An Important Decision.

In the District Court yesterday morning Judge King dissolved the attachment suit in favor of F. Mendelbaum of San Francisco, against M. Gregovich of this city.

Church Notes.

"In spite of being repeatedly thrown down I am still cool and collected," was the remark made by the money on the contribution plate when the sexton had finished prospecting the last aisle.

The Suspicious Wife.

The Reveille tells about a jealous wife in Austin who suspected her husband of visiting a certain room in the house where he had no business to go, and assured herself of the truth by scattering a lot of wafers on the floor in question and then dampening the soles of her husband's slippers.

To Rent or for Sale.

On liberal terms, the house lately occupied by Judge Beatty. The house is partly furnished and has a block of ground attached. Apply to James Fraser, County Building.

THE ASTRONOMICAL STUDENT.

Extraordinary Study of the Constellation at Bowers' Mansion.

A very good story is going the rounds of an affair which took place not long ago at Bowers' Mansion. It was in the evening after a Good Templars' picnic, when a Carson man, who prides himself on his correctness of deportment, was observed sauntering off in the moonlight with a woman whose acquaintance he had made only a few hours before.

"Astronomy be hanged," was the reply, "I'm looking for my horse and buggy."

The owner of the articles in question is out about $200 and is wondering if he can get damages.

Game and Pine Nuts.

Capt Sam, the Piute Chief, advertises his schedule of prices for wild game in the Chronicle as follows:

"Gooosa one dollar. Big goosa, one dollar quatah. Dam big goosa, one dollar hap."

Notwithstanding the increased rates of transportation, the Piute does not increase his last year's tariff. Each year the Indians are obliged to go further for their game, but a tramp of twenty miles or so seems to make no difference.

WONDERFUL SURGERY.

How Some Noted California Surgeons Treated a Bullet Wound.

"Say Cap., have you heern tell whether the President's dead yet?" asked a typical mountaineer of a visitor from the city, up among the redwoods of Sonoma the other day.

"He was not dead when I left the city," was the reply, "but his death was momentarily expected."

"I'll tell ye, stranger," said the mountain man, "them air doctors has made a big mistake. They oughter dug out that ball the fast thing. In '54 there was a man up here was shot square through the body. There warn't no doctor up here, so we took him down to San Francisco to Doctor Cooper. Member Doctor Cooper, don't ye? Wal, the Doc. he just laid Beal on a table—Beal was the man's name—and he cut him wide open from his navel to his chin, and Dr. Sawyer he stuck in his hand and tuk out the heart and scraped her off, and Dr. Lane he lifted out the lungs and lidd 'em upon Beal's breast, and Cooper he rammed his hand down and foud the bullet laying up ag'inst the backbone and lifted her out. They put the heart and lungs back in ag'in and sewed up the hole, and we started home with Beal, and he chopped and piled eight cords of wood the day after he got to his ranch—just four days after the operation. I went down to see Cooper one't 'bout a b'd I had on my neck, and while I was watin' a man come in to have his leg cut off. When the saw commenced cutting through the marrow, the feller begin to holler. 'Shut up,' says I; 'I saw Doc., here take a man's innards out once, and the man never squawked.' Doc. he stopped sawin,' kinder suddin, and turnin' round, said: 'You must a' known Beal?' 'Know him,' says I, 'I'm the man that brung him down here.' 'Shake!' says the Doc., and we shuk. Then he says to the feller, sez he, 'this is a very old friend of mine, and we're goin' out to git a drink, and when we come back I'll finish your leg. Here's my diploma; amoose yerself readin' of it till we get back.' So we went out and had a drink, and when we come back he tuck the leg off. I tell ye, if old Cooper was alive now, Garfield wouldn't be in no such fix as he is."—Stock Report.

A Pay Streak in San Francisco.

A party by the name of Thompson, who claims to know where a box containing valuable articles of jewelry, gold dust, etc., was buried on the plaza, or Portsmouth Square, San Francisco, in the early times, recently applied to the authorities for permission to dig for it. As the Plaza is now in a highly cultivated condition, covered with trees, shrubbery and flowers, his request to dig was not granted, but he was permitted to prospect around with a small auger. He now claims to have "struck it," and the authorities agree that he may dig right there and get it, but only on the condition that he shall divide the recovered treasure with the charitable institutions of the city. Thompson is now figuring on the proposition, to ascertain whether there will be enough to his share to pay for the digging. If he had the opening of the box and the dividing of the treasure it would be all right, but it has to pass into the hands of the Street Commissioner as he takes it from the ground.

