FIGHTS PAYING THE COSTS

Middletown Man Seeks to Upset Order of the Grand Jury. Frank Barbusch, Middletown, who as plaintiff in a malicious mischief suit against Charles Green, was directed by the Grand Jury to pay the costs, the bill of indictment having been ignored, this morning took an appeal and obtained a rule on District Attorney to show cause why the action of the Grand Jury—with respect to the payment of the costs—should not be set aside.

Barbusch alleges that he intended to bring a civil and not a criminal suit against Green, who formerly was a tenant in one of his Middletown properties. W. J. Kennard, a Middletown justice, Barbusch alleges, acted contrary to his instructions, "a fact which he did not ascertain until the case had been passed upon by the Grand Jury."

The time for hearing the appeal has not been fixed although the county prosecutor is required to make answer within ten days.

BUSINESS SECTION WIPED OUT. Spencer, W. Va., Oct. 12.—The entire business district of Spencer was destroyed by fire early today, with a loss of approximately $300,000.

The fire started in a fruit store and spread rapidly because there was no water with which to fight the flames. Little rain has fallen throughout this section in the past two months.

ANSWERS CRITICISM OF FIREMEN FROM READING

Continued From First Page. were agreed upon by the hotels and eating houses, and I am certain they were not increased from the prices agreed upon.

"Our committee saw the hotel and restaurant proprietors and had their assurance they would not increase the rates a single cent, and I have every reason to believe that they acted fairly. Only the regular charges were made, and that was all fixed by committees from the visiting companies who came here to make arrangements. The hotel men only charged their regular rates for lodging and meals.

"The kick from Reading is because the kickers were not furnished free beer at the engine houses. They had to buy it and pay for it at hotels and restaurants instead of getting it for nothing, and that is why they are making the outcry. The orders were that no drinks were to be kept in the engine houses. As a matter of course visitors could not get beer at the engine houses where they were guests, and that is why the Reading men say 'the entertainment was not up to the usual standard.' They knew all about it, for it was explained to them."

GET A CARRIER, THEN FILL IT UP

The Pure Food Exhibit Opens in the Chestnut Street Auditorium This Evening

LOCAL MEN TAKE HOLD THIS YEAR

They Take a Big Swipe at High Cost of Living and Reduce Entrance Fee to Ten Cents—Plenty of Samples for Everybody

You get a carrier at the door, and then fill it up as you go through the second annual pure food show, which opens in the Chestnut street auditorium this evening. Most of the national food manufacturing firms will be on hand to give you a sample to take home. Promoters assured early visitors this morning that there would be samples for everybody.

An admission of ten cents is charged, the visitors getting more than that value returned in samples and the promoters getting the expenses of the show. There is no attempt made to make any money and the expenditures of the various firms will far exceed any entrance charge that would be paid.

This year's show differs widely from the first show held in this city last year; first, because last year's show was held by a pure food show promoter, whereas this one is being held by local men, for no profit. As a direct result of that another difference is noted. The entrance fee instead of being twenty-five cents as it was last year has been cut more than a fifty per cent, ten cents being the new price.

Harrisburgers Back of Show. The men back of the show are prominent in the Witman-Schwartz and Evans-Burnett Companies. Carl K. Deen, of the former company, and Frank A. Smith, of the Harrisburg Brokerage Company, are in direct charge of the show.

Many more manufacturers have taken space this year than last and four of them have engaged space for the show to be held next year, for it is to be held annually, and two manufacturers have permanent booths, which will be taken down after this show and is anticipated something far ahead, as this year's show is the pertinent one now.

Both the large auditorium and the small hall over the Chestnut street market house have been engaged by firms for show purposes, so great being the demand that a number of requests for space had to be turned down.

Halls Elaborately Decorated. The halls have been draped in flags and bunting, but that is but a trifle when compared with the multi-colored decorations of the individual booths. Electric lights play an important part in the decoration scheme. Definite lanes of travel have been established, so that the crowd can be handled one direction through the line of exhibits. Some firms will show the finished product; others the product in the course of manufacture, and many will be willing to give a taste and some will have domestic science experts making table delicacies while you wait.

Even to the unmarried and the light housekeepers, who must not do any cooking, the exhibitors promise something interesting—laying aside the collection of samples. The exhibit will be open afternoons and evenings during the week, music being furnished by Updegrave's orchestra.

Some of the Exhibitors. Among the firms which will exhibit their goods will be the following: Franklin Sugar Refining Company, J. W. Beardley's Sons, Bernard Schmidt, Fould's Milling Company, Niagara Chocolate Company, Ralph Goldsmith & Co., Genesee Pure Food Products Company, Minute Tapioca Company, Martin Wagner Company, Puritan Food Products Company, Quaker City Milling Company, Thorley Baking Company, Brelsford Packing and Storage Company, Royal Baking Powder Company, Carr's Products Company, Russell-Miller Milling Company, E. Bonser & Co., Diamond Crystal Salt Company, Pennsylvania Milk Products Company, Continental Condensed Milk Company, Hecker Cereal Company, Postum Cereal Company, W. R. Bealor, Underwood Typewriter Company, National Cash Register Company, The Dictaphone Company, Toledo Sales Company, Evans-Burnett Company and Witman-Schwartz Company.
