

The Post of Saturday publishes the sworn statement of about fifty newsboys as to the number of afternoon papers they sell. It shows that the Post is three to one in lead of its afternoon contemporaries. This is about as good a way that a paper's circulation can be established.

The Call and Chronicle have always sworn to the number of papers printed. The Post only records actual sales. The circulation of a newspaper is a matter of great importance, as it is the guide by which the advertiser estimates what he gets for his money.

No paper has the right to make its patrons think it circulates more than it really does. Getting patronage under these circumstances is simply swindling. The APPEAL has never bragged about its circulation. Occasionally transient advertisers inform the APPEAL that all the other papers in the city claim the largest circulation. It is easy to claim a large circulation. Every man who advertises in the APPEAL is welcome to come to this office at night when the paper is run off and see just how many actually pass through the press. Advertisers are also at liberty to interview Postmaster White, and he will tell you just how many pounds of APPEAL'S pass through the mails every day.

Every man who advertises in the APPEAL has a right to know of these matters, and as before stated, people who deal with this office are at liberty to call at any time and see the edition printed. We hope that similar privileges will be granted advertisers by our Carson contemporaries.

Stewart's Idea.

Senator Stewart remarked to an Examiner reporter: "If I had my way, instead of cutting off the passes of the Senators and Congressmen, as has been done by the Inter-State law, I'd give them all passes and make their travelling at least 5,000 miles a year compulsory. What do these Congressmen know about their country? What would you, if you had always lived in California, know about legislating for Florida, for instance? Well, there is a whole lot of Congressmen just that ignorant. They ought to put up in geography, and that's why I say I'd make every one of them travel at least 5,000 miles every year."

If the members of Congress would subscribe to leading papers from the different States and read them, they could save all this travel.

The Knights of Labor will never get along entirely well until they succeed in getting themselves into that state of discipline which will make the whole order move as one man. The Knights are far from that condition now. When the organization is not at outs with some employing concerns, the Knights get up a ruction within their own ranks. The latest jump made is reported as being charges against Grand Master Powderly. When the army is at outs with its General, the army will never find a foe that can be conquered.

The Daily Report sends in a good shot as follows:

The Episcopal convention yesterday decided, after a warm and long debate, to refuse women the right to vote in church matters. The clergymen will of course, be consistent, and decline henceforth to permit the women to contribute to presentation purses or do the hard work of socials, fairs and entertainments gotten up to meet the expense entailed by the pastor's salary, etc.

At Mason Valley last week Barney Reymours struck at a pig with a long handled shovel as it disappeared around the corner of his dwelling. He missed the pig but the blow nearly annihilated his little daughter who was approaching from an opposite direction.

A man named W. H. Orr has been arrested at Sacramento who was found to have in his possession a number of counterfeit coupons of the Louisiana Lottery tickets. He had victimized a number of purchasers.