An Injustice to T. J. Edwards

The Gold Hill News and also a legal organ in this city has done Thomas J. Edwards a great injustice in charging him with drawing money from a Virginia bank in order to avoid paying the taxes on it. The facts of the case are that Edwards held the money in trust as Clerk of the U. S. Circuit Court. The money deposited in the bank in Virginia City was represented in this county by a certificate of deposit which was a negotiable paper, and according to law "follows the body of the owner." The money was therefore assessed in Ormsby county by Mr. Kersey, the Storey county assessor having no control over it. It was over a month after the assessment that he drew the money and paid the assessment in due form. The drawing of the money made no difference whatever in the payment of the taxes, and furthermore, Mr. Edwards only holding the money in trust would have made nothing if he had avoided the taxes altogether.

Henry Kaiser was yesterday granted a divorce from Edith Kaiser.

A New Way of Sending Money by Mail.

Postmaster General James has, it is said, devised a plan for sending small sums of money through the mail at a cheap rate. The device consists of a card having three columns, representing dollars, tens and cents, and the amount to be drawn is designated by punching out the figures. Two denominations will be issued; one for all sums within $2 50, and the other for all sums within $5. The order will be payable to the bearer, and the postoffice will not be responsible for their safe delivery any more than for fractional currency, for which they are a substitute. They will be finely printed on bank note paper. The postmaster will sell the $2 50 card for two or three cents premium, and the $5 card for four or five cents premium, and will himself punch out the amount paid, and the buyer will simply enclose the card in his letter, and the receiver can cash it at any office. The postmaster will enter the amount of the order on a stub, which will be the only check the Department will need, as the name of the sender and payer are not entered. In order to prevent the use of the postal orders as currency, they are not to be redeemable only for three months from the date of issue.

More Bear Talk.

The Gold Hill News of last night says: We have from good authority that the whole of the so called secret movement consists of this—nothing more. Captain John Kelly and three brokers of San Francisco, some little time since, formed a pool and bought 7,000 shares of Sierra Nevada at about $9 per share. The recent activity and manipulation in Sierra Nevada are simply the result of the efforts of the gentlemen of the pool to work off their stock at from $15 to $17 per share. It is presumed that the pool gentlemen had an understanding with the Bonanza firm to the effect that if the latter, who had but little Sierra Nevada, would not short the stock the former would let Union Consolidated alone, and thereby give the bonanza firm, who held a great deal of it, a fine opportunity to sell some of their surplus at from $12 to $14 per share.

The Crisis Passed.

Hon. G. L. Wood, now a resident of Reno, telegraphed on Monday to Washington, as follows:

RENO, August 29.

F. D. POWER: Is there any reasonable hope for our friend? I am extremely anxious. GEO. L. WOODS. At one o'clock P. M. the following answer was received:

WASHINGTON, D. C. Aug 29.

To Hon. Geo. L. Woods:—Yes; very decided. We think crisis past; the Lord's doing. F. D. POWER.

F. D. Power is the pastor of the Christian Church in Washington City of which the President is a member.

School Matters.

The public schools will open on Monday morning with the following corps of teachers: Professor Howe, Principal; Miss Annie Martin, assistant; second grammar, Miss Walters; north ward, Miss Lena Patten; south ward, Miss Grace Doydell; first primary, Miss Babcock; second primary, Miss Kate Hodgkinson; third primary, Miss Jennie Kelly; first intermediate, Miss Ryan; second intermediate, Miss Bardenwerper. A new school room is being fitted up in the central building. The kindergarten has been abolished.

The President's Condition.

WASHINGTON, August 30—[Official Bulletin]—Executive Mansion, 8:30 A. M.—The President slept the greater part of the night, awakening at intervals and retaining the liquid nourishment administered. His condition this morning is about the same as at the same hour yesterday. Pulse 102, temperature 98.5, respiration 18. [The eastern wires were broken at this point.]

A Ripe Old Age.

J. W. Sharp, father of the Sharp Bros., of the Ormsby House, lost his mother recently. She died in Boston, Mass., August 14th, at the age of 94. She was born in England and came to America 60 years ago. She suffered from no disease, but simply died of old age.

Gov. Kinkead has issued orders that the colors of the armories of the First Brigade of Nevada State Militia be draped in mourning for sixty days on account of the death of Gen. Batterman.

IN BRIEF.

There was an insurance policy of $19,000 on Gen. Batterman's life.

Orlando E. Jones, formerly of the Homer Mining Index, will start a paper in Hawthorne to-day.

Gen. A. J. Hatch has sued the Nevada and Oregon Railway for $14,000. The road will be attached unless satisfactory bonds are given.

B. F. Meder is erecting a scaffolding about the Ormsby House preparatory to sanding it a stone grey color similar to the cornice of the capitol building.

Have you seen that 5-ounce ladies' guard chain, cost $155, for sale for $72 at Uncle Harris', 221 Kearny street, between Bush and Sutter.

IMPURE BREATH

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, FRAGRANT SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the wood. Ask your druggist for it.
