The Hancock Chemical Company Case Now On.

Benchich Gets $300 Damages.

The Village Election in Hancock Already Talked About—Other Twin City News.

Judge Hubbell yesterday ordered an extra panel of jurors to be struck, anticipating that difficulty would be had in securing a trial jury in the chemical case.

However, the jury was secured without any delay, only three being excused from service and no peremptory challenges being used and the special panel was set aside. The case, Mrs. August Schoepfer vs. the Hancock Chemical Co., was commenced at 2 o'clock and is still in progress. Dan H. Ball and J. F. Hamblitz represent the plaintiff, and Judge C. R. Brown and A. R. Gray are for the defendant. The jury is as follows: William Brewer, Thomas Brunelle, W. E. Carpenter, Douglas Payne, William McLeod, Edward Wilkinson, Henry Sarnsin, John Miller, Frank Major, W. T. Gray, Clovis Toranque and William McDonald.

Mrs. Schoepfer sues for damages on account of the death of her husband, Fred Schoepfer, by the explosion of May 16 last. The plaintiff's case, as stated in Mr. Ball's opening to the jury, is that the explosion was caused by neglect of the company in using a rubber hose to convey the unwholesome compound of acid and glycerine from the mixing house to the wash house, which method of conveying the plaintiff will try to prove was an experiment. The plaintiff also alleges that the company was negligent in employing unskilled labor. The result of the case will be interesting, as it is the first damage case against a corporation in the county in a long time. While the result may be of interest, the details of the case are the opposite, for it abounds in testimony of a technical character, and the attorneys have become almost expert in chemical knowledge in working up the testimony.

The famous case of John Benchich vs. William Anderson, action brought to recover damages for trespass, was ended in the circuit court yesterday afternoon. The land in dispute was a strip twenty-six inches wide frontage between lots 10 and 9, block 18, Red Jacket. A former dispute between the village and Mr. Anderson as to the occupancy of an alley between their lots was settled by the village withdrawing their claim. In the 26-inch strip Mr. Anderson claimed title from undisputed possession for over fifteen years while the plaintiff, Benchich, has a deed including the strip and denied that the Andersons ever occupied the disputed strip. The case was fought with the energy which the Andersons have always displayed in their controversies with the village. The value of the strip was not so much as the damages claimed from the trespass, the sum of $550. The jury was out but half an hour, returning a verdict for the plaintiff with damages at $300.

Prof. Louis Favours' chemical and electrical entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening was grand. A more pleased audience would be hard to find. The large stage was well filled with apparatus used by the professor to instruct and delight the large audience. Many expressions of desire to hear him again were heard as the people left the hall. Y. M. C. A. has scored another point with the public in bringing this excellent entertainment to Hancock. The other numbers of the course are as follows: The Chicago Rivals, grand concert, Wednesday, February 19; Prof. Byron W. King, elocutionist, Thursday, March 12, and Hon. J. J. Ingalls, lecture, Friday, March 20.

The coming village election in Hancock is beginning to be talked about. The issue this spring is likely to be between the east and west ends of town. The east end or old part of the town has at present, of course, all the officials and the west enders will go in to get representation on the board of trustees. John Rohli is mentioned as a probable candidate for treasurer. Ed Ferno has held this office four years. According to the new charter the term of office is one year, but only two consecutive terms are allowed. He has held but one year under the new charter and so is eligible, but it is likely that he will be satisfied with what he has had. For the other offices no one has yet been mentioned.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cullyford will entertain about fifty friends tomorrow evening. The invitations issued are unique and will be of interest. They read:

On the thirtieth, in the evening, At our place of habitation (House de Douglas, on the hillside) Next the lake of muddy water, A "Guest Party" will be given. That the night may be more joyous, That the time may pass more easily, Wear some token in your costume, Wear some trinket, sign or symbol By its name or symbolizing. By its meaning representing Any country, state or city, Any mountain, lake or river, Found in any clime or region. Come. At eight o'clock precisely Will our open doors await you, And give you kindly greeting. For our hearts are full of welcome.

A grand concert will be given at the Armory Opera House by the Houghton musical union, consisting of a chorus of forty members, on Thursday evening, February 13. After the concert there will be a dance and the Club orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Langier, will furnish music. This promises to be the musical event of the season and is worthy the support and patronage of all lovers of good music.

