ALL NORIN.

—Senator Foley is in the city.
 —Lung Protectors at Thaxter's Drug Store.
 —For cold feet, get a Hot Water Bag at Thaxter's.
 —Sarah Althea has won her divorce suit in the Supreme Court of Cal.

—Dempsey, "the Nonpariel" has bested McCaffery. He ought to be called at least "three line pica," now.

—The visiting comrades pronounce their reception at Carson ahead of anything they have ever seen.

—The ladies of the Episcopal Church will hold a pleasant social at the residence of the Rector on Thursday evening. Friends and acquaintances invited.

—The great advance in the price of copper has been followed by a rapid rise in quicksilver. It looks like there would be a big mining boom on the coast this year.

—For more than forty years, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been successfully prescribed in cases of consumption. This medicine always affords great relief in pulmonary diseases. Ask your druggist for it.

—A clear skin adds to the beauty of a fine face, and often lends a charm to homeliness. To beautify your complexion, you should purify your blood with Ayer's Sassaaparilla. As a tonic and alterative medicine, it has no equal. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

—Three men tackled an editor in Knoxville, Tennessee, with sixshooters. He replied in the same sign language of his State, and two of his opponents were removed to their homes to make their peace with God. The editor reloaded the chambers of weapon, and is at work on their obituaries.

—Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, has developed the most elaborate case of mugwumpery on record. She says that in Kansas and Iowa she is a Republican, in Georgia a Democrat, in Indiana a third-party Prohibitionist, and in religious matters she is an admirer of Charles Bradlaugh, the English atheist orator.

—Dr. McLeman, the Healer, who created a great sensation on the Comstock during the last three months by his wonderful cures, will be leaving there about the 1st of February and probably remain over for a short time in Carson on his way home at San Francisco. Parties who desire to consult him should do so as soon as he arrives.

—Ambrose Bierce, when he hits at all, hits hard. Hear this:

The Episcopal Church at Sierra Madre, Los Angeles county, which was recently blown down, is about to be re-erected. As my contribution to the pious work, I submit the following as a suitable mural inscription:

Lord of the tempest, pray refrain
 From leveling this church again.
 But in its doom, if so you've willed it,
 We acquiesce. But you'll rebuild it.

"Heep Nice People."

A gentleman in the city met an old Chinaman on the streets a few days ago and asked him if he could do some work for him. "No," said the celestial solemnly. "I work in fast house now. Heep nice people."

FANCY SKATING.

Some Freaks on the Ice by a Jersey Editor.

Men who can write their names while skating on Donner Lake are common enough in Truckee.—Republican.

This is nothing wonderful. When we lived back in New Jersey we knew an editor there who used to skate on a pond just back of the newspaper office. We have often seen him as he glided over the mirrored surface of the pond, on a bright pair of shining steel skates, the blades of which rang out in the clear frosty air, tracing editorials on the black, fresh ice with his right heel, and punctuating with his left.

He composed with the utmost freedom as he went along, never pausing for a word, and occasionally throwing in a neatly turned joke or a few lines of reasonable poetry. Indeed, he was an accomplished skater, and wrote such plain copy that his typographical force looking out of the office windows would put his work in type as he went along.

He was really obliged to do this, as he wrote such a poor hand that nobody could read it without a shower of mountain blasphemy, but when he transcribed his ideas with skates his work could be easily read two hundred yards away.

After he had skated out an editorial and a few local items down on the pond the printers would divide it up into takes, like this:

"Bill, you set down to the old stump."

"Jack, take the copy from the big tree to the mouth of the creek."

"Joe, cut off and make a paragraph at the saw mill."

He would lay out his work just as he wanted it to appear in the paper; local items on third page, editorial on second, miscellaneous matter and advertisements on the first and fourth.

The foreman could glance over the pond and see at once how he wanted the paper made up. Occasionally he would skim along over his work for a few hundred feet and interline, but not often.

