STOLEN BULLION.

The Head Cupelman of the Eureka Mine Arrested.

Last Wednesday night Charles W. Ladd, who has been employed as head cupelman in the Eureka Consolidated Refinery, has been arrested, charged by Superintendent Donnelly with stealing bullion valued at $1 per ounce. He shipped several boxes to a jeweler in Chicago as mineral specimens, through Wells, Fargo & Co. The express agent suspected from the weight of the boxes that something was wrong, and communicated his suspicions to Donnelly. The box was opened and the bullion disclosed. Ladd being shown the bullion marked Eureka Consolidated, was staggered, and confessed.

This lot was part of a bar broken in two, weighing about twenty-seven pounds and valued $400. The total theft is estimated at $5000 or $6000.

It is reported here that Ladd visited the Baldwin Hotel, San Francisco, with two young men some time ago, paying their fares and all expenses, and made them presents of watches and diamonds. He lived high in Eureka and was generally extravagant. He claimed that he had an aunt in the East who was sending him spending money. He moved in the best society, gave receptions and was generally lavish. He received packages of greenbacks by registered mail, which confirmed the belief in the aunt story. He disposed of a watch and diamond jewelry valued at about $1300. He is under $4000 bail, in default of which he is in jail to appear for examination.

THE LAMPMAN INQUEST.

The Evidence of Mr. Collins and Dr. Lee.

The inquest on the death of May Lampman was held yesterday at the house of her parents. The following evidence was taken:

A. S. Collins, being duly sworn, says: Miss May Lampman came home about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, August 25th 1888, went to bed immediately, about half an hour after eight, I was called and told that May had taken laudanum, I asked her if it was so and she said yes. We didn't believe it, my wife and I, but, thinking there might be such a thing, we gave her emetics, and walked her up and down the walk. As soon as she showed symptoms of drowsiness, I sent for Dr. Lee. It was near 10 p. m. when we sent for the Doctor. She died about about 4 o'clock a. m. on Sunday morning, August 26th 1888. Her name is May Ella Lampman, born in California, and sixteen years old. Question: From a conversation with her, did you think she knew the nature of laudanum? Answer: No, she didn't.

Question by Juror: You know how much she took? No, about a half ounce, I think. Question: Did you tell her it was fatal? Yes, and she expressed a great deal of fear, and alarm about losing her life.

A. S. COLLINS.

Dr. S. L. Lee, being duly sworn, says: "I was called to Mr. Collins' ranch on Saturday night, August 25th 1888, about or near 11 o'clock, messenger stating, her brother, that his sister had taken laudanum and was dying. As soon as I got in the room and saw the young lady I found the statement correct; she was dying. I emptied the stomach of its contents with the stomach pump, gave stimulants hypodermically, as she was unable to swallow, remained with her from two to three hours, and during all this time there was not the least expression from her lips, nor the least evidence of consciousness. When I left her she was black in the face as one who had been strangled, pulse 140, and breathing about five a minute. I saw death was inevitable, and so stated to the parents. Was not with her when she died, but was told she died about two hours after I left. Death was the result of opium or some of its preparations.

S. L. LEE, M. D.

Mrs. Collins was too prostrated to testify.

The jury rendered the following verdict:

May Ella Dampman, aged 16 years, a native of California; that she came to her death about 4 o'clock on Sunday morning, August 26, 1888, at A. S. Collins' ranch, Ormsby county, State of Nevada, from an over-dose of laudanum administered by her own hands, and we are of the opinion from the evidence before us that she did not take it with suicidal intent.

A SAD AFFAIR.

Miss May Lampman Dies From an Overdose of Laudanum.

On Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, Miss May Lampman a step daughter of A. S. Collins of this city died at what is known as Phillips ranch about a mile West of the city.

It appears that on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Collins, her mother came down town with the girl and left her near the post office with instructions to return home by 5 o'clock.

She did not return at the hour specified and at about 7 o'clock her mother started out to see what had become of her.

She met her daughter walking up the railroad track with Curtis Wright and Stella Jones.

On meeting her she took her to task in the presence of her companions and ordered her to go home immediately.

The girl complied and after reaching home was very low spirited.

Shortly afterwards her step father found her lying on her bed and she told him she had taken laudanum and asked what effect it would have.

He told her to get off the bed and walk with him. She said she was to sleepy to walk, but he insisted and finally induced her to walk out in the yard.

She said she had only taken a very little, and from her conversation, he learned that she felt very much humiliated because her mother had spoken to her as she did in the presence of other people, and said she would not have cared so much had she waited until after she had reached home.

They then kept her in motion to prevent her going to sleep, gave what antidotes they had at hand and sent for Dr. Lee.

The doctor reached the place between 10 and 11 o'clock and the girl was unconscious.

Every effort was made to relieve her stomach of the drug but by that time it was so thoroughly diffused through her system that nothing could save her, and she died at 4 o'clock in the morning.

After realizing her dangerous condition, she made every effort to battle against her fate.

It was the general opinion that she did not take the laudanum with suicidal intent, but for the purpose of frightening her mother.

She was 16 years of age and a very beautiful child of happy disposition, full of health and good spirits to whom life was sweet and and those who know the family all agree that her home was a pleasant one.

Mrs. Collins her mother is almost crazed with grief and inconsolable over the loss of her only daughter.

THE RENO WHEELMEN.

They are Handsomely Entertained by the Carson Club.

Some weeks ago the Carson Wheelmen were very handsomely entertained at Reno by the Bicycle Club of that city, and yesterday the Renoites accepted an invitation to pay Carson a visit.

They were met at the train and taken to Shaw's Springs, where to cement the band of sociability between the two clubs all hands took a family bath in the big swimming bath.

They were then taken to the Ormsby House, where a lunch was partaken of, and in the afternoon a wine dinner at the Arlington.

The State Prison tracks were visited, but they managed to arrive just a few minutes too late to take any active part in the devotional exercises.

They also climbed to the dome of the Capitol, and had their photographs taken in a group on the front steps of the Capitol.

The Renoites were not allowed to spend a quarter anywhere in the city, and went back loud advocates of Carson hospitality.

The visiting wheelmen consisted of: C. M. Fassett, Captain; Ed. Barber, Frank Barnes, C. Leeper, Ed. Graff, Jean Lee, El. Wilson, Geo. McLaughlin, Chas Dealey and Ed. Stokes.

—Abe Coha is now the sole owner of the large clothing establishment. His brother Sam is clerking.