Men Working on the New Railroad Strike a Body of Iron Ore Seven Feet Underground.

Work on the new ore dock has been started and Mr. Kearns, the contractor, has a large force of teams and men employed. The dock when completed will be the largest one on Lake Superior.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wells are mourning the loss of their infant son who died on Monday morning.

The family of Mr. Kearns, the contractor for the ore dock, have arrived and will take up their residence here until the contract is completed.

Mr. James W. Froyer, who is claimed to be the fastest skater in the west, will appear at the ice rink tomorrow night.

Commissioner of Mineral Statistics Newett has gone to Iron Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erickson have lost by death one of their infant twins.

The lecture given by Mr. Thomas Wille, of Red Jacket, on Monday evening was very largely attended.

Mrs. Lewis, the mother of Mr. W. C. Lewis, who resided here for a number of years until she went to reside at Chicago, died in that city last Thursday, aged 73 years. The deceased had a number of friends here by whom she was much respected.

No less than sixty dogs having been poisoned in the streets were hauled away by the city officials and there were many others whose owners looked after the bodies of the dead canines themselves.

The Marquette and Lapenport polo teams will play another match at the Hancock rink next Saturday evening, the boys having promised to behave.

Presiding Elder Sweet conducted services last Sunday morning and evening at the M. E. Church.

Mr. August Johnson has left for Saginaw to represent the Negaunee lodge of F. & A. M.

A new deposit of high grade ore was recently encountered in the shaft of the Platt mine, on the Cascade range and which gives indications of being large.

Mr. Alex Heyn having made a snug fortune has decided to live a while in peace and has with his family removed to Milwaukee.

There is every probability that the mine management and the ore owners will soon come to terms and that the Queen mine which we hear is well equipped and opened away ahead of stopping ground, will then be in a position to mine large quantities of ore safely and economically.

The men last Saturday while working on the new railroad in the cut near Cornish town, struck, only seven feet below the surface, a deposit of ore. The samples of which are being assayed.

Story of "Billie Taylor." The story of the nautical comic opera, "Billie Taylor," is founded on the old song of "Billie Taylor," a well known English nautical ditty.

The time of the action is 1805-6, when during the Napoleonic wars, the press gang was in full sway. The first act opens in the village of Southampton, at the old inn of the Royal George. The villagers have met to rejoice over the approaching wedding of Billie Taylor (W. H. Cappel) and Phoebe (Miss Lizzie Tauch), a charity girl. There is also an heiress, Arabella Lane, (Miss Florence Osborn), who is in love with Billie. Her father, Sir Mincing Lane, (Mr. Albert Engstrom), a kind hearted old gentleman, of the self-made-man type, is going to give the villagers a feast at Billie's wedding. He invites his friend, Captain Flapper, R. N., (F. H. Oates), to join the festivities. The captain falls in love with Phoebe at first sight, and vows that she shall not marry Billie. A schoolmaster, Christopher Crab, (W. R. Oates), is also in love with Phoebe. Among Captain Flapper's crew is Ben Barnacle, (S. Mustonen), a bold boatswain, who has gone to sea on account of his love for Eliza Dabney, (Miss Iva Stevens), who has forsaken him for another lover. He is ordered by Captain Flapper to bring his press-gang and carry Billie off to sea.

During the festivities preceding the wedding, this plan is carried out, and Billie is taken away and put on board a man-of-war.

The second act opens (two years having elapsed) with its scene laid in Portsmouth harbor. The man-of-war Thunderbomb has just come into port after a successful cruise of two years, and the inhabitants are welcoming the sailors home. All of the charity girls, among whom is Phoebe, have followed Billie to sea disguised as sailors. Billie in the meantime has risen to the rank of lieutenant, through some seeming act of bravery. Sir Mincing Lane has become a commander in the volunteers, and there is a quarrel between the soldiers and sailors. Captain Flapper stops the fight. Crab, who has also been pressed into the navy because Captain Flapper does not esteem his accomplices, is now Flapper's rival for Phoebe's hand. He tells Phoebe that Billie has lost all his love for her, and is going to marry Miss Arabella Lane. She fires a pistol at Arabella and Billie, whom she finds in com-
