

STOCK LOSSES

Heavier Than Ever Before Throughout Nevada

An APPEAL reporter is informed by T. B. Rickey that the cattle and sheep losses will be heavier in the Eastern part of the State. The present storm, should it stop now, will sum up a loss of 20 per cent, and should it continue the rate will be between 60 and 80 per cent. Mr. Rickey says sheep cannot walk in 18 inches of snow, and in two feet they will surely starve if not fed continually. In the Southern part of the State the loss will not be so heavy. He fears no loss in the Western portion either, but throughout Humboldt more or less cattle will surely die.

Horses seem to stand the cold weather all right and the loss in this direction will amount to nothing.

Mr. Reed of Winnemucca says the sheep in and around that section are all in a bad plight. Fodder is scarce and the cold nights are gradually killing them. If a thaw does not come soon and the weather continues as cold as it has been, there will not be a sheep around that section. The herders are selling the animals for almost nothing, and mutton will be plentiful before long.

Mr. Rickey seems to think that the stockmen of this section are pretty well protected and their loss will not be near as heavy as in other portions of the State.

Probably the thaw which has set in will allow the sheep to get enough fodder to pull through, but if the storm should burst again the loss will be terrific.

NEARLY FROZE TO DEATH—The snow drifted so badly around the Comb's place back of Nevers that the old gentleman took measures to leave the place. He started at 8 o'clock last Saturday in the morning and by noon he had not reached the railroad track, a distance of 1 mile from his house. When he reached this point the wind was so terrific that he made for the tunnel. He found an old cabin this side and a stove and wood. He had no matches however and this only made him more desperate. He finally took off his undershirt, tore it into and wrapped it around his feet. By keeping in motion all night he felt strong enough to start for John Baths. He managed to get there by three o'clock and for the first time in 35 hours got something to eat. He then left Bath's and arrived at Nevers at 6 that evening where he is now comfortably housed.

The New York Ledger will soon publish a four-page souvenir, containing a poem by J. G. Whittier, written during the past summer, to be illustrated by Howard Pyle. The theme of the poem is the ancient wall on Main street, Amesbury, Mass., dug by Capt. Bagley, in fulfillment of a vow made by him while held in captivity by Arabs, and suffering terribly from thirst.

Jeff Davis wrote to the people of the North Carolina, as they were celebrating the centennial of her ratification of the federal constitution, a long letter, advocating a State's constitutional right to secede. But Gov. Fowler replied with a ringing speech in which he announced that North Carolina was "keeping step to the music of the Union," and called on his hearers to defend the flag.

ROADS CLOSED AGAIN.—The drifting snow has closed up the railroads again and they seem to be worse off than ever now. The efforts of the past week have been knocked into a cocked hat and many loud remarks can be heard around the railroad office.

Mr. Ferd Reed, the recently appointed Revenue Collector, headquarters at Winnemucca, is in the city. His district covers eight counties in Nevada and one in California. Mr. Reed succeeds Pate Dunne of Virginia City.
