

CURE FOR HYDROPHOBIA.—A writer in the National Intelligencer, says that spirits of hartshorn is a certain remedy for the bite of a mad dog. The wound should be bathed constantly with it, and should be bathed with it, and taken inward three or four doses, diluted, taken inward during the day. The hartshorn decomposes chemically the virus insinuated into the wound, and immediately alters and destroys its deleteriousness.

An old veteran is responsible for the following: He says that while campaigning in Virginia, being something of a bread and butter milk ranger, he strayed off ahead of the column, and stopped at a cabin to get some refreshments. While there the column came up, and when filing past, the dog, "Beve" dashed out to the fence, barking furiously. A little tow-headed shirt-tail urchin in the house drawled out, "Ma, call Beve; don't let him bite the army!"
