LOCAL NOTES.

Everybody should read Cohn's big ad today. More of this tomorrow.

Folsom & Dunn are selling oats, wheat and ground barley, at 2 1/2 cts. per pound, respectively.

Eclipse Extra Dry is the only native Champagne equal to any imported, and but half the price.

For Banquets Dinners and Parties use Eclipse Extra Dry, it is equal to any and superior to most imported brands, and the only natural California champagne in the market.

W. H. Chedic has added to his already large stock of drugs and chemicals, a full assortment of garden and field seeds, which can be had in quantities to suit. Call and examine.

At a meeting of Capital Lodge No. 20, I. O. O. F., the following P. G. were elected as representative to the R. W. Ground Lodge which meets at Wianemucca June 2nd: Geo. W. Chedic, J. D. Kersey, D. G. Kitzmeyer, J. W. Hall and A. J. Mills. April 3rd 1885.

Every flavor that Dr. Price has made has the peculiar taste of the fruit from which it is obtained, and are so true to nature that their use leaves nothing to be desired. We have yet to hear of the cook who has used Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts, that was not delighted with them. For natural flavors none compare with Dr. Price's.

The Paradise Valley Mill.

The new reduction works built by the Paradise Valley M. & M Co., are said to be running splendidly, with the exception of the 'jiggers,' with which some trouble is experienced. Should the works do as well as the Company anticipates it is not likely that very many more stamp mills will be built in that part of Nevada.

The Highest Grades

For the best wines and liquors and the lowest prices go to W. H. Chedic & Co., Adams House block.

Enough For a Mill In.

Seeds of all kinds, enough to cover the whole State, for sale at W. H. Chedic's drug store.

Lace Curtains.

Mrs. R. Mills, wishes to inform the ladies of Carson and vicinity, that she is prepared to do up Lace Curtains, in any color or white. Great care taken with work and satisfaction guaranteed. Residence corner Musser and Plaza streets.

A WICKED LIFE.

History of a Sage-Brush Elated Youth.

Arthur McKwen, in a letter to the Sacramento Bee, draws a pen picture of a poor devil, whom most of us know, but he gives no names. The picture is so well drawn that he does not need to.

"I saw the little ex-Senator pacing about the court of the Palace Hotel the other evening. In his company was a tall, broad-shouldered, fashionably dressed young man, who would have been handsome, but that his face was bloated and his eyes mean and shifty in expression. The youth is the son of a millionaire. I doubt if the gentleman from Montana, hungry and longing for comfortable quarters in jail, would envy either of these two if he knew what their lives are. I need say nothing of Sharon. All the world knows how happy he is. As for the young man, his lot is worse than that of the unwilling husband of Sarah Althea. Ten years ago I used to see him riding his velocipede on the sidewalk before his father's mansion. He was a shaver of thirteen then, a handsome, healthy and promising boy, at twenty-three he is a drunkard and loafer, rotten in morals, dulled in mind, bankrupt in character, and lost to all pride. For his mother's sake I refrain from naming him as I write. She is a good woman, though the father is far from being a good man. The boy, I dare say, came honestly by his low inclinations. Had he but also inherited the vice of avarice it would have saved him and made him father's pride and partner instead of his torment. As a millionaire's son the lad was petted and given money. Preferring the saloon to the school-room, he was a drunkard at seventeen. Private tutors could do nothing with him, and more than one college expelled him. Travel was tried, but only the facilities for debauchery offered by the cities of the world interested him. A fete was given by his parents at their home to celebrate his attainment of his majority. The young man made the occasion memorable by getting boisterously drunk and outraging the guests. As the only use he made of money was to squander it on coarse dissipation, the supply was cut off. Then, on the strength of his parentage, he got credit. He never paid, and today this interesting heir to millions must show his money in any bar-room of the city before a drink or cigar will be given him.

Here is how the young man now lives: His board is paid at any hotel he chooses to stop at; his tailor's bills are cared for, and if he appears each day at a certain bank at a stipulated hour a $5 piece is handed him. His order for the money will not be honored nor can he let it accumulate. If he fails to call at the bank in person he loses the five dollars. A strong motive for keeping sufficiently sober to walk is thus given."

Settled at Last

Some years ago, Jos. Jones and John Q. Adams got into a litigation over a water right near Genoa. It was when both were blythe young men. The case has dragged on, and yesterday the Supreme Court decided that Adams was the top dog in the fight.

JUDGE SABIN'S DILEMMA.

His Unfortunate Connection With the Hill-Sharon Case.

On Sunday when Judge Sabin got off the train the first man who met him was H. M. Yerington, who said, "How are you Judge, any news from Miss Hill?"

"I have no news from Miss Hill," said the Judge, and walked on.

