Cure of a Strain. MACEDON CENTRE, WAYNE CO., N. Y. February 28, 1885. Some years ago I badly strained my stomach picking cherries, and have suffered greatly ever since. Nothing has been so beneficial as Alcock's Plasters. They entirely cured me of that trouble. I have also been afflicted with a lame ankle, but these Plasters soon enabled me to walk. I recommend them whenever I have an opportunity, as I have found them very useful for over ten years. Alcock's Plasters have always done me the greatest service, and I am every day more and more convinced that no household should be without them. MRS. SUSIE A. BILLS.

The Panorama. Corey's art exhibition at the Opera House has drawn delighted audiences. The pictures and views are thrown on a large screen by the aid of a stereopticon, and they include all classes of pictures. Some are from photographs of actual scenery and some are colored. They are all very pleasing and instructive, and no one can pass two hours more pleasantly than by seeing this exhibition.

Chinamen Supplanted. The Elko Free Press says: The Central Pacific Railroad Company is replacing the Chinamen lately employed on the different sections of their road in this part of Nevada with white men. About twenty white men have been put on in the past two weeks.

To Mothers Only. Before the opening of school do not fail to go to Bergman's, and buy some of those 50 cent and 75 cent Pants for your Boys, as they are going very fast. aug31,3c

SOMETHING IN THE WIND.

Rumored Wholesale Cutting of Prominent Saints From The Church.

Indications strongly confirm the report that a startling movement is about to be made by the leaders of the Mormon Church. It is widely rumored that Bishop H. B. Clawson, Henry Dinwoody, H. W. Naisbitt, A. Milton Musser, Orson Ar. Old, Apostle Grant and other prominent Saints, either have been, or are about to be, cut off from the Church. The reasons assigned for this wholesale slaughter are various and so far as the Salt Lake Democrat can learn, based upon surmise rather than authentic information obtained from reliable sources. Some confidently assert that the alleged victims compose a rebellious faction in the Church; are dissatisfied with the manner in which its financial affairs are conducted, and have rendered themselves obnoxious to the majority of their associates by their disposition to ignore "counsel" and adversely criticize the actions and policy of those who constitute the ruling power. Others express the belief that it is an understood thing between the bouncers and the bounced-that the latter are to comprise the nucleus of a counter organization which is to declare itself in opposition to polygamy, and that others are gradually falling in line, and by that course secure for themselves at least a portion of the credit for wiping out the institution, which they can plainly see is doomed to fall in a short time under the overpowering forces of public opinion and Congressional law. Perhaps the latter is the most plausible and likely inference that has been drawn. It has been apparent for some time that there is a strong element in the Church, composed partly of some of its most clear-headed and intelligent officials, who believe that the polygamous question should be settled by abandonment, and it is perhaps not improbable that the rumored movement is directed toward that point. The most direct way would be by revelation through the head of the Church, but President Taylor, in the stubbornness or imbecility of age, cannot be brought up to this heroic mark, and as notwithstanding his detour, he cannot be removed from his position while he lives, some other means must be adopted to bring about the desired result. There are various other solutions suggested, but as all are based upon imperfect knowledge of the facts, the development of the matter will have to be awaited before an opinion can be confidently expressed. It is quite evident, however, that something of extraordinary interest is in the wind, and that there is great commotion among the Saints brethren in rank in the Church. It is certainly improbable that the rumors of the cutting off are entirely without foundation, and whatever the cause it will be attended by important results.

A Lapsed Politician.

At the last meeting of the Anti-Chinese League, Major Garrard is reported as having advised the members of the League to keep away from the Republican primaries. This is rather queer advice considering the fact that Garrard was so anxious to have the Republicans attend the Democratic Primaries. Only the other day the writer heard a leading Democrat cursing the League as follows: "The d--- agreed to stand in and vote at our primaries but they went back on us the ---"

The Democrats expected that there would be a large number of dissatisfied Republicans who would fall into their trap and vote at the Democratic primaries swallowing ticket and everything, but they found that after all the pulling and shouting but 250 votes were in the box. The great crowd of dissatisfied Republicans have dwindled down to half a dozen sore heads who have been kicked out of both parties half a dozen times and who have no political postoffice address. Major Garrard thinks he can herd this crowd and he is quite welcome to the whole gang. When a Democratic politician who has been repudiated by his own party (by some 200 to 50) gets up and advises Republicans to stay away from their party primaries, the only explanation of it is that he is locoed.

Nevada Wheat Land.

Nevada is rich in wheat land, but a good many people pass it over, little realizing what wealth could be taken out if some one went about it in the right way. For some weeks past an item has been going the rounds about the experiment made by W. H. Mills, Land Agent, of the C. P. R. R., with his three crops of wheat.

The writer recently met Mr. Mills in San Francisco and he gave his ideas on the subject, as follows: "I claim that most of the so called worthless land of Nevada can be made to produce large crops of grain. I tried the experiment near Reno by selecting a devilish poor piece of ground and planting it to wheat in the Fall. The crop was a failure, a few stunted stalks of wheat came up and the people who saw it laughed. I ordered it plowed up again and this time it was better, producing about three bushels to the acre. I ordered it all plowed up again and sowed. This year it came to the front in good shape and yielded fifteen bushels to the acre. All this was without a drop of artificial irrigation. My theory is that the ground lacks certain chemical constituents which are supplied by sun and air. The ground needs turning over and slacking to make it strong. I hold that the atmosphere of Nevada is particularly adapted to agriculture. Take the worst land you can find then turn it over each successive year for three years and you can get any kind of crops. You make good ground of it. The worst alkali grounds you have in Nevada can be washed out and be made simply magnificent for all kinds of crops. These alkali grounds need little or no irrigation for the natural moisture is always there. Plant such ground to beets and pay no further attention to them. The beets will grow enormously and take out the alkali. There is an agricultural future for Nevada, greater than any of you dream of."

The Overland.

The September Overland opens with a striking story of the Bret Harte school, called "The Lone Woman of Keya Paha Mountain," by a new writer John Milton Hoffman. His future work will be looked for with interest. The other fiction of the number is a long story of Oregon or Washington Territory, called Janet Craig, and introducing a very lovable heroine; and an installment of the dramatic Mexican serial, in which the two principal characters, Chata and Chinita, make their advent upon the stage prepared for them by the previous chapters. The vividness with which the various occupations, classes, talk and behavior of a Mexican hacienda are brought before the reader's eyes, is remarkable; we believed no such study of Mexican life has ever found its way into literature.

It also presents the reader with the usual criticisms, book reviews and poetry. The article on German Beer Drinkers will be read with interest in this city.

He was There.

Senator Stewart is not only championing the silver cause in Nevada, but he went down to Los Angeles and inserted a silver plank in the Republican State platform. As Col. Fair is residing in California it would seem that that is his business.
