NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

LEBANON ELEVEN WILL FORCE HIGH TO TOP SPEED

Unexpected Strength of Former Easy Team Puts Different Complexion on To-morrow's Game—Smith Has Been Working Central Hard

Lebanon's unexpected strength shown against the Steelton High school eleven last Saturday has caused some concern in the ranks at the Central High school, Lebanon's next opponent. The game will be played on the H. A. C. field here Saturday afternoon. Play will start at 3 o'clock.

The eleven from Lebanon has proved in recent years an easy proposition for the local schools and Steelton, being an early game it has been regarded more in the light of a practice struggle, but the 26-6 drubbing handed to the Blue and White makes quite a difference in the local attitude and the Central team has been drilled harder this week.

Coach Smith has been instructing the team in forward passing and tackling. The team's attack has been stronger than its defense and it is to strengthen the defense that much attention has been paid to bringing down the opposition's runners. The forward pass has not been used with much effectiveness this season and efforts have been made to perfect it.

These discrepancies were shown up in the game against the Lebanon Valley scrubs last Friday. The team offense was weakened by the absence of Rote, who will be back for Saturday's game. From the present available dope it should be one of the best football games on the island this season. With a victory over Lebanon, a win over Steelton would seem to be possible, however, comparative scores taken during the practice season cannot be counted for much in doping a game with teams organized for the heavy end of the schedule.

Efforts are being made by the manager of the Central High team to schedule a game for October 31, which is open.

CAMP, HEAD OF FOOTBALL AT YALE, GOES INTO BUSINESS

Twice Captain of the Blue Eleven He Has Been Active in Sports Ever Since—Created Financial Union to Pool Athletic Funds

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 16.—Announcement was made yesterday afternoon of the retirement from Yale athletics of Walter Camp, '80, who for over twenty years had been at the head of Yale football and for the past twenty-two years the financier of Yale athletics. Mr. Camp has resigned as treasurer of the Yale Financial Union and as member of the athletic council, which controls sports. He will devote himself from now on exclusively to business.

He is president of the New Haven Clock Company, and by reason of the recent death of Vice President Stevens, of that company, the entire responsibility of the business will fall upon Mr. Camp. His resignation is due to Mr. Stevens' death and not to any shake-up in Yale athletics. Whatever time Mr. Camp may devote to athletics in the future will simply be that of a graduate and not as a salaried officer.

He may keep in touch with football as a critic, but not as a coach. He will entirely relinquish his position as treasurer of the financial union, in which position he has absolutely controlled all of Yale's athletic finances. He will retire as a member of the Yale faculty, where he has held the title of athletic adviser. The news of Mr. Camp's retirement comes as a complete surprise to Yale men. Up to the time of the death of Mr. Stevens a little over a year ago, he had not contemplated such a step.

He had been in closer touch with football this fall than at any time in recent years, owing to his close relations with Frank Hinkey, the head coach. Mr. Camp was the leading advocate of Hinkey's appointment as head coach, and it was understood that the appointment of Hinkey would again bring back Mr. Camp into the football councils of Yale.

Walter Camp's name has been interwoven in Yale sports since he entered college in 1878. He played football for four years and was twice captain. After graduation Mr. Camp began to coach and never since has he lost touch with the game. He has had more to do with the development of the American college game than any other one man. During all this time he has represented Yale on the Intercollegiate Rules committee and for years as chairman of this committee molded the policy of the game.

Mr. Camp's greatest work for Yale outside of football was the creation of the Yale financial union, by which the receipts of all sports were pooled and the expenses put under his control. In this way Mr. Camp has saved over $300,000 for Yale sports. When he took hold of this position rowing and track athletics were a drag on the college and every year had a big deficit. To-day after spending $175,000 for permanent improvements, the financial union has a surplus of $125,000 and the college is no longer asked to contribute a dollar to athletics.

TECH HIGH AT STEELTON

First Game in Three-Cornered Championship on Cottage Hill Field—Tech Looks Like Winner

The first of the football games to decide the three-cornered championship between the eleven of the local schools and Steelton will be played to-morrow afternoon when Tech meets Steelton High on the Cottage Hill field in Steelton. It will be a tough struggle for each team although the Harrisburg team appears now to have the better chance of winning, having played much better football this season than Steelton.

