OFF to the War.

Again the mother, sister and sweetheart have been compelled to bid adieu to the boys in blue who have answered the call for troops and gone to fight the Sioux. At the depot in San Francisco Thursday morning there could be seen the weeping women bidding what many of them supposed to be a last adieu.

Captains, lieutenants, corporals and privates mixed in the general pool when it came to the last farewells, and many a stout-hearted boy swallowed the lump in his throat as a last kiss was imprinted on the quivering lips of his best girl.

Aged mothers, who in '63 had seen their husbands go the defense of our flag, sees a son go on the same uncertain journey, perhaps to meet his fate in the first scrimmage, or come back battle-scarred with honors heaped upon him.

It is quite probable that not a drop of blood will flow, as the massing of troops has awed the savages into subjection. Sitting Bull has hauled in his fierce look and assumed an attitude of remorse at the outcome of this affair. He may be sincere, but possibly it is the calm before the storm.

If the boys must fight, the American press will print reliable dispatches of their bravery on the field and march.

General Miles thinks the time for worry has passed, but says he must carry out the original plan of landing troops at the scene of trouble.

That's What They'll Do.

And now the brave boys in blious will be earning their wages, 'tis trioux; They will go to no ball Or shindig, at all, Except the "ghost dance" of the Sioux.

The above concise poem was contributed by Arthur Morris of Empire, the APPEAL's war correspondent, and is respectfully dedicated to Uncle Sam's standing army.

Took a Tumble.

Reno Journal: A certain Professor of the State University the other day in a physiology class informed the pupils that he would show them how to breathe. He was seated in a revolving spring-bottom office chair. He straightened out, took a long breath, shot his feet out like a catapult and went over backwards, were he lay for some time unable to extricate himself.

Miraculous Thompson.

Charley Thompson says if three Farnham drums will save all the wood, that four should start a pine tree growing. He is the biggest liar yet, and if things are left to him miracles will be the result.

An Enterprising Gang Boss.

PORTLAND, Or., Dec. 5.—John Ryan, Master of the Union Pacific steamship dock in this city, was arrested last night on complaint of Freight Agent Hinchman of the Union Pacific charging him with embezzling $680. The company claims that Ryan, who has been in charge of large gangs of 'long-shoremen, did not actually employ as many men as he represented, and that he made it a constant practice of signing vouchers with fictitious names and drew the money himself. Ryan denies the charge, and demands an immediate investigation. He has always borne an excellent reputation. His bonds were fixed at $3,000.

Cleveland's Colossal Colored Carnival Minstrels are headed this way, and will pay our city a visit. This mammoth organization, which contains all the colored notables, is positively the "Biggest Blackest Boomiest Boom" ever placed on the road, composed, as it is, entirely of the pick of genuine colored artists of this and foreign countries, prominent among whom are Tom McIntosh, James Bland, Billy Farrell, Cicero Reed and Son, Geo. Titchner, Smart and Taylor, Grant and Willams, Mons, LeVard, The Great Jalvan, Prof. Williams, Alf. White, Eaton & Williams, Henderson, Smith, Will Eldridge, Palmer and McClain, Tom Jones, Frank Warner, Doc. Sayles, The Twilight Quartette, The Sans Souci Quartette, and half a hundred others, all well known colored performers. Several unique novelties will be introduced: The Illuminated First Part, The Battalion Drill, The Royal Guards, The Pickaninnies' Frolics, Sixteen Bizarre Dancers, and a world of wenders. The magnificent street parade with the big Military Band will also be a feature; taking it all in all, this will be the largest and best Minstrel Company that has visited this city.

That was a noble benediction recently made by Mrs. J. Hollenbeck, of Los Angeles, in which property approximating one million of dollars in value was conveyed to a body of trustees, for the purpose of founding a home for indigent women and children in Los Angeles city. The property donated includes the well-known Hollenbeck Hotel and the Hollenbeck homestead on Boyle Heights, which yield an average of about $30,000 a year. Mrs. Hollenbeck sets an example that should be followed by wealthy people. "The harrowing lust of gold" is, however, dominant in the breast of the average rich man or woman, and it is refreshing to find, as in the case of Mrs. Hollenbeck, a bright and shining exception to the cold and selfish rule.

There are said to be about 800 male Indians in attendance at the dance now being held at Walker Lake Reservation. They are sulky and impudent, and in case of an uprising they could perform all their devilry before assistance could reach us. A military post at Hawthorne would be more effective as a scarecrow than a whole army would be after some mischief had been done.—Bulletin.
