

MORNING APPEAL

TUESDAY, APRIL 29

THE MAN WE WANT.

The editor of the APPEAL is often asked the question: "Who the blazes are we going to run for Governor?"

The kind of a man who we must run for Governor must be a winner from Bitter Creek with his prior residence close up by the head waters of the stream and no odor of Salt Creek in his clothes.

He must be a Republican from Republicanville, 999 grains fine and a man who can plaster this fair commonwealth with red paint and rouse the masses to get out on election day and hustle like the devil for the whole ticket.

He must be a magnetic man who can grasp the paw of the son of toil and mingle with the downtrodden and oppressed. He must be high in the party councils; a rip roaring silver advocate in season and out of season, seventeen ounces to the pound and anti-Windom.

He must be at the convention with his entire county at his back ready to swap the earth for him and be regarded as "a corker" among his fellow men.

He must have a record for party work as white as Mt. Davidson snow and be able to lick any man right off the reel who insinuates that he ever voted a scratched ticket.

He must have brains enough to write his own messages and soap enough to come to the sink of the Humboldt with 800 majority.

He must be a man who has spent his ducates developing Nevada and who is willing to wear sage-brush made clothes and grub under a ceiling frescoed by Nevada paper-hangers.

He must be a wolf howling free silver, state-developing, party-man from the grass roots to the hair-roots and no flies on any part of him.

This kind of a man can depend on our support the minute he announces that he is in the fight.

A Pertinent Question.

In an interview with the Washington Post, Senator Stewart asks Secretary Windom some very pertinent questions, which Windom has not yet seen fit to answer. The Senator says:

The business of the country is suffering for the want of more money. Property has depreciated in the last sixteen years more than 30 per cent, while the value of money on account of the shrinking supply, has advanced in a still greater ratio. The question now under consideration by the committee of both Houses is, how shall this urgent demand for more money be supplied? It has been in the power of the Secretary of the Treasury to relieve the stringency of the money market at all time during his continuance in office in the manner provided by law. He has neglected to exercise the power conferred upon him by Congress to buy $4,000,000 worth of silver per month for coinage, and has limited his purchases substantially to the minimum of 2,000,000 per month in violation of the policy of the Democratic administration, which was condemned in the platform of the Republican party. If he really believes, as he alleges, that more money is required and more silver should be purchased for use as money, why does he not purchase four millions' worth per month and try the experiment? If it does not work satisfactorily he can stop, and no harm will be done. If he is friendly to silver, why is he advocating further legislation looking to the purchase of more silver while he refuses to purchase what the law now authorizes?

At last the mystery which surrounds the death of John M. Clayton of Arkansas seems in a fair way to be cleared up. The murder was one of the most cowardly ever committed. Clayton was shot down in cold blood by a hidden assassin. Up to this time it has been supposed that the murderer was actuated by political considerations, but it now transpires that the assassin mistook his victim for ex-Governor Powell Clayton of Arkansas and was moved by revenge.