Then H. S. Mason grabbing him one side inquired, "Has Sarah Althea skipped?"

"I really can't say, I am not managing the affairs of Sarah Althea."

"Weren't you a Judge in the U. S. Court?" asked another.

"I was there during a portion of the time acting during the sickness of Judge Sawyer. I made one or two orders in the case, that was all."

As he walked up the street every man he met rushed up with inquiries about Miss Hill.

"Say do ye suppose she's hidin' in Judge Terry's house?"

"Can't say, don't even know where Terry's house is, or that he has any at all."

"Which way was she goin' when she left the Court-room?"

"I didn't see her leave, can't say whether she went through the door climbed over the transom, or out of the window. As I said before I know nothing of Miss Hill, or her habits or whereabouts."

"Do you think that contract genuine or cooked up?" asked a red-headed interrogation point.

"Have not examined the contract with a view to ascertaining its genuineness."

"Do you think Miss Hill a dead beat or a respectable woman?" asked another searcher for light.

"Am not qualified to pass any opinion upon the lady's character. Have no time to investigate people's characters. Put my time in largely minding my own business, when I am not attending Court duties. I presume that Judge Tyler or Judge Terry would answer your questions if you wrote and enclosed stamps. Good day sir."

Before he reached his room the Judge was tackled about fifty times with queries about Miss Hill and her whereabouts. He wishes that either himself or Miss Hill would die, he is not particular which.

Pasturage

I have 350 acres of good pasturage and first class water facilities, at the old Conner ranch on the State Prison road. Am prepared to pasture cattle and horses, and will make a specialty of milk cows.

Cows taken to and from any part of the city, morning and evening, by competent drivers and pastured for $2 a month. Inquire on the premises, or leave orders at Rosser's butcher shop.

Sarah Althea Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—Sarah Althea Hill-Sharon, who, it was supposed had fled to Honolulu to escape being obliged to produce the "Dear Wife" letters and the alleged marriage contract with Sharon before the U. S. Circuit Court, was discovered and arrested in this city last night by Deputy U. S. Marshal Gregory. She was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000, Gustav Reis and Mrs. Burkett going on her bond.

A New Trial Probable.

Upon the 13th instant the case of Wells, Fargo & Co. vs. Rogers will be brought up again in the District Court for argument of motion to the retrax costs. It is probable that a motion for a new trial will also be argued, as the plain tiffs claim that they have obtained some very important new evidence that it was not possible to obtain on the other trial.—Dayton Times.

A Counterfeit Twenty.

The True Fissure Says: A counterfeit twenty-dollar gold piece, of the date of 1880, has made its appearance. It is made almost entirely of lead, from a cast of the genuine coin, and is battery gilded. It is of good appearance and has the metallic ring, but is readily detected by its light weight. This is the first counterfeit of the double eagle ever reported.

Vestrymen Elected.

At a meeting held at St. Peter's Episcopal Church last evening, with the rector in the chair, the following vestrymen were elected for the ensuing year. Judge Sabin, H. S. Mason, Dr. Southworth, M. M. Hyde, Peter Doyle, George Morrison and S. P. Davis.

TERRIBLE REVENGE.

The Governor Will Never Speak to the Lieutenant Governor Again.

Whenever the Governor gets real mad at a man, he refuses to speak to him. The Reno Journal gets off the following:

Peace and harmony no longer prevails in the Capitol building at Carson between the two Governors. Shortly after Governor Adams' return from San Francisco the ex-Acting Governor entered the Executive Chamber and said:

"Good morning, Governor."

The Governor did not respond. Again Lieutenant Governor Laughton said:

"Good morning, Governor."

The Governor did not respond. Whereupon the Lieutenant Governor loudly exclaimed:

"Governor I have some papers to submit for your action."

Then the Governor turned around in his chair, and remarked:

"I will recognize you sir, officially, but I decline to recognize you socially, now or hereafter."

At this the ex-Acting Governor warmed up and said he didn't care a d— whether the Governor recognized him or not, and as he supposed it was on account of his action on the bills left in his charge, he would simply say that under the same circumstances his action would always be the same.

Governor Adams refused to give the little Governor any satisfaction, and the social relations heretofore existing between the two gentlemen have evidently been sundered forever.

After seeing the above an APPEAL correspondent was despatched to the seat of war and found Mr. Laughton in his office. When asked if it was true that he had been cut off from the list of people who bask within the charmed circle of the gubernatorial acquaintance, he said it was alas too true.

"I don't care so much for myself," said he, as he wiped the tears from his eyes, "but I am afraid that fifteen or twenty years from now, somebody may throw it up to my children, that the Governor of Nevada wouldn't speak to me."

The reporter overcame at the sight of such grief quietly withdrew.