The Blue and White's unexpected drop before Lebanon High last Saturday put new vigor into the players and they have gone into the game with a vim. Steelton can be counted on to put up a strong game as she usually plays stronger against a Harrisburg team than any other. Taggart has been driving the team hard this week in preparation for the game.

The game will be started at 2:30 o'clock. A large number of rooters will accompany the local team to Steelton.

Straight Heats at Newport

Newport, Oct. 16.—Unfavorable weather conditions did not halt the races at the Middletown fair yesterday afternoon. The track was heavy and slow time was made. The 2.21 and 2.30 pacing and trotting events were, however, hotly contested, although both were won in straight heats. In the 2.20 Cy W., a bay gelding, owned by W. H. Marshall, of Shamokin, won first money. The 2.21 pace went to Tony Patch in straight heats.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SUED

Wife Appears Against Public Prosecutor of Milfin County

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—District Attorney Howard Aikens of Milfin county, yesterday was a defendant in the domestic relations court, charged with non-support by his wife, Mrs. Mollie E. Aikens, who has been living at 2447 Jefferson street, since August last. Judge Brown, refused to make an order on the ground that the case was one for the Milfin county courts to decide.

The Aikens have been separated since 1911, and although the husband was granted a divorce by Judge Woods of Milfin county, the Superior court set the decree aside. Mrs. Aikens said that she came to this city because she could not obtain justice in the county in which her husband is public prosecutor.

Body of "Mother of Two Thousand Boys" Claimed

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—Relatives of Miss Josephine Smith, the aged social worker whose body now lies in the morgue, have telegraphed to Deputy Coroner Joseph Ward to ship the body to Rockland, Ia.

The "mother of 2,000 boys" had no friends or relatives here, but in her room at 520 Brown street, were found letters signed E. M. Moline, Ill., and a telegram sent to that city saved the woman, who spent her life in helping the poor from that city. In Potter's Field, Miss Smith lived in one room, which she always kept locked. During the last six years she had had only one visitor, and nothing was known of her here except that she was a social worker.

THE HILL OF TARA

Where in Ancient Times the Kings of Ireland Were Crowned

In the county of Meath is supposed to have stood the hill of Tara, celebrated as being the palace of the ancient Irish Kings. There seems to be no doubt that on the hill of Tara the national assemblies met once a year to consult on the affairs of the kingdom and to make laws. The lawgivers were a class of Druids called Brehons, who acted as magistrates and judges. They did not hold their courts of justice in any hall, but seated themselves on the top of a hill in the open air, where they heard all complaints that were brought before them and decided every cause according to their own ideas of right and wrong.

The hill of Tara is also famous in Irish history as the spot on which the Kings were crowned. The throne, or seat of inauguration, was a black stone, which was called Lea Fall, or the fatal stone, said to have been brought in the early ages from Spain, and it was, therefore, held in high veneration. It was either borrowed or else it was carried away, among other spoils, by the Scots in one of their invasions of Ireland and was ever afterward used as a coronation seat of the Kings of Scotland at the abbey of Scone until it was conveyed away by force of arms, together with the crown and scepter, by Edward I to England, who placed it in Westminster Abbey, where it still exists and forms the basis of the coronation chair to this day.—Argonaut.

Nearly every member of the football team, which was to have played King's College yesterday, is ill.

This afternoon and evening, "The Girls from Joyland" (Burlesque.) To-morrow afternoon and evening, "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

ORPHEUM

Every afternoon and evening, high class vaudeville.

COLONIAL

Daily continuous vaudeville and pictures.

"Girls From Joyland"

"The Girls from Joyland" will be the burlesque attraction at the Majestic to-night. This company, headed by Frank L. Wakefield, is said to be the classiest burlesque attraction touring the country. Wakefield needs no introduction to local theatregoers as he proved his worth as a laugh-provoker during his past engagements in this city as Steve, the dope with "The Girls from Joyland," it is said he has a part that fits him better than anything he ever before attempted. Supporting him are Fred Bala, Joe Phillips, Dolly Sweet, Maudie L'Estrange, Lillian Raymond, Schuler, Hill and Martin the highest salaried singing trio in burlesque and a chorus of pretty girls who will be seen in many new dance evolutions. One of the funniest scenes are enacted during the action of the two-act comedy when the comedians give a burlesque war battle, the characters are an Irishman, Italian, Chinaman and Joe Phillips as "Denver Charlie" and Wakefield as the Dope General. Every line and situation is a laugh. Adv.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate"

