Petticoats, Undermuslins and Negligees Turn From Their Straight and Narrow Way to Follow Lead of Fulness. Hoop Skirts a Practical Fashion

New York, May 28. No easy time will mildly have with the lingerie this summer, for lingerie having forsaken its straight and narrow way shows no signs of slackening its mad rush toward fulness. It is useless to deceive yourself by thinking you can make your petticoats and slips of last season do for this. The old tube-like undermuslins are out of the question with the voluminous skirt of the present mode. Far better bow to fashion and buy a hoop skirt.

If hoop skirt sounds far-fetched to you, it's only because you have not seen the dainty creation masquerading under the old name. They are useful and graceful, these skirts with the reel, and they are actually going to wear them with filmy frocks this summer. One store features several in white and pastel shades of crepe de Chine with a flexible wire inserted above a deep lace flounce. As the skirt measures only two yards where the wire is placed, it acts the same as a stiffly starched skirt, without the bulk and clumsiness. Another house, in the very heart of the shopping district, heretofore noted for its conservatism, shows a model of ribbon and net, conspicuously placed in the bodice window. This in itself is not a petticoat, but merely a foundation coming to the knee, formed of a shirred piece of net three inches wide, stiffened on either side and suspended from a waistband with half-inch ribbons.

Significant of the change in underwear fashions, lingerie petticoats measure from three to ten yards in width. Now, when you buy an undershirt you do a patriotic act, for these cambrie and muslin skirts consumed a large share of those famous bales of cotton we heard so much of last fall. Some especially pretty fine cambrie and muslin models are shown in three and five gorges, trimmed with galloons of embroidery and Valenciennes, fllet or lierre lace. These threaten the vogue of crepe de Chine which has come to be almost a staple. The novelties of the season are skirts of mull combined with narrow net ruffles. An Empire design, made to wear with the new Empire dresses, is fashioned in this fabric and hangs straight from the bust. All in all, however, staples outnumber the novelties this season. The white washable sateen skirts offered with wide-pleated flounces are splendid to wear with thin frocks. The texture is so close, that there isn't the slightest chance of the wearer's figure being silhouetted in the sun.

Drop skirts for cloth suits are, of course, more moderate in width, measuring from two to three and a half yards. Here, taffeta predominates, and as in the suit itself, blue is the leading color, although there are some white taffetas and Dolly Varden effects, which bid fair to be extremely popular during the summer. Ruchings and pinked ruffles are the two modes of trimming. It is surprising how many designs can be accomplished with these. A taffeta skirt of the deep Rocky Mountain blue shows an odd effect in the ruching which is placed zig-zag fashion in the center of the flounce. Others have the ruchings in straight rows, and the pinked ruffles are put on in the zig-zag manner or draped like garlands, on the lower skirt.

Many of the stores display these skirts with brassieres, the tighter the better, no doubt for contrast, or perchance because there is so much new in brassiere fashions. It is interesting to note that the front closings have completely replaced the old crossed-in-the-back styles, which at best were ill-fitting, uncomfortable garments. Above the bust line, some of the new waives are elaborately embroidered and trimmed with lace. One expensive, handmade model of linen has a yoke and short sleeve embroidered with a conventional rose design, and the edges both-toned with tiny scallops. However, brassieres are not fancy. Others have degenerated into mere strapless bust supporters. A rubber brassiere they offer for sale at $6.00 is said to reduce the bust two inches. If this is true, there may be no doubt of its future popularity. Indeed, so many types are featured, it is difficult to say what is what in underwear fashions. In the summer sales of white, where everything white is shown, each garment seems different and more adorable than the one before. Nightgowns, chemises and combinations for instance, find inspiration in every period of the past hundred years and to make the choice more bewildering the garments are taking special names. "Simplicity" is a batiste set, chemise and nightgown, with baby waist and puffed sleeves of the first Empire. "Victoria," a set in chiffon cloth of "Dawn Rose," a fabric similar to indestructible voile in a filmy rose color, comes from Victorian styles as one might readily guess, being made in sections joined together with fagoting. There is a name to fit every style and almost as many fabrics. In some of the sheerest models, striped Georgette crepe is used and then there are the cotton crepes, French voiles, mousselines, nainsook and chiffon clothes in Dolly Varden patterns, elaborately frilled or plainly piped, trimmed with Flemish, lierre, Valenciennes, fllet or Baby Irish crochet lace. Just as this season, when the parks bloom with flowers and the shops with lingerie, it is refreshing to linger over the duffy frills for the boudoir. How charming the Robes de interior are! Again, crepe de Chine is the fabric of the moment, coming in attractive leaf pattern, stripes and polka dot designs. The polka dot idea is used in a smart kimono in an Avenue shop. The silk is white with large and small green dots and is made with an Empire bodice and full skirt; the neck, sleeves and lower edge are finished with wide ruffs of maline and the waist with a twist of ribbon and a pink rose in front. Crinoline wrappers are also featured for morning wear in dainty tulle, Swiss, mull and point d'esprit, ruffled in flower-like formation, tier upon tier. Other kimonos of China silk, taffeta and crepe de Chine show the art of the smocker.

Polka Dotted Crepe de Chine in a Negligee, Pattern in the Style of the First Empire

A Nattier blue taffeta matinee has a yoke effect of this needlework and narrow ruffles of white maline which match the ruffles on a taffeta petticoat. Then, for milady who breakfasts in bed, there is a pretty jacket of peach blow satin trimmed with swan's-down, and one of the new shirred, circular pillows for the same satin, to tuck behind her back. Breakfast jackets of lierre lace and point d'esprit are also shown. Each of these has its own particular boudoir cap and here again names come in play. The "Normandy" cap of maize, pink, white, or lavender crepe de Chine takes its style from the headdress of the Normandy peasant and the "Colleen" cap is a confection of ecru net. Oriental lounging robes are also receiving considerable attention, on account of their new shaded colorings. One butterfly kimono of fine silk crepe is embroidered in a wisteria pattern, graduating in tone from deep purple to white.

Styles for the boudoir go more than skin deep. Besides the kimonos and dainty caps, there are supporters and stays to think of. For those who do not wear a corset when lounging in their own rooms, there are round garters of broad elastic, covered with shirred ribbon and finished with a flower to suit the color scheme of the negligee and room. However, if the negligee is semi-fitting, a stay must be worn. For this purpose, there are satin corsets in white and pastel shades, made from the waistline up, like bodices of olden times. With flexible whalebone, inserts of elastic and stocking supporters, they spell boudoir comfort, grace and luxury.
