

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN GOTHAM

Mrs. Oelrichs Eats Pie With her Gloves On.

News has just reached this coast by telegraph that all New York's worked up over the fact that Mrs. Oelrichs has almost upset New York society by eating pie with her gloves on. It set the fashion at once and just as the smart set of Manhattan Island had decided to never hereafter eat pie without six-buttoned gloves on, along comes the news that the same lady had eaten some more pie (whether pumpkin or apple is not stated,) without gloves.

Now the dispatch states society is at a loss to know just how to eat pie until Mrs. Oelrich tells them which is the correct thing. It was announced a few weeks ago that Mrs. Oelrichs contemplated moving down town and it was feared that her contemplated change of residence would move the dead center of society in such a way that the social fabric of the island would be disturbed.

It was keeping a great many people awake nights and real estate values were being seriously affected.

All these d—phool dispatches which appear in the San Francisco papers are paid at the rate of one dollar a line and those who wonder as they read may as well know that any one is foolish enough to pay the same rates can make themselves just as ridiculous by spending the same amount of money. All that is necessary is to find a newspaper that will take the money and run the stuff to the exclusion of real news.

People who seek these methods of advertising themselves are never taken seriously by society.

The only effect such advertising is to raise a laugh and the people who laugh enjoy it better than they do in the perusal of any comic supplement that can be printed.

DELIVERED LECTURE

Mrs. Berry Addresses the General Assembly of University

Mrs. Dr. Berry of this city lectured yesterday in Reno before the general assembly of the university of Nevada.

Her theme was "Mozart," and the gifted musician spoke for an hour in most entertaining and instructive manner upon this subject.

She analyzed his sonata in C minor and in C major, illustrating both and playing the phantasy which introduces the latter.

While the works of Mozart are dainty, light and lace-like, this phantasy is soulful and passionate.

Mrs. Berry spoke of the early life of the composer, dwelling upon the difficulties he encountered and surmounted and his final fame, which resulted from his skill as a composer rather than that of a player, although he was skilled upon several instruments.

The address was listened to with the greatest of interest, a number of musically inclined Renoites being present in addition to the faculty and student body of the university.

Mandamus Proceedings Filed

An answer has been filed by E. E. Roberts, attorney for defendant in the mandamus case brought by George Bachelder, plaintiff and relator, against M. A. Murphy judge of the first judicial district of Nevada.

This mandamus case grew out of divorce proceedings instituted by the plaintiff and relator against Rose Bachelder, his wife, who is now confined in the Nevada State Insane Asylum.

The suit or divorce was brought on the grounds of extreme cruelty, alleged to have been committed prior to her becoming insane.

Judge Murphy, before whom the action was brought, continued the case without date and this resulted in mandamus proceedings being brought.

He had been very successful in the brokerage business and was considered one of the best citizens of the southern camp.

JUDGE HAMILTON GETS BACK

Some Lively Testimony Regarding the New York Life

ALBANY (N. Y.), Mar. 15.—Andrew Hamilton appeared at the insurance hearing this afternoon and asked to be heard. He will be given a chance late today.

Mutualization and the retirement of stock were discussed today before the legislative committee that is considering the Armstrong report.

John A. McCall, son of the late president of the New York, called Hamilton aside and talked earnestly to him, apparently remonstrating, but Hamilton turned away and was going to say: "No sir; you can't stop me from going to speak."

Hamilton was introduced by Timothy Woodruff.

At the very start Hamilton characterized the trustees of the New York Life as "a curse" and "traitors." He thanked the committee for its permission to say what he wished concerning the New York Life.

Hamilton said: "It is your duty to remove the trustees of the New York Life on November 15th arbitrarily. As I stand here I see men who have in the past applauded my victories and I have wondered, since, if their attitude has been counterfeit or honest."

"When you have heard all the sweet protests of innocence of how these men drove a dead man into the grave you will know why I am here."

"When the trustees say they did not know what was going on it excites my laughter. The Tallyrand of this New York Life administering could not sit for thirteen years and not know what was going on."

"I never spent a dollar that was given to trustees and there never was an action in my department but what one and all were conscious of what I did. I see them here. I challenge them to contradict me."

"I went to the New York Life a young lawyer to beat Pecksniff, with all his legions. They said they would give me a chance. I went ahead and was not it the duty of the trustees to see that I gave vouchers? Years passed with no objection."

"When a cry was raised these 'innocent' trustees pointed to me and said, 'There's the man to blame!' although they had approved all that was done and therefore they had approved my action."

"A 'yellow dog' has courage and fidelity but these men are a curse, having neither of these virtues. They are a curse, who will shrink within themselves, a curse whom you cannot trust, and I am here today to warn this committee that these men cannot be trusted with the millions which will be left in their hands if you change this bill as they desire."

Charles Norcross was an arrival from the southern mining camps yesterday afternoon. He is heavily interested in the districts out south.

FLORENCE ROBERTS

Will Be Seen Here in Her New Play on the 20th Inst.

"The Strength of the Weak," is the title of the new play in four acts by Alice M. Smith, which Florence Roberts will present at the Carson Opera House, on Tuesday evening March 20, 1906.

Instead of following other actresses in parts made famous, Miss Roberts enters this season upon her contract with John Cort, who will provide at least one new play for his star each season for the next five years. In "The Strength of the Weak" Miss Roberts has what is said to be the best part she has ever portrayed. It is particularly well suited to her capabilities as an emotional actress, while there are several other characters in the play which are important enough to command almost equal attention. "The Strength of the Weak" is a new modern play in four acts. The story concerns the struggles of a young orphan who, at the opening of the play, is about to graduate from a woman's college. She has written a book, said to be the story of her life, which is published anonymously and the disclosure of the author's name comprises one of the many interesting complications. Max Pigman, the well known comedian and stage director, heads the company with Miss Roberts and which includes such capable players as James E. Wilson, Eugene Comogdo, H. S. Northrup, Robert McWade, Gregory Rodgers, Florence Robinson, Adelaide Manoia, Ruth Allen, Lucille Yorke, Mary Barnard and Lillian Armistey.

No Inflation in Comstock Shares

A San Francisco exchange in commenting on the market says: There is absolutely no inflation in the Comstock mining shares. In fact, most of the stocks are selling ridiculously low considering the history and possibilities of this, the world's greatest true fissure mineral lode. There are only 100,000 shares in most of the Comstock companies, against millions of shares in the stock of the mines in the new camps. Were Eastern buying orders for 1000, 5000 and 10,000 share blocks of the Comstock to be received here, the same as are sent for the Tonopahs, etc., there would be an enormous advance in prices and every bear would be "broke," and every brokerage house short on its customers' stocks would fail.

Tea Was Profitable

The ladies in charge of the Presbyterian tea Thursday afternoon are greatly elated over the success of their entertainment.

The program was one of the best yet given, and that is praise indeed, for all have been excellent. The refreshments were most delectable and the society fund was augmented by the sum of $23.

The weather was anything but desirable and the success of the ladies in face of all the difficulties encountered is all the more remarkable.

Compiling the Ordinances

District Attorney Roberts and County Clerk Van Eken are busily engaged compiling the ordinances of Carson City. They will make quite a sizeable volume. The last compilation was by Sardis Summerfield and Wm. Hy Doane in 1892.

Stocks Listed

At present there are 298 mining stocks listed on the San Francisco Stock Exchange Board as follows: Washoe stocks, 46; Tonopah, 51; Goldfield, 86; Bullfrog, 45; Manhattan, 29, and miscellaneous 50.
