MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

The great question of municipal ownership of public utilities is coming up strong for political consideration large city and pays them, say $100,000. The people all over the Union are beginning to realize how systematically they have been robbed by the owners of stolen franchises.

To cite a common example. A dealer in "high finance" goes to the members of a Common Council of a city to give him a municipal franchise to run the street cars or the electric lighting or the water works. They sell him something that really belongs to the people of the city and he at once proceeds to sell the same to a company for say four or five times as much as it cost him.

The men who run a street car line in a big city reap millions off five cent fares. They will tell you and their hired newspaper organs will tell you that they cannot run at a profit on a less rate. Of course no one questions their assertion.

Here is how the experiment of municipal ownership worked in Manchester:

The City of Manchester owns and operates, on a paying basis, all public utilities from street cars to cemeteries.

It costs two cents for a street car ride in Manchester. At this rate the municipal tramways last year paid all expenses and cleared $247,250 net.

Manchester sells gas to its citizens at fifty eight cents per thousand cubic feet. At this rate the net profits last year were $320,429. The price in Newark is $1.10 per thousand feet.

In Manchester, the net profits of municipal ownership are turned over to help pay the taxes. That is where the people come in.

City councilmen don't trade with the city in Manchester. As it was explained, "They are touchy about that."

The people of all large cities will shortly demand their rights and insist on owning their own city car lines, electric lights and water works.

As a result they will get their car rides and light and water for less than one half what they are paying now and those men who are reaping their millions off the public will take a back seat.

The question is now being agitated in Reno of municipal ownership of lights and water. The money for electric lights now goes to a California Company. It is high time the people of Reno woke up.

Fair weather is predicted for today.

J. V. Comerford, principal of the Virginia City High School spent yesterday visiting in this city.

Another Road for Nevada

The proposed railroad is projected from Reno, Nevada, to San Francisco, Idaho and Montana. The route will be from Reno to Mason to Winnemucca. The San Francisco route will be from Reno to Elko to Boise. The route will be 100 miles in length and will run in a westerly direction from San Francisco through the Nevada desert, and thence to Reno, Idaho and Montana.

A bill introduced in the Nevada Legislature for the purpose of authorizing a survey of a route from Reno to San Francisco by which a portion of the rail was run. The bill was introduced by Representative J. W. C. and passed by a vote of 11 to 10. The bill will be on file in the Senate.
