

Nature's Gift from the Sunny South

A Cottolene Home Is a Healthy Home

Food Purity is of great importance in every well-regulated home.

The woman who fries or shortens her family's food with lard is doing so because she is unaware of the ill effects which may come of it. Lard-cooked food never has been, never can be, as healthful as food cooked with Cottolene. The very sources of the products will teach you this.

Lard is made from hog fat, and what assurance have you that the animal is free from infection, or disease germs? On the other hand, Cottolene comes from the cotton fields of the Sunny South, and is made from the purest, refined cottonseed oil, which physicians to-day recommend as being fully as healthful as olive oil.

Cottolene is clean, pure, and makes digestible, nourishing food. It has been recommended by physicians generally for the building up of patients whose bodies contain tuberculosis germs. Can you imagine hog lard being recommended for such a purpose?

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottolene a fair test.

Never Sold in Bulk Cottolene is packed in pails with an air-tight top to keep it clean, fresh and wholesome, and prevent it from catching dust and absorbing disagreeable odors, such as fish, oil, etc.

HOW MAJ. KENNON GOT WORK OUT OF THE FILIPINOS.

Band Aids Gave Impetus to Laborers' Zeal in Building the Famous Benguet Road Through Luzon Mountains.

Maj. L. W. V. Kennon, now commanding a battalion of the Tenth Infantry at Fort Benjamin Harrison, in building the famous Benguet road through the mountains of northern Luzon, Philippine islands, accomplished a feat called humanly impossible. It took music, money and a mongrel army of 4,000 men to do it, but Benguet road stands to-day one of the remarkable highways of the world.

Maj. Kennon's army of 4,000 road builders rested only on Sunday. For ten hours of each day they forged ahead. On Sunday they rested in their quarters, houses built on poles and grass. They amused themselves with dances, cards and games that appealed to the different nationalities. Maj. Kennon introduced music as one of the attractions along his lonely highway. He is known for his resourcefulness and he does not deny that he used music to get better work out of the pleasure-loving Filipinos and other Orientals. They did not like to work, and when they did it was with slow, sluggish movement.

One day Maj. Kennon decided to try music as an impetus to zeal. He assembled his band, made up of men of all nations, and ordered it to move quietly and secretly to a place where several hundred Filipinos were engaged in drilling holes in the canyon walls. The band stole up behind the slow-going drillers and suddenly struck up a favorite Oriental air. Instantly the Filipinos caught the spirit of the music and began to beat their drills against the rock in rhythm.

The result was more than a surprise to the resourceful Kennon. He kept that band busy after that. It followed the Filipinos along the way and played wherever they worked. From laborers worth about ten cents a day he developed them into musical machines that worked to drum beats. Maj. Kennon insists that his band saved the Philippine government thousands of dollars.

A bet had been made between Maj. Kennon and his foreman on one side and the members of the Philippine commission on the other side that the road would not be open by January 31, 1905. The story of the bet was borne from tongue to tongue along the road. Maj. Kennon promised each man a cigar if they won the bet. The effect was good. The army of 4,000 bent to their work, there being a man to every seven feet of the road on the last lap into Baguio. On January 29, two days before the expiration of the wager, Maj. Kennon rode into Baguio in a carriage. There was a great celebration and every man in the Kennon army smoked a good cigar marked "The Kennon Special," each with a label bearing the major's picture.

The Meanest Trick.

"It's strange, strange, strange, that I can't find a thing or keep a thing in this house," said Mr. Podmore the other day. "It's all because of your loose, slack, unsystematic way of keeping house, Mrs. Podmore!" "What is it now, dear?" "Don't dear me, but help me to find my hat. I hung it on the hall rack when I came in!" "Why, Henry—"

"Don't stand there staring at me in that idiotic way, but help me to find that hat. I suppose I must wear my straw hat, and its raining like fury!"

"Henry Podmore, will you listen—"

"No, I'll not. When a man lays down his hat and can't find it—"

"Henry, that hat is on your head."

"What! Who put it there? This is some trick. I'd take my oath before any court in the land."

"Nonsense!"

"It's not nonsense! It's as true as that I live and stand before you, a tormented, worried, harassed man, who is ridiculed and made the victim of some mean, low trick in his own house every day. You'll hear more about this when I get home!"

Then he rushed out slamming the door after him.—Los Angeles Examiner.

Was Not Too Busy.

Lieut. Shackleton told an interesting story of politeness in the untrodden regions of the Antarctic. His party, he said, were always extremely good humored and polite, and one professor in particular attained a degree of politeness unusual under such trying circumstances. "Are you busy, Mawson?" he called out one night to another member of the party who was in the tent.

"I am," said Mawson.

"Very busy?" said the professor.

"Yes, very busy."

"If you are not too busy, Mawson, I am down a crevasse."

"The professor was found hanging down a crevasse by his four fingers, a position which he could not have occupied for any length of time."

In Strange Paths.

"Say, papa," said the inquisitive kid, "what is a pathologist?"

"A pathologist, my son? Why, he's a man who lays out paths in the parks and elsewhere, my boy. Now run along and don't bother papa any more; he's very busy."

Right Definition for "Weird."

Little Frances, aged four, was being put to bed for the first time, in a large and unfamiliar room.

"Mother," she said, "I do not like this room. It is so weird looking." "What does 'weird' mean, dear?" asked her mother. "Why," she replied, "weird is long and dark and no-father-and-motherish looking."—The Delineator.

Flapping Wings the Best.

Experiments by the Aeronautical Society of Great Britain showed that a horizontal thrust of from 20 to 27 pounds per horsepower can be obtained with flapping wings, about six pounds more than with the best airship propeller yet devised.

"I have weathered many squalls, but I never encountered at sea." "Squalls!"

Try This in November.

Thousands upon thousands of families who have not been regular eaters of Quaker Scotch Oats will begin on the first day of November and eat Quaker Scotch Oats once or twice every day for thirty days of this month; the result in good health and more strength and vigor will mean that every other month in the year will find them doing the same thing.

Try it! Serve Quaker Scotch Oats plentifully and frequently for the thirty days of November and leave off a corresponding amount of meat and greasy foods. You'll get more health, more vigor and strength than you ever got in thirty days of any other kind of eating.

While you are trying this see that the children get a full share.

The best food for them. Quaker Scotch Oats is also packed in hermetically sealed tins for hot climates; keeps indefinitely.
