

LOOKS LIKE A SURE THING.

Free coinage is no longer a possibility, but a probability of the present session of Congress. The Western advocates of free coinage have made a trade with the Democrats, and the silver men help the Democrats to defeat the Federal election bill in exchange for votes for silver.

This trade was plainly apparent when Stewart and the silver Senators began denouncing the Election Bill, and when the Democrats in the House cheered the receipt of the Silver Bill from the Senate.

The Republican silver men of the West have worked hard for the Republican party, but their services counted for nothing when the Administration came into power.

Harri-on turned his back upon the West, the young and growing land of future promise, and bowed the knee to the tottering fortunes of Wall street and the exhausted soil of failing New England.

In self defence the silver men of the West have allied their fortunes with the cotton producers of the North.

We are all working for self interest.

Wheat, cotton and silver have combined against gold.

The combination will win and if Harri-on vetoes the Silver bill, he is also signing the death warrant of the party in '92.

Miss Amy Fowler, well known as Sister Rose Gertrude, whose mission to the lepers of Molokai attracted so much newspaper attention, is now earning her living as a teacher in Honolulu. She was a victim of mis-information. From what she read about Father Damien, at the time of his death, she naturally inferred that he had been laboring alone among the lepers, whom his death would leave without friends, and she nobly started out to take up a portion of his work. The English newspapers knew no better, and applauded her zeal. But when she arrived on the spot she found a well-organized mission, in charge of one or two priests and several religious women, and as they did not at once turn over the whole business to the newcomer, there was nothing for her to do but subside into the subordinate place of a helper. As this was not what she had gone for, Sister Rose Gertrude appears to have retired with her dream of devotion unrealized.

"I cannot see why old man Hoar persists in pushing that election bill of his when the finances of the country are in such a deplorable condition," remarked James I Conant of Rome, N. Y., recently to a company. "I am as red-hot a Republican as they make, but I believe if the Senator from Massachusetts were hit in the head with a stuffed club and put to sleep it would be a good thing for the country. Although I am from the East I am a firm friend of silver. I believe in the big dollar of our days, and I want to see more of 'em made. The circulating medium of the United States is too small by far. I believe in plenty of money."

A whole sermon was contained in the remark by the Oakland lady who has lost her fortune through the rascality of John C. Hall, the San Francisco attorney. All her property has gone except the home she lives in, and yet she was able to reply: "It is only a matter of dollars and cents. When a woman has brave and loving sons to fight for her she need not be afraid of a mere money loss, though it be her last dollar." It was a noble reply and shows a very clear estimate of the relative values of different kinds of riches.

There is one solution of the Behring sea difficulty, and that is for all poachers, whether Canadian or German, to get out and stay out.
