A SUGGESTION.

Is it Necessary to Have a School Exhibition?

There is a proposition on foot to have a school exhibition with the idea of charging the public an admission fee, so that the proceeds would enable the schools to keep open for the full term. This seems at first blush a good idea, but at the same time it has its disadvantages. Such an exhibition would bring together quite a crowd of people, but when the cost is fairly figured it leaves no margin for profit.

Nearly every family will naturally expect that some member of it will appear on the stage. No matter how little a family can afford the outlay, each mother has a pride in seeing her little household pet in new kid slippers, silk stockings, immaculate dresses and costly sashes. It is hard to fix up a child for a public performance for less than $5, and the expense is often doubled. Then the little things are kept up until midnight, as the school programmes are proverbially long, and the result is an epidemic of sick headaches, colds and in some cases fatal sickness. Then a lot of unforeseen expenses eat up the profits, and there is very little left for the schools.

Would it not be much better for the school trustees to go about the town and call on the head of each family for a subscription to aid the schools? Any man would much rather pay five or ten dollars and have the matter done with than to pay the same amount out to his children to purchase a lot of gew-gaws which will only come in use one night and benefit no one.

Several gentlemen have mentioned this matter to the writer and requested the publication of these suggestions. They will all give from $5 to $10 apiece to keep the schools going.

A Hardy Family.

Mr. S. C. Wright, of Carson City, says there are ten members of his family, and not a death has occurred therein, and their joint ages figure 510 years, and all were born and raised in the State of New York.—Exchange.

There are other peculiarities about Mr. Wright's family worth mentioning. He is doubtless the strongest man physically, in Carson today, as anyone can realize who makes a careful inspection of his short, thick-jointed hands. He never makes any use of his great strength, however, and never gets mad enough at anybody to hurt them. The oldest inhabitant never saw him roused enough to hit anybody, or even threaten to.

Some years ago an old man in New York State told a hired man to put a barrel of cider into the rear of a wagon. He said he was not stout enough, and the old gentleman replied:

"My daughter here, who is not yet twenty, can put it in," and he pointed to a medium-sized young lady standing near.

The young lady smiled, and without assistance lifted the barrel of cider into the wagon, and apparently with little effort. This young lady afterwards became the mother of Mr. S. C. Wright, and never weighed over 120 pounds.

One night his father was walking along a lonely road, when a comrade dressed up as a ghost suddenly stepped out from behind a large rock and called upon the pedestrian to halt. Not recognizing his comrade he sprang upon him, folded him in his breast and gave him a squeeze with his powerful arms. It drove the breath out of the joker's body, and when he was released he staggered back and fell senseless. Mr. Wright went for some neighbors and related the circumstances. Going back with a lantern he was the first to discover that the senseless man was his best friend and companion. He carried him a mile and a half on his shoulder to a doctor, but it was of no use, he died shortly after.

This sad affair nearly drove Mr. Wright crazy, and preyed upon his mind for many years.

Canning Jeems

The purchasers of Senator Fair's road having proposed to pay him for it in bonds of the company, he now demands that the road shall be managed so as to be profitable, or else that other securities for his money shall be given. He opposes the withdrawal of the Alameda route, and will probably either break the sale or else force what will practically be cash payment.

THE TROUBLE IN COLUSA.

Indignation Against the Chinese—An Indian Threatened.

COLUSA, April 22.—The Indian boy who was with the Sheriff's posse when the Chinaman was killed above Butte City, while in the pursuit of Hong Di, Mrs. Billiou's murderer, was in Colusa last night and reports that the Chinese in that section have threatened to kill ten white men for every Chinaman killed. He says that they have been watching him like a hawk. Upon inquiry as to whether he was prepared to meet them or not, he stated that he was, and that unless they killed him at the first shot he would send another one of their race to the happy land. It is said that he is a peaceable, unassuming and unoffensive boy, but that he can shoot a pistol with perfect accuracy, having killed twelve turkeys without missing, at turkey shooting some time ago, when the parties in charge refused to allow him to participate further.

