Items Gleaned from the Exchange List

A Little Easy Coin. PLAYED "THE FIDDLER."

Yesterday afternoon a stranger in Reno succeeded in getting $15 in coin from the proprietor of the Louvre, A. L. Mason, without consulting the latter.

The individual entered the bar room of the Overland hotel, with a neatly wrapped package and deposited it with Fred Sommers, saying Mr. Mason would call for it and leave $15.

From the Overland he went to a telephone some where in town and calling up the Louvre told the bar boy there was a package for Mr. Mason at the Overland with $15 charges and to see that it reached its destination. Unsuspecting the employe of Mason went to the Overland, paid the money and took the package.

Mr. Mason was home sick in bed, and the package was taken to him. He opened it and found nothing but some material to give it weight.

No clew can be found to the perpetrator of the crime, and Mason is out $15.—Gazette.

Some Light on the Recent Clean-up by Nevada Sports.

The San Francisco papers are still talking about the wonderful clean-up on "The Fiddler," which caused the bookies all over the United States to lose half a million dollars.

Three Renoites, one of whom was Alex Dromiac, were in on the winnings to the amount of about $9,000. It is evident that Nat Butts had a finger in the pie, as the following clipping from yesterday's Examiner would point to. The "French Al" spoken of is undoubtedly Mr. Dromiac. The Journal fears the name will stick to him:

It was old Tom Latta, who in his time has owned more horses that couldn't win a race than any man on the coast, that personally steered the "sure thing" bank roll against Daroux's book. And it was only because a lot of the money bet was handled by Latta, who has been listed by Baroux and Harvey as a "Jonah man," that Daroux accepted the coin offered without seriously looking into the matter. The money Latta handled was put up a saloon keeper known as "French Al" of Reno, Nevada, who came here with a $5700 bank roll to bet on "The Fiddler." A poolroom performer by the name of Butts was the local agent for the gentlemen in the east who fixed "The Fiddler."—Journal.

The body of Joseph Lacarte was found in the English Mill ditch at Reno lodged against a paddle wheel, by Harry Gill formerly of Carson.

For Rent—A large furnished house. Nice location. Enquire of Mrs. J. G. Fox.

The resignation of A. M. Treison as Justice of the Peace of New River Township, in Churchill county, has been accepted and the office declared vacant by the Commissioners.

The Ladies of St. Peter's Guild will be pleased to receive orders for ladies and childrens' aprons and for comforters. 1w$24
