

A Practical Man's Ten Reasons for Being a Christian

1. I Needed Forgiveness For My Sins.

I had sinned against my body. I had befouled my thoughts and mind. I had broken down my conscience and weakened my will and character. I had wronged my family. I had done harm to my associates. I had neglected and even defied my Maker and constant Benefactor. Without forgiveness I had no self-respect and no peace of mind. I found both when God for Christ's sake forgave my sins.

2. I Needed Help to Overcome Temptation.

I find the suggestion of evil all around me. What is worse, I find in my nature a response to it. I am an animal, without a common animal's natural checks to over-indulgence of animal passions. I am a person, and the impulse is strong to regard my individuality as supreme over all other individualities. Experience shows me I am too weak in mind, will and character to control these impulses. I need help from outside of myself. I find that help in the Christian religion.

3. I Am Right With God.

There is a God! I don't understand all of this wonderful world in which I live, but what I do understand unanimously vouches for the existence of a Supreme Being. Disobedience to His natural laws works out certain punishment; obedience to it brings comfort and power. If that is true with God's lower material law, how much more true will it be with his higher moral and spiritual law. I study to live in harmony with both the lower and the higher law. I want to be right with God!

4. I Am Associated With a Religion Which Works.

The Christian religion works! It has transformed races and nations as well as individuals. It makes red-nosed "Bum" Smith over into John Smith, Esq., a blessing to his community. The mere leaven of Christianity changed barbarous Japan into a world power during the time of a single life. I am proud to profess a religion that "makes good!"

5. It Is a Spiritual Accident and Indemnity Policy.

In some troubles neighbors and friends can help. In life's deeper sorrow only God can say the right word. The world's not a hard mechanical engine, grinding, crushing remorselessly on. There is a good Friend running it and running it right! God's drills and lathes and punches hurt frightfully at times, I grant, but when the Master Workman gets through with me, I'll be worth living forever!

6. Being a Christian Puts Me Into Good Company.

I belong to the family of God! I am a brother of Jesus Christ! The only "poor relations" I have are the angels in heaven, who have never known "saving grace." Yes, there are some cheap, low-grade Christians; the more is the pity. There are a lot of "Near Christians," people who'd like to have the benefits and privileges of Christians, but are unwilling to pay the price. Cut them all out, and you have left the finest body of human beings in the world. And they are my brothers and sisters!

7. I Admire the Ideas and Purposes of the Christian Religion.

No matter how badly Christianity is misrepresented by its ignorant and unfaithful followers, everybody concedes that its essential ideas and its main purposes are the noblest and worthiest ever given to man. Its fundamental idea is rightness—right with God, right with one's neighbor, right with one's self. Its fundamental purpose is helpfulness. That appeals to me!

8. It Gives the Right Basis To Universal Brotherhood.

Mutual love, mutual patience, mutual sympathy, mutual helpfulness! We are brothers, because we have one common Father and one common Saviour. That is the true and only solution to all social problems.

9. Faith In Christ Takes Away the Terror of Death.

As is entirely right and normal, I shrink from dying. It is a law of life written of God in my physical nature. But when my last hour comes, be it soon or late, I shall not fall into terror and panic, but go in peace. My soul is safe!

10. I Am a Christian Because It Is Right.

God gave me existence, fitted me wonderfully to the world about me. To ignore my Maker were a crime! To antagonize Him the basest treason! He gives me existence, protection, opportunity for this life and the next. Can I give Him less than my obedience, my love, my life, my all? Would it be right to do less?

HOW DO THESE REASONS APPEAL TO YOU?

MAKE A HIT WITH THE BOSS

Have a Good Up-to-Date Dictionary on Your Desk—Will Be an Asset

What would "the boss" say if he should see a New Modern English Illustrated Dictionary lying on your desk some morning?

No matter what he would say, you know that he would think: "There's a young person worth watching for promotion."

Dictionary-users are recognized everywhere as progressive, as well as careful and conservative people.

Your employer cannot help noticing this dictionary if you buy one; its handsome appearance invariably attracts attention.

Men with the dictionary habit are in demand.

The dictionary is not the most thrilling of books—Bill Nye said that its plot was slightly disconnected—but it is one of the most interesting to those who know how to use it.

The Star-Independent is not in competition with those who merely aim to amuse, and books picturing the exploits of newspaper comedians sold at a small price cannot be compared in commercial value to the lesson taught by the successful educational campaign in distributing dictionaries.

A dictionary is like a gun in Texas; you may be so well educated that you do not think you need it, but when you do need it you will need it badly.

The truth of this statement is self-evident to every one who attempts to use the English language.

Provide yourself with abundance of ammunition for every word skirmish, duel or battle.

This dictionary is revised and brought up to the present date in accordance with the best authorities from the greatest universities.
