to his feet he was greeted with loud applause. His cry, "After death the judgment," was the appeal for the trail-hitters, and in the succeeding minutes of copulation more than 60 persons came to the front.

Passages From Sermon—Passages from the evangelist's sermon last night follow:

"There are three things the matter with this revival in this city. There is not enough prayer, there are too few Christians inviting their friends to the tabernacle and there are too few willing to try to win others to Christ.

"I am speaking to-night on the impossible and the inevitable. The first law I want to touch upon is that without the shedding of blood there is no remission for sins. The Bible is a very bloody book. You can find a stream of blood running through it from the third chapter of Genesis to the last chapter of Revelations. There has always been trouble when men have tried to get to God without blood.

Bloodless Worship Declared Pagan—"God never looked down at man except through a telescope of blood. He can't see man any other way, and man can't see Him any other way except through blood. I believe, ministers, that the controversy between the Devil and God was on the question of blood redemption. Wherever you've got an altar, or a religion, or a creed or a system that does not demand blood, you've got satan worship.

"It's pagan, satan worship I say, to try to invoke Deity without Christ, without an atoning Christ. Oh, that cuts I know. It would rip a lot of your ministerial associations plumb in two. You preachers can't have Unitarians in with you.

"Oh, it is a bloody Book and a bloody religion we teach. The law has never been abrogated which says that the soul that sinneth, it shall die. It is an awful thing to be an impenitent sinner. I sometimes say I believe in Hell because I believe in Calvary. The more you magnify Calvary, the more awful is sin and Hell. I may be an old-fashioned theologian, and a little moss-backy, but I never saw anything else that could reach the hearts of men.

Heaven Not for Some Harrisburgers—"Another law is that you have to be born again. Heaven's got to get into you before you can get into Heaven. What would be the use of taking some Harrisburg people to Heaven as they now are?

"Some ministers have tried to make tulle roses out of onions with a lot of

The evangelist apparently noticed faces in his audience, particularly in the front row, which manifested displeasure at his jollity, for he puckered up his face and made all sorts of grimaces in imitation of his "terribly shocked" listeners. He followed with the death scene of Balzac, and the trail-hitter then began.

At the after meeting he listened to one young woman's confession and then laughingly said: "Hubby's Cards Worried Her

"Here's a woman who says she won't feel right with God until she goes home and burns a deck of cards she's got in the house. You've been a pretty steady card player, have you?"

"Oh, no," replied the young woman. "They're my husband's cards."

Before his sermon last night Evangelist Stough startled his audience by telling them that he was aware that a gunman from New York's slums had been hired to follow him and assassinate him if possible.

"I want to tell you people," he said, "that, if anything happens to me here or any other place and I'm found dead, I want you to look up the liquor gang of this country. I've been trailed by detectives ever since I came here, and I can't make a move or even eat but that men are watching me. There's a gang in this town that would stick a knife into me as quick as they would wink an eye, and they're going to pull off the plot as soon as they get me where they can stick me up."

Happy Hooligan, Photoplay, Friday.

At the Photoplay "Lola, the Rat," shows a psychological phase of the human mind often seen, but still remains a mystery. We assign reasons but never feel that it has been solved. A view of this trite the Photoplay to-day will give us a chance of further studying the problems. A poor girl is befriended by a young society chap and her heart goes out to him in love and gratitude. He is entirely ignorant of her affection for him until she saves him from death at the sacrifice of her own life. Maurice Costello is featured in this wonderful Vitagraph production. adv ***
