The long-looked for establishment of a hospital at Hancock is now an assured fact. Details of it are wanting, but the main fact of a building is provided for by the action of Bishop Vertin, of Marquette, donating the old family residence on Hancock street for the purpose. The residence will be diocesan property the same as other church property and remain under the control of the bishop.

Although the future may not be looked into, it is almost certain that the hospital to be established will be a success, in which case, and when the need for larger and different quarters become manifest, then the property now donated will be sold and a regular hospital building erected.

The hospital will be in charge of a house physician, to be appointed, but any regularly practicing physician in the county can take to any patient and attend him the same as at the patient's own home, with the added advantage of trained nursing, proper surroundings and all that pertains to a well regulated hospital. It is certain that the physicians of the county will heartily embrace this opportunity and that the patronage of the institution will be large.

Sisters of an order trained for hospital work and nursing are here and everything looks to an early opening of the institution.

This morning articles of agreement were signed between Dave Loyd, of Wisconsin, and Michael J. Dwyer, of Hancock, for a wrestling match, catch-as-catch-can, under the Lanchashire rules, to take place at Hancock, August 8. The match is for $100 a side and $50 a side have been deposited with the News as a forfeit. The winner of the match is to take the gate receipts. The referee is to be selected at the ring side and is to be the final stake holder.

Mr. Dwyer is well known as an old Hancock boy who has made a considerable reputation in athletics and as a trainer. Mr. Loyd was secured by Mr. James T. Wilcox, of Calumet, to meet Dwyer on the latter challenge at Calumet on July 4, and afterward through the Evening News. A large number of Dwyer's friends, and especially the members of the Y. M. C. A. class that is training under him, will desire to see the match, so that a large house is assured.

The Calumet fire department will try at the Soo this year to get the next tournament for their town. They will probably have the aid and votes of the rest of the copper country departments in their efforts. Hancock will not try to get the tournament for the reason that all the enthusiasm, even of going to it in another town, is confined to a very few. It is true that when these few, composing the home team, came home from Ishpeming last summer, having taken the most and principal prizes, they were met with a suitable reception, but it was enthusiasm for the time being only, and not the kind, unfortunately, that provides funds and does the preliminary work of getting up so big an event. Therefore, Chief A. J. Scott thought it useless to even think of asking for the tournament for Hancock.

M. T. Dwyer has a class composed of business men in training at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The gentlemen are becoming enthusiastic over the work and the results they at least profess to experience. Several of the members of the class were in the benedict's nine on Tuesday. When asked yesterday whether or not they were lame or sore each would straighten up and pull himself together with one effort and exclaim, with a sigh, "Oh no, I am in that Y. M. C. A. class and what I did yesterday was nothing."

Members of the Onigaming yacht club are trying to arrange for a race soon between the fishermen's boats from the Entry. These fishermen are as much at home on water as on land and all bold sailors. Should a race be arranged and

A SUPERSTITIOUS CALENDAR.

(People who believe in prophetic destinies as outlined in verse will be interested in the following ancient horoscopes for the month):
By her who in January is born,
No gem save garnet should be worn.
It will insure her constancy,
True friendship and fidelity.

The February born will find
Sincerity and peace of mind,
Freedom from passion and from care,
If they the amethyst will wear.

Who on this world of ours their eyes
In March first open shall be wise,
In days of peril firm and brave,
And wear a bloodstone to the grave.

She who from April dates her years
Diamonds shall wear, lest bitter tears
From love's agonies and from care,
Embalm of innocence is known.

Who first beholds the light of day
In spring's sweet flowery month of May
And wears an emerald all her life
Shall be a loved and happy wife.

Who comes with summer to this earth
No conical hatlets should be worn,
With ring of agate on her long hair,
Cue health, wealth and long life command.

The glowing ruby should adorn
Those who in warm July are born;
Then will they be exempt and free
From love's doubts and anxiety.

Wear a sardonyx, or for the
No conical hatlets should be worn,
The August born without this stone,
A maid, must live unloved and lone.

This maiden, when untaken leaves
Aure rustling in September's breeze
A sapphire on her brow should bind—
To cure disease of the mind.

October's child is born for woe,
And life's vicissitudes must know,
But lay an opal on her breast
And hope will null those woes to rest.

Who first comes to this world below
With December's fog and snow
Shall wear a garnet on her hand,
Embalm of friends and lovers true.

If cold December gave you birth—
The month of snow and ice and mirth—
Place on your hand a turquoise blue;
Success will bless what'er you do.

TIPS IN ENGLAND.
Two Well Guarded Places Into Which They Got a New Yorker.

"It is amazing," said a New Yorker, "to see what a tip will do in England. When I was younger and more adventurous than I am now, being in London I went down to Woolwich with the hope of seeing the inside of the arsenal. I went with the full knowledge that a request from the minister of the United States for a pass to the arsenal for a distinguished officer of our own army had been denied at the war office, upon the ground that a war being then in progress, the arsenal was closed against visitors. I hung around one of the gates until the men came out at the noon hour, and, finally falling in with a man that I took for a foreman, slipped a tip into his hand and explained what I was after. He must have found me trustworthy, for he explained that one of his squad was not going back after the noon meal, and having procured me a workman's coat smuggled me in through the gate with the crowd. Once inside I was safe enough, and by the aid of the man I had corrupted I saw nearly everything worth seeing.

"It was during the same visit to England that a friend of my father's came to take him into the house of commons to hear a debate. He had been unable to obtain a pass for me, but I hurried down to the house of parliament, found a policeman, gave him a handsome tip, and told him I wished to get into the visitors' gallery of the commons. I hardly expected to succeed, but that lobby disappeared and returned with a pass bearing the signature of Joseph Chamberlain, and in I went. I haven't the slightest notion how the policeman obtained it. Perhaps it was a forgery, but it helped to convince me that in Great Britain more things are wrought by tips than by prayers."—New York Sun.

DOGS KEPT THEM WARM.
A Knife Manufacturing Town Where the Grinders Use Living Stones.

Thiers, an old town in the Auvergne, is famous for its steel knife industry. The town has retained much of its romantic medieval character. Its streets are narrow and crooked, and the manufacture of knives, the principal industry of the town, is not carried on in modern factories, but in ancient, small buildings along the little river Durole, which furnishes the power for the industrial township. Curious and unique, as everything else in Thiers, is the method of work of the people engaged in grinding the knives.

The grinders, men and women, lay stretched out on wooden planks, over which they sometimes throw sheepskins to soften the boards. Head, shoulders and arms reach over the end of the board, and with their hands
