

MORNING APPEAL

TUESDAY.....JULY 30

TOWNS THAT THRIVE.—The following from the Colusa (Cal) Sun, applies to all towns: We find this fact to exist, that no community ever prospered, no town ever grew, without some sort of combined effort for the general good—without some expenditure of money. The towns that have happened to possess men who have worked together for the general good have forged ahead, while those that have had men of greater conservatism, who have been content to set down and let fortune come, have gone to decay, or have not progressed. People who would progress must do something—must take some chances. Some towns have invested in railroads, and have made it win. At this age it is hard to call to mind a town that has grown to any importance without having put some sort of exertion; without having done something other than sit down and let prosperity come or go, according to its whim. Towns and communities, as well as individuals, must seize opportunities.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SAM JONES—A little incident which took place in Wesson is being told on every street corner here. It is about as follows: It seems that Sam Jones was trying to draw a line between the man that goes to heaven and hell, and in his remarks refers to his grandfather and grandmother in the following manner:

"My grandfather was as good a man as ever breathed the breath of life, and he went straight to heaven. My grandmother was a bad woman; she never attended church, and did not take any stock in the Bible, and I know she went to hell." About this time a young man left his seat and started toward the door. This did not please the reverend gentleman, and he remarked: "Yes, there is a man who is going to hell, too." This young man proved to be a commercial drummer, and whirling around, politely answered: "Well, if that is the case, is there any message you wish to send to your grandmother?"—Ex.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company has at last decided on its new depot at Reno. It will be erected of brick on the old site and will be one story 35x115, covered with a slate roof. It will contain the office of Wells Fargo, besides the ticket and telegraph offices, baggage and store rooms and two waiting rooms—one for gentlemen and one for ladies. The plans will be up from San Francisco in a few days, when contractors will have advance to get the job of erecting the edifice which promises to be quite an ornament to that part of Reno.

An extensive deposit of petroleum has been found in the Rocky Mountains just north of our northern boundary. As Rocky Mountain oil thus follows Rocky Mountain coal, it is reasonable to hope that the Sierra Nevada, Cascade and Coast Ranges, which are already coal producers, may yet become oil producers outside of the region in which it has already been developed.

The London Police appear to share the popular superstition that "Jack the Ripper" is invisible, and when a man surrenders to them claiming to be the murderer, they do not believe him, but have him committed as a lunatic. They might have themselves committed on the same charge, considering the efficiency of their service with respect to this series of crimes.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, the actress, was recently brought into court in New York in a suit for $134, which sum she stated she was unable to pay on account of poverty. She was anxious to pay the debt, but the examination was concluding that she was unable to do so.

The Board of Regents have awarded the contract for building a dormitory at the University to Burke Bros., for $15,000.

It is said that Louisa de la Ramee was first called "Ouida" by her baby sister, who could not pronounce distinctly the name Louisa. But the nickname "Ouida" long since ceased to be associated with the innocence of a child.

The APPEAL is indebted to H. J. Thyges, liquor dealer of Reno for some fine chromos of California scenery. They are elegantly gotten up and make a fine business card.
