

GOOD for OLD and YOUNG

August Flower keeps the children healthy and strong— Full of vigor and frolic the whole day long. So when Mamma needs more they rush off in high glee. And about to the druggist: "Please give it to me!"

Inability to get up brisk and fresh in the morning, lack of appetite, pallor, muddy complexion and poor spirits—these all indicate a disordered stomach and bad digestion—in adults and children, too. They also indicate the urgent need of taking Green's August Flower regularly for a few days. It's a reliable old remedy for all stomach troubles, never fails to cure indigestion, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and is a natural tonic for body and mind. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

Plenty of Poor Stuff.

"But do you think," asked the visitor to the local option town, "that prohibition really prevents?" "Well," replied the native, "it prevents a fellow from getting the best of whisky, but it doesn't prevent whisky from getting the best of him."—Philadelphia Ledger.

No More Than Right.

"I'd like to have your check for that little midnight supper I served at your house last month," said the caterer.

"You'll have to wait until I get the doctor's bill for curing me of indigestion," replied the victim. "That comes off your bill."

Fierce.

Miss Steno—Why did Grace leave her last place?"

Miss Typist—Oh, she made a fierce mistake.

Miss Steno—Gracious! What was it?"

Miss Typist—Why, she married the boss.—Puck.

A Monologue.

Nell—I just met Miss Gabbie down the street.

Belle—Oh, you poor thing!

Nell—She was telling me she had a long talk with you this morning.

Belle—That's not correct. What she had was a long talk "to" me.

Among the Shades.

Pompey—Our friend Napoleon is a good hater, isn't he?"

Charlemagne—Guess he is. What makes you think so?"

Pompey—There he is over in the corner chuckling at the latest news from Moscow.

WITH THE HUMORISTS

BRIGHT SAMPLES OF THE WORK OF JESTERS.

Mrs. Krusty's Cause for Complaint—Willie's Guess Pretty Nearly Correct—One Insurance Agent Who Was Not to Be Bluffed.

Amending It.

"You got a typewritten copy of this speech in advance, didn't you?" asked the reporter of the party organ.

"Yes," replied the reporter of the opposition paper, "the speaker sent it in, even to the 'cheers' and 'applause' in parentheses."

"Well, then what are you taking down now?"

"The 'cheers' and 'applause' and substituting 'sneers' and 'groans.'"

Not Bluffed.

"Not use talking to me," said the man when the insurance agent had paused for breath. "I have a leaky lung, a bad heart and a stomach that can't digest a poached egg."

"All the more reason for my talking," replied the agent. "Why you might die before you could pay the first premium."

In justice to the agent it must be said he knew the man was lying and was healthy as a pig.

Had His Reasons.

The modern infant was asked what he was crying about.

"I am merely illustrating the influence of environment," he explained. "I was an incubator baby, you know, and for one of my sex to cackle would be an anomaly. Don't happen to have a bottle of warm milk about you?"

Strange.

"Of all the stupid ignoramuses Neuritch is positively the worst."

"Yes?"

"Positively! What—what he doesn't know would fill any quantity of books."

"Well, it seems to have filled one bankbook."

Confession.

The author had been dragged fainting from a crowd of shoppers.

"Almost like my last book," he murmured, recovering his senses.

The listeners, being of delicate perception, knew then that the book had fallen dead from the press.

Experience Teaches.

"Of course, the more children a couple have the larger their doctor's bill becomes."

"Not at all. The more children they have the less likely the parents are to become alarmed at every little thing."

An Impression.

"After all," said the transcendentalist, "what is art?"

"I don't know exactly," answered Mr. Camrox, "but in a general way I should say it was most anything that cost you more than $2 a seat to look at."

A Conjecture.

Teacher—Do you know what a dynamo is?"

Pupil—Why—er—a machine for makin' dynamite.

Stories of Undergraduates.

A nervous freshman was dining with Thomas Herbert Warren, president of Magdalen college, Oxford. By way of starting conversation the latter glanced out of the window and remarked, "We have a little sun today," but he was astonished to receive the freshman's congratulations coupled with the hope that Mrs. Warren was doing well. Another Oxford story: During his undergraduate days a man who is now a learned professor was discovered sitting in the "quad" clothed only in an umbrella unfurled above his head. In response to anxious inquiries as to what he was doing he replied: "Hush, hush! Don't you see I'm a bally mushroom, and I'm growing!"

Odd Combination of Figures.

"The most remarkable arrangement of numbers that I know of," said a Chicago business college man who takes a delight in solving curious problems and digging up mathematical oddities, "is the combination of the six figures of 142,857. Multiply this number by two and the answer is 285,714, by three and the answer is 428,571, by four and the answer is 571,428, by five and the answer is 714,285, by six and the answer is 857,142. Each answer contains exactly the same digits as the original sum, and to cap the climax, multiply the number by seven and up comes the answer, 999,999."—Chicago Chronicle.
