Cow Causes Much Amusement

day-New Lights Placed at Portage River-Other News.

The end came to poor Will Northy vesterday at 6 o'clock. Friendsgathered at the bedside were expecting the dread end but were ill prepared nevertheless to see him cut down in the prime of manbood. He was but 30 years of age. De ceased returned recently from the west whither he had gone in the vain hope of recovering from that merciless disease, consumption, but without avail. He has lain ill at the home of Mr. Phillip Pearce, in West Hancock, and with him at the end was his sister. Mr. Northy was formerly a valuable employe of the Sturgeon River lumber company in Hancock and Chassell and his death cast a gloom over a large circle of friends in both towns.

A cow enlivened a rather dull day in Hancock yesterday for a few minutes. First she came up on the sidewalk in front of George H. Nichols' drug store, and rearing on its hind legs, settled down with front legs in a hammock swung from the awning frames. The hammock gave way pretty quick, but Mr. Nichols thinks its being there saved his show window. The bovine then wandered along to Benjamin Wieder's store and entered. After letting out a mournful wail, she wandered out again, leaving Mr. Wieder astonished at the visit.

The new lights to mark the entrance to Portage River from Portage Lake are in place. They are described to vesselmen as follows: Each is a fixed white lantern ight. The front light is 18 feet above the mean level of the water, and suspended from a bracket on a mast on a amp house on the small crib on the east bank of the channel. The rear light is 25 eet above the water, suspended on a mast in front of the lamp house on the east bank, 600 feet from the front light. Each has an oval day mark of slats.

The public is disappointed of a sensa tion and the Kramer butchery still remains a mystery. Wasting Tissues.

What is the next thing for our scientific men to discover? Of course we unfollow the economical storage of elec-tricity, and we all admit that it would be a great comfort to chase birds through the air with wings as good as their own. But there is another matter far more important-namely, to find some way in which the wasting tissues of the body can be restored. As it is now we lose a little more than we gain, and after awhile the tide ceases to ebb and is simply "out." Now, if the poise could be maintained and we could replace what we lose we might live as long as we pleased, but, better still, we might re new each defective function, and live healthily. What a marvelous question that is! And how easy it appears to be to make the needed discovery! Perhaps it will come by and by. Who knows?-

It is far back enough to trace the mystery of the egg to the egg and dart pattern, but when we come to study the history of the Easter egg we engulf ourselves in the remoteness of time. In a poached egg—what is the definition of poach? Now, Easter and the Jewish assover occur at quite the same dates, nd the pasch egg is the Passover egg and from that may come the potch, poch, potche, potched or poached egg. The old Aryan myth, so folklorists tell us, finds its revival in early Christianity's adopting the egg as an emblem of the resurrection. As to the pecking of eggs, and the appropriation of the bro-ken one by the lad possessing the harder egg, that began as soon as juvenile greed was developed, and the small boy of the remote period did not differ much from the one of today.-New York

LESSON IV. THIRD QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, JULY 26.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam, x, 8-19 Memory Verses, 11, 12-Golden Text, Pa. Exvil, 1-Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

8. "And the children of Ammon came out and put the battle in array at the enering in of the gate." Previous to this ve road that the Lord had given David rest from all his enemies; that the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went, and that David reigned over all Israel, exouting judgment and justice unto all his people (chapters vii, 1; viii, 6, 14, 15). The Lord having shown His loving kindess to David in promising to make unte him an everlasting kingdom, David rests upon the word of the Lord, and living in upon the word of the Lord, and living in peace seeks to show kindness to all. We saw in the last lesson his kindness to Jona-than's son, and this chapter begins with a record of his kindness to Hanun, king of Ammon, but the princes of Ammon per-suaded Hanun that David meant evil, and not good, so he took David's servants who had come with comfort for him and treated them shamefully. David did not take this ingratitude and humilation as meekly as he had done some others and started Joab and the host of his mighty men out to punish Ammon. The Ammonites hired helpers and gave David battle.

9-11. "If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me, but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee." Thus said Joab, the captain of David's host, to his brother Abishai, with whom he di-vided the army. Joab taking the choice men to contend with the Syrians, and Abishai taking the rest to fight with the Abishai taking the rest to fight with the Ammonites. Joab and Abishai wore sons of David's sister Zerulah (I Chron. ii, 16; II Sam. ii, 18). There were three sons, but Asahel had been slain by Abner, the captain of Saul's host.

12. "Be of good courage and let us play the men for our people and for the cities of our God, and the Lord do that which seemeth Him good." Thus Joab encour-aged the hearts of his soldiers by reminding them that they stood for God and for His land and people. Compare I Chron. xix, 13. There is no strength like the knowledge that we are for God, standing for Him as His witnesses. He gave this encouragement to Joshua, saying, "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid; neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest" (Joshua i, 9). Nehemiah en-couraged his people with these words: "Be not ye afraid of them; remember the Lord which is great and terrible and fight for your brethren, your sons and your daugh-ters, your wives and your houses" (Neb. iv, 14). With a whole hearted trust in God, reliance upon Him, surrender to Him, with a readiness to do His bidding. There must a readness to do his induling. There must also be the heart to say, Now let Him do that which seemeth Him good. If He will-eth apparent defeat for us, it must be well; if He willeth victory for us, it will be well. Whether He willeth health or sickness, life death, all is well that He willeth

Ill that God blesses is our good, And unblessed good is ill, And all is right that seems most wrong If it be His sweet will.

