." There is art in every line of the work and a humor which Nast in his best days never attempted.

A Midnight Prowler.

For months past a man has been prowling about the APPEAL office and watching the premises at a certain hour of the night. At first no notice was taken of him until his visits became so persistent that a man now sleeps in the upper story of the office to watch the building. He was last seen sneaking about the vicinity on the night of the Caledonia picnic and when addressed ran away, disappearing in the darkness. No person can have any honest motive in continual night prowling and a reward is offered for the man's apprehension. A minute description will be furnished on application to this office.

To Rent or for Sale.

THE INTELLIGENT MULE.

Mr. Daggett's Theories Regarding Him Sustained.

When Congressman Daggett first began to endorse the mental attributes of the mule and threatened to lecture on the subject he was supposed to be in jest. Since, however, public attention was roused to the fact that the mule was little lower than the human new instances are constantly recorded of the animal's sound sense and sagacity. Mr. H. Monk, a well known citizen of Carson, relates a curious instance of the mule's profound cunning. He had a pair of mules he used to drive to Placerville and found that 2,000 pounds of freight was about the right load. For three years the mules pulled the wagon and 2,000 pounds and did not murmur at the task. One day in a very urgent case he was obliged to carry an extra hundred pounds. He kept the tally in a little book of the load carried and this time putting down the amount "2100 pounds, March 16th," he inadvertently laid the open book down on a bench and when the mules came up to be harnessed one of them glanced at the book and gave a great snort. The other rushed up immediately and glancing at the figures shook his head and stamped his foot determinedly.

"I was fool enough," continued Mr. Monk, "not to observe those weather signs. I hitched up the mules; they gave one pull, realized that the figures were correct and then kicked the wagon and harness all to pieces. They knew that extra hundred pounds wasn't in the contract. When they got to work with their heels everything seemed to go to pieces at once. I never before realized what a flimsy thing a Studebaker wagon was. Never try to play roots on a mule, boys. The lesson cost me four thousand dollars and I believe there's a suit yet for damages to the baggage worn in along in some of those California courts. I've been stavin' the thing off so that the mules'll die and not be rung in against me on the witness stand."

A Long Shot.

The Times-Review says: Mountain sheep are about the scarest game in this vicinity and about the hardest to kill. Mr. T. Farthing however succeeded in bringing one down yesterday with his Winchester rifle. He discovered it about nine miles from here near Bonanza Hill and fired at it from a distance of four hundred yards, hitting it squarely in the breast. The ball came out of the belly and passing on, broke one of the animal's hind legs. It was quite fat and weighed about fifty pounds. It had short wool on the back sides, but the other portions of the body is covered with hair like a goat. The writer is indebted to Mr. Farthing for several fine chops from the animal. They were very tender and juicy, with a fine flavor, and bearing about the same relation to tame mutton that venison does to beef.

Editorial Vanity.

Photographers all over the country have been somewhat astonished during the past week at a rush of newspaper patronage. Newspaper writers as a rule whose faces are sickled over with the pale cast of thought and the dinginess of smoking lamps are not desirable subjects for the photographer. The cause of the sudden picture revival among the journalistic fraternity arises from the fact that Wit and Wisdom, a comic paper published in New York, announces that it will soon begin the publication of the brilliant paragraphs of the United States.

A Detective Robbed.

Last week the road agents got even with J. B. Hume, the detective, by stopping a stage he was on and robbing him. He was obliged to hold up his hands just the same as the other passengers while the robbers went through his pockets. His eye, however, was not idle and the chances are that he has taken the measure of the footpads as accurately as a photographer could and is now on their trail.

"Black Leg."

G. W. Crum, a prominent cattle raiser, fears that the dreaded disease known as "black leg" is making its appearance in Nevada. He informed the Battle Mountain Messenger that on his way to town last Friday he found a dead calf by the wayside, and was pretty certain it died of that disease.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 12:30 P. M.—The President's condition has not materially changed since the last bulletin. He has been tranquil and slept some. He has not vomited, and the nutritive enemata is still maintained. Pulse 112, temperature 98.7, respiration 18.

2 P. M.—Dr. Bliss has just come from the patient's room, and before leaving the Mansion said the President had taken nourishment twice since the midday dressing had occurred—at 12:45 and at 1:45. It consisted of a cooled infusion of beef, mixed with a few drops of muriatic acid. The patient was given about a teaspoonful at a time. What had been administered thus far had been retained, and the improvement anticipated by it had been realized. The President, shortly after the first dose was taken, expressed himself as feeling better, and the pulse indicated a great improvement, having become stronger and the number of beats materially decreased. Nourishment will be administered again about 3 P. M. The doctor is in excellent spirits and feels confident. The patient is now rallying rapidly. Enemata are being continued as usual, in addition to other nourishment, and will not be dispensed with for the present.

THE LATEST.

WASHINGTON, 7 P. M.—The feeling here is much more hopeful and the last bulletins report the President's condition in all respects more encouraging.

The Yellow Jacket Development.