The boy does not seem much alarmed over the threats of the Mongols, although he believes that they will kill him if an opportunity is offered, thinking that he was the one who fired the fatal shot. Judging from the rumors afloat, there may be serious trouble in the Butte City section within the next two weeks over this affair, and unless the Chinese desist in their lawless acts Colusa county will be a very unhealthy place for them. The citizens are now awakened to a sense of duty, enraged as they are over the brutal murder of Mrs. Billiou, thereby ruining the happiness of an entire family, and are prepared to act in a moment's notice upon not only the real perpetrator, but any who attempt to screen the guilty from a just punishment. It is generally believed that the Chinese are the cause of Hong Di's escape; that he has been aided by them in every move since his crossing the river, and when you ask a question of one of them about one of them about the matter, the answer is certain to be, "Me no sabe." Nothing has been heard from him at Colusa, and it is believed his escape has been made good.

A Philanthropic Paper.

Carson has long needed a newspaper like the free advertising joint now trying to steady itself on King street. The mercenary sheets which have so long been published here, have been run solely in the interests of the publishers and with a view of causing the monthly receipts to exceed the expenditures. This is indeed a sordid method of conducting a journal which, although very much in vogue with newspapers, nevertheless ought to be frowned down by all true patriots.

Not many men can be found to run newspapers merely to ameliorate the condition of the masses and for the editor's health. Occasionally such a man springs up and the great scarcity of that style of person renders him indeed an object of interest wherever he goes.

At the same time the county can hobble along without him. What we really need in this section is a man who will run a grocery store on that plan, and furnish flour and mackerel at gratuitous rates. Such a man as that would be received with loud acclamation here in Carson, and whenever such a store starts, the APPEAL pledges itself to do all its advertising and job work free.

The Editor.

A schoolboy's composition on "The Editor" ran as follows: "The editor is one of the most happiest individuals in the world. He can go to the circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a nickel; also, to inquests and hangings. He has free tickets to theaters, gets wedding cake sent him and sometimes gets a licking, but not often, for he can take things back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have got to go to bed early the editor can sit up every night and see all that is going on. When I am a man I mean to be an editor, so that I can stay out late at nights. Then that will be jolly."

It must have been the reading of the above composition that induced the editor of our gratuitous advertising contemporary to enter the ranks of journalism.

—The farmers around Fort Worth, Texas, are plowing up their land in search of gold.

To Beat Pictures.

Two curious pictures are now amusing the Germans. The first is, "Where are the Peacemakers?" It shows the conventional figures of a Russian, an English man, a Frenchman and a Chinaman. When the picture is folded these four figures are merged into one—that of Prince Bismarck. The same result is attained in the second picture, representing Gen. Bonaparte, M. Paul Deroulede, Herr Richter and Herr Wiadthor-t. F ided together they also exhibit the Imperial Chancellor. The Berliners appear to have been greatly amused by these two pictures.

Change the subject

The Virginia City papers are busy just now discussing the question as to whether or not the publisher of the MORNING APPEAL is a brick. The question cuts no figure whatever in the growth and prosperity of the silver State and is the only one who can be at all concerned in the matter we advise our Virginia contemporaries to quit the squabble and turn their attention to investigating the causes of the uncertainties of the Comstock stock market and ascertain how many shares of Union Con. is held by John Kelly.

The Team.

The following named members of the Carson Guard rifle team, having made the highest scores in the first Topeka competition, have been selected by Capt. Wright to shoot the match with the Greenfield military company to-morrow: G. A. Wilcox, J. Saffell, Geo. Cowing, Jr., Geo. W. Richard, C. H. Galusha, Z. F. Alley, H. G. Parker, G. C. Thaxter, S. L. Lee, Jas. Holbrook. The match scores to be first scores without sighting shots, and to count as one of the Topeka competition scores.

Talk of Closing Down.

The White Pine News says there has been considerable talk on the streets for the past few days about the Argus mine closing down. It all came from the Superintendent saying that if silver went much lower, such a step would be inevitable. The mine is looking first-class, and, we are informed, has a fine body of ore in sight, but if silver goes below ninety cents, the management think it is sacrificing their property to work it. No one can blame them.

T for Fat.

Mable Baldwin the girl arrested in Reno, charged with taking clothes from Mercedes was discharged in the police court for lack of evidence. After the case was dismissed Mercedes still accused the girl of theft and held some of her property. Miss Baldwin then swore out a warrant against Mercedes, charging her with false imprisonment. The case was finally compromised by Miss Baldwin receiving her clothes and leaving for Reno.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

NEEDLES, Cal., April 23.—The East-bound freight train ran into a burnt bridge near Winlow this morning. Fifteen cars were badly wrecked. Fireman Ward and two tramps were killed. The West-bound passenger, due this morning was delayed in consequence.