"Christ shall be magnified in my body whether by life or by death" (Phil. 1, 20). 13, 14. "They fled before him." Thus did both Syrians and Ammonites before Joab and Abishai, and Joab returned and Joah and Abishal, and Joan Federacon-came to Jerusalem. It was written con-cerning Israel that "one should chase the control of the control ,000 and two put 10,000 to flight." 1,000 and two put 10,000 to flight." "The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face; they shall come out against thee one way and flee before thee seven ways" (Deut. xxxii, 30; xxviii, 7). When Israel went forth as the people of God, no armies could stand before them, for God was with them to fight their battles (Deut. 1, 30; iii, 23). When they went in their own strength. 23). When they went in their own strongth. they were easily overcome. With us now in this present life it must be a whole hearted relinnee upon God either for salva-tion or for victory over self and sin; otherwise our enemies will be too strong for us. But, yielding to and relying upon Him, we shall sing, "Thanks be unto God, who giv-eth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (I Cor. xv, 57).

Christ" (I Cor. xv, 57).

15, 16. The Syrians, chafing under their defeat, gather others with them and return to fight with Israel, for the spirit of rebellion against God is not easily put down. The spirit that was in Pharach and Gown. The spirit that was in Pharaon and Sennacherib is the spirit of the devil, who would, if possible, dethrone God Himsolf. It shall be fully manifest in the last days in the person of the antichrist, who shall with his armies make war against the Lamb of God and His armies, but the Lamb shall overcome them for He is Lord of Lords and King of Kings (Rev. xix, 19, 20; xvii, 14). The last phase of it shall be at the end of the thousand years of Christ's personal reign, when the devil, loosed from the pit, shall make his last attack personal reign, when the devil, loosed from the pit, shall make his last attack upon the people of God (Rev. xx, 7-10). Every thought or act against God and His word is a phase of this awful spirit which must finally find its home where it belongs, with the devil and his angels.

17, 18. David himself now takes the field and at least 40,700 Syrians are slain and also the captain of their host. This also is suggestive of our Lord Himself coming with His armies to overthrow the enemies of Israel, when the slain shall be so many that the house of Israel shall be soven months burying the dead (Ezek. xxxix, 12). This same Lord Jesus who has done and who shall do such great and terrible things for Israel is our Saviour and Lord. By His finished work He gives us eternal rodemption; because He liws we shall live who are in Him, and in due time we shall some with Him when He comes to judge some with Him when He comes to judge the nations (Coi. iii, 4; Rev. xix, 14;

the nations (Col. iii, 4; Rev. xix, 14; Math. xxv, 31). Let us only abide in His love and we need fear no evil. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

19. "All the kings made peace with Israel and served them." In the days of which we have spoken, when our Lord shall come in power and glory, it is written that "All kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall serve Him" (Ps. lxxii, 11). "All nations whom then hast made shall come and worship before Thee, O Lord, and shall glorify Thy name" (Ps. lxxvi, 9). It is also written of Israel in those days, "The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea those nations shall be utterly wasted (Isa. lx, 12). Let us now submit wholly and cheeffuily to the Prince of Peace and enjoy a foretaste of His kingdom.

Literature Not Made In London

The London man of former generaions, by which I mean the west end man, led a comparatively quiet life, and having had a classical education, read very book that came out, went to every new play, and became the recog-nized judge and patron of literature and the arts. The conditions of today have entirely changed the west end man in this respect. He now seldom reads any-thing but the news or the Stock Exchange quotations. It is the west end woman who reads, and therefore the majority of authors write to suit her Even admitting the contention that the women of our time are better cultivated and more experienced in such natters than they were fermerly, the one of the literature of today how injurious is the altered condition of

India Rubber Glass

Scarcely a month passes without our being informed of some new application of glass in art or commerce, but there is one form of glass which is unknown to most people—namely, soft glass or glass paste. Yet it is hundreds of years

The old Roman glass makers carried to the grave their secret method of preparing a glass paste which they modeled old, just as we model clay. This malleable glass, upon which you could get the impression of your finger exactly as with dough, gave off a most pleasant

Another variety made by the Roman had qualities similar to rubber. If it were thrown down forcibly it rebounded; if struck with a hammer it yielded and immediately resumed its original shape. It is related that the Emperor Tiberius ordered a workman's head to be cut off so that he should not reveal the secret the reason given for this act being that if the method of preparation became known people would think no more of gold than of dirt.

The secret of the manufacture of glass paste died with the Roman arisans and has never been discovered. Now we hear that an eminent scalptor. who has a well equipped chemical laboratory, has succeeded in producting a glass paste similar to that described in ancient writings. He was being interviewed on the poultry business, when he said: "I den't want to boast, but I do think we have got the knowingest hens in the world in our end of the town. I have a flock of 200, all black. It is a theory of mine that black hens lay better than those of any other color. One day I found a hen in my flock with a few white feathers in her tail. I called the hired man and told him to catch and kill her. 'You can't rely on the laying capabilities of a hen with white feathers,' I said. The hen gave me a serrowful look, but did not say a word

"Next morning the hired man told me that he could not find her. A month or two later I opened a pile of potatoes I had stored in the cellar and found a big hollow space in the center of them. ere was a bunch of black feathers in the place, with three white ones standing up in a defiant sort of way. Behind the feathers were 66 eggs. I recognized at once that it was the work of the missing hen. The proud, sensitive creature had stowed herself away and worn perself out laying eggs to prove that the theory was a mistaken one. "-Wabash leader writer for the London News. When asked the other day what he thought of journalism as a literary training, he answered: "I don't know that it was of any particular value in my case, but journalism is most useful in the making of a novelist in that it gives him experience of a large sphere of life, but to get the fullest amount of such experience a man ought to be a re-porter. There is now quite a remarkable group of novelists who have been journalists. But journalism itself has undergone a remarkable change since I worked at it. In the last 20 years the newspaper has become a magazine com-pared with what it was. The daily newspaper is now ready to take any thing, on any subject—literature, seience, art-from anybody, providing only it is interesting."

William Black, the novelist, was once
