Death of Jerry Schooling.

Yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock Hon. Jerry Schooling died in this city, of cerebral apoplexy. Mr. Schooling was stricken in the morning, and his daughters in Oakland were telegraphed for, as all hope of recovery was given up by the physicians. He was unconscious after the first stroke. Mr. Schooling was some years ago State Treasurer, and at the time of his death was Cashier of the Mint. He was a man well known all over Nevada as a leader in Democratic politics. He leaves a wife and several children, and his death will be regretted all over the Coast.

Senator Ingalls.

Senator Ingalls of Kansas is the thinnest man in Congress. He has six feet of narrowness, and he dresses so as to emphasize his deformity as much as possible. Ingalls is not a companionable man. He is a dyspeptic and has but few intimate friends. Ingalls loves to be feared. Sometimes he will come to the front for a measure, the friends of which had no idea that he would support it. This is just like him. Often he picks up some apparently unimportant bill and makes a tremendous fight, and then there will be measures attracting the attention of the country, and Ingalls will sit in his seat as dumb as an oyster. But, above all, Ingalls is a man of unquestioned pugnacity, and he does not stop to choose his opponents. Since he has been in the Senate he has had a tilt with nearly every member of the Democratic side and a few of his own party friends. Just now he is in rather an unhappy frame of mind. There isn't any burning question which seem to demand his attention, but the country can depend upon it that he will make one if none comes to the surface before a great while. He will not be able to stand the pressure much longer.—Boston Traveller.

A Mean Trick
Yesterday the APPEAL learned for the first time that the Free Lance had suspended publication.

We gleaned this piece of news from an Elko paper. We were quite surprised to learn that the Free Lance had been dead some little time, and the proprietor had quietly kept this item from the public.

It seems only fair that when a Carson newspaper dies that the proprietor might at least call around and mention the fact to his late contemporaries.

The APPEAL has always treated the Free Lance with great courtesy and this is how that paper returns the compliment. If it hadn't been that we carelessly picked up the Elko paper the other day we might have not found out that the Free Lance was dead before next Summer.

The same game was played on us before some years ago. The Evening Times died and the proprietor, who met us on the street every day, drank beer with us at Fischer and Decker's as sociable as could be, never so much as hinted that the Times had gone up. He kept it quiet for a week, the sly dog, and then gave a Virginia City paper the first account of the demise and funeral. The APPEAL has always treated its Carson contemporaries fairly and we consider it a slight when they go off and die on the sly.

When a Carson newspaper goes up the eternal flame it ought to send out printed circulars like this:

Office of the — Carson City.
To the editor of the — — —:
This office expects to peter out on —, 188—, and your company is respectfully solicited to take part in the death chamber scenes.

"We came up as the flower and are cut down like the tickle grass, and no longer continue in one stay."

Respectfully, ———, Publisher.

Of course the above is not absolutely necessary, but it would at least convey the idea that the publisher of the deceased newspaper had some ideas on the amenities of journalism. If some more papers die here during the next few months we at least want to be notified.

No Wonder.
Yesterday a man who was eating some roast pork at the St. Charles, remarked that he couldn't tell it from chicken with his eyes shut.

He was so struck with the quality of the pork that he was determined to secure some of the breed. He traced the pork to a neighboring butcher shop, and there found that they had purchased a pig at the Holstein Ranch. The pig was of the ordinary Berkshire breed, but an investigation showed that he had been living on chickens for several months. Over seventy of the writer's chickens had been devoured, and the pig had made a bed of the feathers. No wonder his flesh was chicken flavored.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

An Institution Long Needed in Nevada.

The Committee on Education yesterday reported to the Assembly a bill for the organization of an Industrial School. It appropriates $40,000 for the purpose. While we have not seen a copy of the bill, hence cannot speak unqualifiedly of its provisions, the principle of an industrial school is right. There are in this State at least one hundred hoodlums that should be taught trades. Now the courts place the criminally bad boy in the State Prison, and the county authorities use every possible influence to place the hoodlum of simply average meanness in the Orphans' Home. Neither the Prison nor the Home is the place for a boy simply because he is bad. The Prison is for the hardened criminal beyond the hope of reform; the Home for the homeless little boys and girls innocent of crime. To place a boy of thirteen years beyond the reach of education, either intellectual or moral, and among stage robbers and cut throats is itself a crime; to place a boy of foul mouth and vile habits among those orphans, the wards of the State, is equally criminal. Let us have in Nevada, as is found in all large cities and all other States, a reform school, an industrial school, a school where the youthful criminal may be taught morals and manners; taught to read and write; taught to labor with his hands and also all other requisites of a useful manhood.—Reno Gazette.

The Hawthorne Bulletin says:
It is freely admitted by all, but the few who always persist in hating successful political opponents, that the present Legislature is one of the best that the State has ever had. The work is, as a rule, done promptly and sensibly. Of course, there are occasional breaks in the harmony of Legislative action, but the average conduct, as is said of school children, is good. Nevertheless, with the best intentions and a creditable amount of ability, some of the most efficient members of the Assembly are opposing the resolution, relative to the abandonment of the Indian Reservation. They think that it is a scheme of cattlemen to seize the land. Now it is possible that there is such a scheme, but if there is, signers of the petition in this county, know nothing about it; they want the reservation abandoned for the general public good. More than that, if there is such a scheme, while very few Esmeralda people are interested in cattle, they would still desire the abandonment of the reservation. There was once a time when cattlemen were the enemies of the measure. They may since then have made such arrangements as would enable them to step in ahead of any others and seize the land, but the supposition is very doubtful, and, as has been said, Esmeralda county would rather see the cattlemen have the land than see it lying idle. However, the land to be abandoned is mineral land which they could not get, nor could they dip out the lake and carry it away, so the cautious members who hesitate may rest easy as to the merits of the petition, and assist the State by giving the memorial resolution a unanimous vote.

No Legislation Yet.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has decided not to call up Morrow's Anti-Chinese bill this session. The Committee thinks that a thoroughly effective exclusion cannot be framed without conflicting with the present treaty, and as Secretary Bayard is now negotiating a treaty with the Chinese Minister here that will permit the most stringent legislation in regard to excluding the Chinese when it is adopted, the Committee hold that would be futile to pass a half-way measure now.

Catholic Fair.
The ladies of the Catholic Church will hold a Fair at the Opera House on the 10th, 11th and 12th of February. Admission 50 cents; children 25 cents.
