Illinois on Top.

Chicago, Illinois, May 18th.—In the presence of three score thousand people at noon to-day the great Illinois State Building at the Fair was dedicated. It was the brightest day the "White City" has seen since it was opened to the world. Not since the opening day has anything like the crowd which swarmed the grounds to-day been admitted at the gates.

A Watery Accident.

Yesterday the horses attached to the sprinkling cart ran away and burst the cart wide open. The street was deluged and one of the horses injured, but the driver was unhurt.

C—Not a smell.

Hello, M. Cohn. Hello. A—How is that sale going? C—The place full all the while and trade humming. A—How is it you are doing such a rapid business these dull times? C—Because I advertise in the APPEAL, you d—fool.

A Reminiscence.

Yesterday H. H. Beck came into the APPEAL office to settle a subscription when he remarked that he had a queer experience in the building in 1869. "I came across the plains and struck Carson broke. I slept under the sagebrush and didn't eat a mouthful for four days. "I came into this building and saw it was run by a man named Boyed. He had a meat stall and I was so famished I felt like stealing a piece of raw meat to eat. Then I saw in one corner a fruit and vegetable stand. It was very inviting, and I was studying how I could fall on to some of that fruit when I saw the name 'Beck' on the end of the stall. It made me jump. I asked the man where he was from. "Wayne City, Ohio." "Gosh, I nearly fainted, and then asked him if he knew old Bill Beck, when he gave me a look and fell all over me. "He was my brother. Hadn't seen him for years. He grabbed me in his arms and hugged me, then he hauled me over to the Ormaby House bar and began treating the town. Finally I says, 'Let go of this drink business, I want grub.' "When I told him I hadn't eaten in four days he ordered a meal that I can still taste. I ate nearly five pounds of tenderloin steak. Yes, it was right here in this building that I found him; about where you are sitting now. "Yes, I guess you'd better give me a receipt for that money. It's a good deal for such a little sheet, but I can't seem to get along without it. Good day."

Evans and Sontag.

PYRAMID MAKE, May 15, 1892. ED. JOURNAL.—A reliable Indian has just come in from what is known as Tom Anderson canyon, where he says he saw Sontag and Evans. He is an Indian who worked some years ago upon Broder's ranch near Visalia, California, and knows both Evans and Sontag well, as he expresses it "by his face," and he avers that they are the identical Sontag and Evans and that one of the men says his name is Ward and they both pretended to be cattle men. It is proposed to get the agent to send the Indian police after them to-night in hopes to win the much coveted reward. You's hastily. T. J. Brown.

Blondin Ruptures a Blood Vessel. Saranac Lake, N. Y., May 18.—One of the feats performed by Blondin, the strong man with Cole's circus, was the holding together of two strong horses pulling in opposite directions. Last night a pair, unaccustomed to the performance, were tried, and they reared and plunged. Blondin, in endeavoring to hold them, burst a blood vessel, and died soon after.

The Australian Pugilist.

A Gazette reporter visited the training quarters of Mick Dunn, the Australian middle weight, yesterday and witnessed the muscle hardening maneuvers he is going through with every day to prepare himself for his first fight in America, which will take place at McKissick's Opera House May 27, with Frank Purcell of Salt Lake. It is quite evident from the way the man is working that he is preparing himself for a hard battle. His trainer, Hugh Napier of Australia is putting him through the following course: A three mile walk and run at 6 A. M., after which he is rubbed down; breakfast at 8, consisting of bread, meat and vegetables; at 9 o'clock he does 12 miles of running and walking, is rubbed down and then rests until 3 P. M., when he starts in on the bag, which he punches for 30 minutes; skips the rope 1,000 times, and then uses the dumbbells for twenty minutes. He then takes a cold shower bath, after which twenty minutes is consumed in rubbing him down, which completes the routine he has to go through every day. He remarked to the reporter that he hoped Purcell was feeling as well as himself, for he would hate to have it said that he had whipped a sick man. Purcell, who is training in this city, is in fine condition, and the sports predict a hard battle.

Murder Will Out.

Northfield, Minn., May 18.—A skeleton was unearthed recently while excavating for a new opera house at Faribault and investigation has brought to light seven more. The first found was three feet underground. At the side lay a butcher knife. On the skull under the right ear was a break denoting the blow of a hammer. It is known that on the spot from 1852 to 1857 was an inn kept by Jacob Crows. In 1857 two girls came to this inn. One of these girls was on her way East and had $1400 with her. Her name was Vira Lawson. The girls were not seen again, and soon after, on June 19th, the Crow inn was suddenly deserted. When examined by curious neighbors in a room in the rear of the house a curtain was found hung as a partition, close to which stood a big table. At the left of the table was a trap door, under which was a cellar ten feet deep by only five square. It is supposed that guests who had money were placed over the trap door, which hung on a pivot. Twenty-one persons are known to have disappeared near here, and it is believed that they met their fate in the inn.

A Woman Eaten.

New Orleans, La., May 18.—Mrs. Angelo, aged 90 years, a resident of Port Eads, met a horrible death in the swamps last week. Some time ago she left home to visit her son, who resides three miles above the Old Jump. The lady got off the steamboat Comet at the Old Jump. Days passed and nothing was heard from her, and at last a searching party was organized. After plowing their way through the swamp for some distance, they came upon the evidence of her unfortunate fate. There lying in a pool of stagnant water, half covered by weeds, was her head. It bore marks of having been crunched by sharp teeth and was all bruised and bloody. After further search one of her limbs was found. The supposition is that the old lady became lost in the swamps and, falling from exhaustion, was dragged into the water by alligators and slowly devoured. This is the theory of the coroner, who held the inquest last evening.

The Cold Snap.

Yesterday morning a good many people woke to find their fruit blasted and their flowers in a collapsed state. Alfalfa and vegetables also suffered. The night before presented an air that had all the Shakespearian nip and eagerness. Where the fruit buds were well advanced, but little damage was done.
