RUINS ON EAST SIDE BANKS

Withdrawals of Deposits by Foreigners Began Yesterday, Continued Without Abatement To-day

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 3.—Withdrawals of deposits from private and savings banks on the East Side, begun by foreigners yesterday, a day after the suspension of the three banks of Abraham Kaas, continued without abatement to-day.

Two banks appeared to be most affected by to-day's run. Each had taken steps over night to meet the situation. Each announced that all depositors were free to withdraw accounts in full, without giving sixty days' notice. The only explanation of the runs was a general feeling of uneasiness among the foreign-born depositors since the closing of the Kaas banks.

Crowds began to form in line at 2 o'clock this morning outside the two institutions which bore the brunt of to-day's run. The crowds seemed to augment as the day progressed. One of the two banks early in the forenoon adopted the policy of paying depositors $100 each and telling them to return in a week for the remainder. The $100 was paid in silver dollars in each case. This was the twelfth run in twenty years experienced by one of the banks.

"We are used to runs and have learned to guard against them," said the president of this institution. "I believe the present run may last two weeks. We have millions in cash at our disposal. One bank offered to lend us $1,000,000 in cash this morning but we did not need it."

A number of smaller institutions were affected somewhat by the tendency to withdraw deposits. The uneasy feeling seemed to be general throughout the lower East Side. No one could explain it, least of all the depositors. They simply wanted their money.

CARNEGIE AS ASTRONOMER

Tells Engineers 176 New Worlds Have Recently Been Discovered and Count Hasn't Stopped

By Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 3.—Organization of a national service for the detection of criminals and for the prevention of crime, similar to the federal secret service for preventing counterfeiting and detecting counterfeiters, was proposed to-day by Henry Bruere, city chamberlain of New York, in an address before the American Society for Mechanical Engineers.

"A very considerable part of the present criminality can be eliminated by intelligent preventive action," said Mr. Bruere. "This action should be taken by the police."

Morris L. Cooke, director of public works of Philadelphia, proposed that the secretaries of the four national engineering societies should be authorized to associate as a civil service board to advise federal, state and city civil service commissions in the selection of engineers for the public service.

Andrew Carnegie, as an astronomer, told the engineers many things they did not know about space and light rays. One hundred and seventy-six new worlds have recently been discovered by astronomers," he said, "and the count hasn't stopped yet."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

THE NEW TOP-COAT AND THE ONE-PIECE FROCK

Suggestions for Remodeling an Old Frock in Accord With Fashion's Latest Rulings—Hats, Large and Small

New York, Dec. 1.

The styles of twenty years ago seem to hold a strong place in the minds of the people this year, the one-piece frock and the separate, so-called "top-coat" being particular offsprings of the clothes of that day.

A practical innovation is this mode of dressing, which has taken the place of the suit in many cases. The dress may be dressy enough to wear to many things where a suit would be out of place and the top-coat, if care is taken in its selection, may be worn for evening as well as day-time.

The collar of this waist is trimmed with an ostrich fringe. There is a Chinese satin which is just coming to the front, which may be washed without spoiling its luster. This fabric is being used for simple shirt waists and one smart young woman, who is noted for the good style of whatever she wears, has ordered a half dozen of this material to be made just like men's negligee shirts.

A Frock of Island Colored Broadcloth With Simple Trimming of Braid, Binding and Small Buttons

The coat of the season is cut in a variety of ways, each of which has some particular style feature to make it practical or smart. One is cut much like the last winter's raglan coat, merely belted a little closer to the figure so that the curve of the waist may be more in evidence. Or this same coat may have a tiny round yoke with a collar and the full godet ripples pressed into pleats, which open out at every movement of the figure.

Another type of coat is that which is semi-tight fitting at the shoulders and flares widely at the bottom, in the shape of a Cossack coat. Another is distinctly of the Russian peasant style, buttoning at the side and belted with a wide belt. Around the bottom of the skirt portion is a wide band of fur, also at wrists and around the neck. The heavy richness of this trimming is most effective.

Another coat is cut with the upper portion like a saque, having straight lines under the arms and drooping down considerably in the back. A flaring tunic is attached to this lower edge, cut in a circular figure almost, as though it were either heavily corded or wired. Rows of soutache trim the front and around the hips and the hem. Large button sars are used down the front. The skirt is very plain and rather narrow.

The kimono sleeve has had its day and most of the sleeves of coats are set into a regulation armhole, which is often outlined with a cording or piping. The frocks which are made with kimono sleeves are easily brought up to the latest rulings by putting velvet sleeves in a cloth bodice, black lace sleeves into a faille or velvet frock. Taffeta sleeves are used in a serge gown.

In the illustration is a gown worthy of note. Hush, let me whisper in your ear, it is a made-over gown! In the stripes you see what was one gown and in the black another. The combination is one which is often sought in new fabrics and particularly helpful when remodeling.