A force of miners yesterday began exploring the body of quartz cut some time ago by the south branch of the Sutro tunnel at a point 300 feet east of the Yellow Jacket shaft. From the widening out of this quartz to the northward, it is possible that what has been found is the extreme southern point of an ore body. The quartz gives assays as high as $25 to the ton and the prospect is a promising one. Referring to the feeling on this development below, yesterday's San Francisco Post says at the half-past 9 session of the San Francisco Board Yellow Jacket, which sold as high as $7 last evening, receded to 6 1/2, with large sales from leading parties, who are evidently not in favor of a marked rise at present. The development in the south header of the Sutro tunnel (in Yellow Jacket ground) and the favorable indications on the 2828 and 3000 levels, have drawn some of the powers into the field, and they are evidently manipulating to buy the stock at low figures.

New Mines Discovered.

An old prospector named Stoddard has discovered what are supposed to be valuable mines about four miles west of Palisade, on the Central Pacific Railroad. Three assays of the ore ranged from $108 to $300 per ton in gold and silver. The walls of an old hut built by a wood-chopper, near the principal ledge, some years ago, are said to be made of ore that will average $100 to the ton. The discovery has created great excitement at Palisade, and every man in the place who could leave his business has gone off to the mines.

Witness Found.

Johanna Kelly, the witness wanted in the case of the State vs. John Alexander, has been found. She has notified the police officers of Virginia City that she could be seen at her sister's house in that city, and that she would testify in the case if subpoenaed. Constable Sexton yesterday served her with a notice to appear before Justice Flanningham this afternoon at the time set for Alexander's examination. It is understood that the woman now says she knows nothing regarding the case.

A Carson Highfyer.

Yesterday a kite was flying over the city made in the shape of a woman. It was very large and attracted general attention. The altitudinous female frisked about with the wind much to the delight of the small boys and no doubt that in a few days the air will be peopled with these frisky females. Each youngster will have a girl on the string.

The Spurt in Sierra Nevada.

The sudden movement yesterday in Sierra Nevada caused general surprise. It came when least expected and the stock went up nearly four dollars before a man could turn round. No one seemed to know anything about the matter. The Comstock papers were silent on the subject and at last accounts people are still groping in the dark.

IN BRIEF.

Mr. Guy Thorpe is in the city.

J. Q. A. Moore, is still confined to his bed.

J. A. Burlingame, of the Mint, departed for the Atlantic States last night in quest of medical aid.

D. Circe won the diamond ring and T. B. Rickey the gold watch at McLaughlin's raffle yesterday.

Mrs. Henry W. Sharp, of Tallac, who has been quite ill since her arrival here, a week since, is convalescent.

The Footlight calls Hank Monk "a historic relic kept for the purpose of attracting the Boston tourists."

The party who sent the APPEAL a communication relative to a champerty case will please call at this office.

Mayo Greenlaw left for Philadelphia last night, where he will take a two years course at the Pennsylvania Dental College.

B. H. Meder is very sick and his case is regarded as decidedly serious. His son Charles, who is at present at Hope Valley, has been sent for.

Capt. Lapham, who came down from Tahoe yesterday, states the new wagon road from Tallac to Cascade Lake has been completed by Messrs. Clement and Stapleton.

The narrow gauge railroad running from Glenbrook to the Summit, has dumped from 6,000 to 8,000 cords of wood per month into the flume during this season.

J. C. Berry, a miner employed at the Crown Point mine, Gold Hill, fell through a set of timbers at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, breaking his collar bone and receiving other injuries.

Yesterday Frank Johnson committed suicide in Virginia City by taking poison. He left a note asking to be buried alongside of Jessie Lee, a woman with whom he had been living and who died about two weeks ago.

Old Friends the Best.

The Chicago Mining Review reads Eastern capitalists a very sensible lecture on their inclination to follow the rush into new and untried fields. It says, in substance, that it is much easier to get them to invest where it is fashionable than to draw their attention to some more meritorious properties in the old and well established districts. In a word, that they go in blindly, and as often as otherwise lose what they venture, simply through lack of business prudence. The same paper asserts that Nevada and Utah, notwithstanding that their mines have been worked for years, constitute the best portion of the mining territory of the United States. There can be no question about that, so far as Nevada is concerned.

Sun Struck.

Sun strokes are very rare in Nevada, in fact some assert that there is no instance on record of a genuine case. The Silver State tells of a man in Clover valley who on last Friday was sun struck while stacking hay, falling apparently lifeless on the stack. This is the first case of sun-stroke in that part of Nevada. However hot the weather may be, it does not prostrate people as it does in the Atlantic States when the mercury goes above 85 degrees.

The Virginia Orphan Asylum.

The APPEAL has received a letter from Sister Frederika of the Nevada Orphan Asylum stating that Mackay is not at present assisting the Asylum. The institution is now finding it quite hard to make both ends meet. The APPEAL knew that in times past Mr. Mackay assisted the Asylum very liberally but during the past year while in Europe he has not contributed.

Because the Times-Review editor saw some sea gulls in Tuscarora last week the Silver State suddenly calls to mind that the Good Templars lodge in that town has disbanded.

The Silver State occupies a page of its issue of Monday last with the obituary exercises in the District Court at Winnemucca, on the death of S. S. Grass.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

$20 Reward.

THE ABOVE SUM WILL BE PAID FOR the identification and arrest of the man who makes a habit of prowling about the APPEAL office at night, either for the purpose of theft or incendiarism. He is an old man with gray beard, slightly stooped and walks with a shuffling gait. Can generally be seen hanging about the Capitol Square after ten o'clock.