At night he would flood the pond with another inch of water and have a fresh place to write on next morning.

We do not quote this man as one of the fancy skaters of New Jersey; he was just an ordinary skater in that section, and when he skated for a prize on Watsessing lake in 1863, was given the leather medal for being the worst in the exhibition. New Jersey was the cradle of good skaters in those days.

The Lieutenant-Governor's Sword.

A great many strangers were attracted yesterday morning to a magnificent outfit of Masonry which lay carelessly on the ice-box in the Depot Hotel, while its owner was quietly eating his breakfast in the spacious dining-room. Curiosity exceeded good judgment in the investigation, and several opinions were advanced as to not only whom the property belonged, but what particular society it represented. Drinks were bet, and etc., when finally a big Irishman, noticing the red cross on the nickel plate around which the words were very plain "Eureka Commandery 2, K. T.," exclaimed: "Shure, gentlemen, I can tell ye phat it iz; it's the uniform of the Grand Marshal on St. Patrick's Day in Virginia City. Look at that cross!" All hands agreed until the bootblack turned over the case in which the sword was encased, and to the astonishment of all present, there, on the reverse side, were the letters, "H. C. Davis, Winnemucca, Nevada," "Whose name is that?" exclaimed the Hibernian. "The Lieutenant-Governor of Nevada," came from two or three present. "There, begorra, I can see through it all; he's after the Irish vote wid a sword that has the cross on it. Oh! be jabbers, I'm in wid 'im." A drink followed, and the Governor's sword afforded a few moments' pleasure to a gaping, yet not well posted investigating committee.—Journal.

DISCOVERY OF PEBBLESPECTACLES.

How to Detect the Genuine Pebble from Common Window Glass Sold in Spectacles.

Monsieur Spoon, in his "Researches Curieuses d'Antiquite," fixes the date of the invention of spectacles between the years of 1280 and 1311, and says that Alexander de Spina, having seen a pair made by some other person, who was unwilling to communicate the secret of their construction, ordered a pair for himself, and found them so useful that he promptly and cheerfully made the invention public. According to an Italian antiquary, the person to whom Spina was indebted for the information, was Sarvino, who died in the year 1318, and he quotes from a manuscript in his possession an epitaph which records the circumstances: "Here lies Salino Armoto d' Armato of Florence, the inventor of spectacles, May God pardon his sins. The year 1318.

Preble & Young Take Them All In.

Last Monday James A. Kennedy visited Preble & Young at Rio Bonito, and was taken in by the enterprising proprietors to the tune of twenty acres of land. The S. F. Examiner says Preble & Young have not only a corner on Paradise, but Paradise itself. A long list of Nevadans have engaged a home in Paradise; among these, Mrs. H. C. Mygatt, once Mrs. Senator W. E. Sharon, of Virginia City, Mr. Kennedy, of Carson, A. Abrahms and J. S. Shockmaker, of Reno, A. B. Miller, of Elko, and Joseph Mandel, formerly of Virginia City.

It is said that every Nevadan who ever visited the colony in Butte county, California, has been so charmed with the place that he has purchased a home of not less than 20 acres.

The New York Illustrated News.

Three of the artists on the Police Gazette left Richard K. Fox's employ recently and started a paper of their own. They give as their reason that they were compelled to assist in the engineering of sporting frauds on the public, until they became nauseated with the work. The Kilrain-Smith hippodrome broke the camel's back, and they resigned. They give a complete expose of the affair, which was a job of Fox's to gull the public and swindle all hands. The character of the affair can be more fully realized when it is known that Mitchell, Kilrain's second, was betting 4 to 1 against his own man. The new paper is profusely illustrated, and free from the dirt and vulgarity that characterizes the old Police Gazette, and the self adulation of the publisher does not confront one on every page. But a square sporting paper is not wanted in New York or anywhere else, as square sporting went out of date long ago.