One of the briskest, brightest plays produced in New York in the past season was George M. Cohan's mystery farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which is easily the best product which has come from the pen of this genius of the theatre. It isn't essential to reveal much of the plot of this bang-up stage entertainment, which local theatregoers will have presented to them at the Majestic theatre to-morrow matinee and evening. The first scene is laid in the lobby of the Baldpate Inn, a summer hotel closed for the winter. A terrible snowstorm is raging outside. Here comes William Hollowell Magee, a writer of popular novels, who has made a wager that he can occupy, all alone, a room in the deserted hotel, which, incidentally is on the top of a mountain and in twenty-four hours turn out a ten thousand word story in the event of success, win a $5,000 wager from his friend who is the owner of the Inn. This is as much of the story of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" as would be fair to reveal. Of course there is a unique solution to the problem, and it has been worked out by Author Cohan in a highly dramatic and original manner, and is sure to interest and thrill you as no play of recent presentation has succeeded in doing. "The Dingbat Family"

Without question the present day theatregoer is a better critic than the newspaper writers of years gone by and the reason can only be apparent after a consideration of the enormous increase in the amount of theatre going and the endless struggle of the authors and producers to attain a standard of excellence heretofore unknown. But what particular style of show has popularized itself so quickly as the cartoon comedy, those funny depictions of the way side episodes of everyday life! The latest of these musical comedies to visit this city is the brand new and comically scintillating "The Dingbat Family" adapted by Frank Stammers with music by John W. Dratton from the famous Herimian cartoons in the leading newspapers of this country. The whole amusing array of characters familiar to the daily readers are brought into the fun-making, assisted by a legion of sprightly show girls. The engagement here will be on Monday matinee and night. Adv.

"A Girl of the Mountains"

A production of the most thrilling of society drama, "A Girl of the Mountains," which has created a favorable sensation throughout the country, will be the attraction at the Majestic theatre, Thursday, matinee and night. Its tense story, astonishing novelty, wonderful realization of western scenes and incidents and the way in which it is done, combined in marvelous entertainment that holds the attention of the auditor from the opening scene to the final curtain is reached. Adv.

At the Orpheum

The Orpheum presents a mighty attractive bill, said the critic of the Harrisburg "Telegraph"; its a "bang-up" show, was the expression the high brow of the "Patriot" saw fit to use, and the Star-Independent representative declared the offering to be above the average. So the argument, if argument it was, is clinched at the outset. A more thorough enjoyable bill has not been presented at the Orpheum this season than that on view this week, and its pleasure is found not only in its diversity, but the splendid talent and real variety involved. Chief among the entertainers is Frederick Bowers, a baritone singer of considerable reputation. With Mr. Bowers is a pretty girl, Miss Ada Ripel. Miss Ripel completes some beautiful stage pictures that form a setting for Mr. Bowers' songs. One of their ballads which is especially tuneful and well staged is entitled "When You Wore a Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose." In this instance the stage picture is a garden before a beautiful Colonial mansion, and Mr. Bowers sings the song to Miss Ripel, who is seated on a bench. She looks beautiful in a gorgeous semi-colonial gown. In this act also is a trio of colored comedians who inject some good comedy and splendid eccentric dances, to say nothing of Mr. Bowers' fine bulldog that marches across the stage nonchalantly carrying a pipe in his mouth. Lew Dockstader, the dean of minstrel comedy, who is heading the bill at Keith's Philadelphia theatre this week, is the announced headline feature of next week's bill at the Orpheum. Adv.

At the Colonial

Song, dance and beauty all have their ding in the new, new vaudeville bill that was introduced to patrons of the Colonial yesterday. Song and good fun is provided in the comedy skit of Gene and Arthur; wonderful balancing feats are presented by the Azard Brothers, while Melver and Scott do a neat Scotch dancing act that is mighty clever and meritorious. "A Transplanted Prairie Flower," Essany feature, and "The Royal Wild West," a Vitagraph photoplay in two parts, will be two of the important features of to-day's moving picture program. Adv.
